The celebrated Domestic Drama, in five acts, called

FANCHON! THE CRICKET!

Mrs. Lanergan as Fanchon

The character in which she was so eminently successful in England.

[From the Liverpool Daily Post.]

"In every situation of the piece Miss Lanergan was thoroughly characteristic and effective, and her sudden transition passages from sorrow to mirth, or to cynical sarcasm were equalled in effect by the impressiveness of her delivery of the many good lines of sound sentiment with which the text abounds. She was recalled after almost every act; and her extraordinary power of natural weeping and laughter brought her by their contagiousness many a less demonstrative but equally valuable testimony to her dramatic skill."

[From the Liverpool Daily Courier.]

"A graceful presence, expressive features, and effective voice, combine to make her a formidable rival to most successful English actresses whose line is that popularly understood as melodrama. In the various stages of the Cricket's existence as girl and woman Miss Lanergan exhibited a versatility and dramatic power which fairly earned the unmistakable ovation she received in the course of the piece."
