COAL COMING IN FAST. There Are Now 258 Cars in the Railway Yards.

Coal continues to arrive with a regu larity that makes it evident that the citizens will not have to burn their furniture to keep warm. Yesterday 42 cars, of which 28 were hard, arrived over the C.P.R. The G.T.R. brought in 15 of hard and 13 of soft. All told, there are 258 cars now in the yards ready for distribution. The Rogers Company received large consignments. The cars average 30 tons, so that the amount of coal available is about 7740 tons. Most of this is hard. It is all hard enough to get. Thirty more cars were expected over the C.P.R. before 7 o'clock this morning.

R. S. Lewis, Canadian passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railway, says that his road is using box cars in addition to the usual run of coal cars. In this way they were able to move 1500 more cars in one day, without in any way inconveniencing their thru commercial freight.

PLANS FOR ORGANIZATION. Temperance Legislation League to Form Local Branches.

The executive of the Temperance Legislation League had a long session al The Liberator Office yesterday. All the members were present, and it was stated that the chief business was the completion of plans for an organization campaign. It is proposed to en-gage a field secretary and to organize

Work of Clearing Away G.T.R. Wreck Near Port Hope Goes on Without Discovery.

THE INQUEST HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Till Monday Evening, or Until Such Time as the Bodies Are Found.

Port Hope, Jan. 23.-The work of clearing away the wreck of Wednesday night's disaster on the Grand Trunk is still in progress. As yet no traces of the missing bodies of Fireman Harry Mathews and Brakeman Benjamin Coroner Alderch has therefore postponed the inquest ordered for to-night until Monday evening, or until such time as the remains are recovered. Conductor Young of the eastbound train which was wrecked was able to be around yesterday. He was with some friends on Yonge-street when a World man met him, but he did not care to further discuss details of the accident. His left temple was bandaged, and he had marks on his face. His left hand was tied up, and he said ne was hurt a little somewhere inside. 'I'll be alright tho, and will be ready for another one soon," he remarked, with a laugh. He would express no

Those who saw the debris caused by the wreck, and the way in which a score or more cars had been reduced to ashes, excepting the iron trucks and wheels, which, many hours after the wreck, were almost at white cat, could not hope that the bodies at two unfortunate trainmen could be found. One hour after the trains met the flames from the burning cars had he flames from the burning cars ha assumed such proportions that it was impossible for anyone to get within rods of the burning pile, and in such a conflagration it is hardly to be supposed that the bodies were not reduced. osed that the bodies were not reduce

It was thought that the might be found underneath, or near the boiler of the wrecked engine from the east, but after the crash and the ire the engine had been reduced to a woful looking mass of scrap iron. Several times as the mass of stuff under neath it burned away the wrecked en-gine fell, and what chance would there be of ever finding two human bodies buried beneath such a ruin?

The heat from the burning wreckage nelted the deep snow in the vicinity, and after the fire had waged its warmst the frost resumed its work and nade the ground in the neighborhoo of the wreck resemble a sea of ice. bleak wind from the lake, which is onl short distance from the south side of the wreck, fanned the fire and he debris blazing all day and all night, nd made the work of the wrecker tficult as well as most uncomfortable in the endeavor to squelch the flames. The Oshawa fire brigade, which had been brought to the scene with a pow-erful fire engine, on a special G.T.R. train a few hours after the wreck, did great work. Twenty men looked after the engine and its streams of hose. One of them, talking to The World, wonder d what Oshawa would do in the even a fire with all the firemen and the ig engine absent.

The people from the countryside con-inue to visit the wreck, and from a pectacular standpoint they enjoy it. An enterprising baker arrived with a plentiful supply of buns, and he did a good business, for the sharp atmosphere

The undertaker from Port Hope, who ill take charge of any of the remains of the dead men that may be found has made more than one visit to the scene, but the general feeling is that the bodies have been thoroly cremated. Coroner Aldrich said that if any part of the bodies or any bit of clothing, by which either of the dead men could be identified, was found, it would be sufficient on which to hold an inquest.

votes, as they had voted before the person arers arrived. It is alleged also that there were a large number of personations in the other ridings of Toronto, but the investigations of Mr. Mills have been confined altegether to the riding of South Toronto.

Fraudulent Ballots Found. It is claimed by Mr. Mills that at umper of the polling booths fraudulen abots were found in the ballot boxes, and builds were found in the ballot boxes, and in nearly every instance the traudulent ballot was folded in with the genuine one, and for the most part they bore numbers ranging between 15,000 and 16,000. The numbers of the fraudulent ballots did not correspond with the numbers furnished to the deputy returning officer for the poll where they were found, but did correspond with numbers furnished to other deputies in the riding. In some of the booths the scrutineers took the numbers of the ballots, but in others did not. These ballots were found in the following polls: Poll 52, 14 ballots; poll 54, 12 ballots; poll 57, 5 ballots; poll 61, 14 ballots; poll 62, 10 ballots, poll 63, 4 ballots, eof which were counted in spite of the protest of scrutineers; poll 63, 4 ballots; poll 82, 6 ballots, all of which were counted notwithstanding protest of the scrutineer; poll 67, two men were allowed to vote on each of five names, and the same thing occurred at poll 26 and a number of other places.

The first personator caught, said Mr.

The first Personator Caught.

The first Personator Caught.

The first personator caught, said Mr. Mills, was Adam S. Case, an employe of Mr. Dickle, scrutineer of the License Victualiers' Association, and who is still working in Mr. Dickle's office. Case gave the name of Andrew E. Taylor, and the constable who arrested him said he had a paper in his pocket with a list of names and addresses. The flagistrate fined Case $50. At polls 25 and 28 it is alleged a mantook voters into each of these polls several times, proclaimed himself a representative of the License Victualiers' Association and gave the names and addresses of parties with himse At poll 26 three of them were allowed to vote without taking the cath, although the scrutineers demanded that the path be administered. A few minutes after they had gone three Roman Casholic priests came in and found that they had been personated by these men. The same man took five or six personators to poil 25. The oath was tendered, but they all refused to swear and left the poll. At poll 25 a party received a genuine ballot, went behind the curtain and returned with a fradulent one. The deputy refused to receive it and he went back, brought the genuine ballot and put it into the box.

An Organized Band.

An Organized Band.

An Organized Baud.

About room on the day of the vote a young man called on a business man on Victoria-street, it is alleged, and told blue there were organized companies of young men in each ward who were paid to persenate for the day. The young man was one of the crowd, but his nerve failed him and he consequently gave the information. It is claimed that the conspirators worked at poll 60 on Spadina-avenue. Two of the gang were arrested and fought desperately with the scrutineer, wounding him. One made his escape, but the other. Vincent O'Nelle was secured and fined $50 in the Police Court.

Tried to Personate the D.R.O. Tried to Personate the D.R.O.

Tried to Personate the D.R.O.

At poil 44 a party attempted to personate R. K. Freeman, the deputy returning o.fi. cer. The explanation given by Mr. Freeman is that he was assigned to a poll on Bend-street, and at the last moment a change was made, but the personators evidently were not notified of the change.

Valentine Heffner voted in the name of Daniel Kelly at poll 25. He and a companion then went to 436 East Queen-street, changed their coats, changed hats for caps and proceeded to two different booths. This was sworn to by Trustee Loob in the Police Court. Heffner was fined $100 on two charges. At another poll the negative scrutineer became alarmed because the personators were coming is so fast and sent word to the Liquor Committee room not to send up any more or they would be averted.

And They Fled. At poll 59 two young men applied for balkots in the names of Thos. Edwards an William Warner. They were both arrestilliam Warner. They were both arrest-but protested that they were the gen-ie voters. The poll clerk was sent to estigate, but while he was gone they investigate, but while he was gone they bolted and the deputy and affirmative scrutineer chased them for a distance down the tineer chased them for a distance down the street.

Mr. Mills alleges further that about noon in a barber shop on West Queen-street two men, who had some liquor in them, talked freely about the places where they had been personators. One of them had his moustache removed to conceal his ideatity. They called a third man in from the street and, after speaking as to where they would go next, one said "I will not vote again until I get my dinner or a drink of beer." Then they changed hats and left. The same afternoon a bartender came in to get shaved and told the barber that he had put in 12 votes. He voted three times across the street, and applied for a fourth ballot when they wanted to swear him. There are a number of other personations reported at this poll.

Refused to Arrest Him.

Refused to Arrest Him. A. Cunningham of 811 Bathurst-stree voted about 9 o'clock and a little late three men entered the booth and one aske for a ballot in the name of Mr. Cunnil ham. The scrittineer insisted on the psonator being arrested, but the deputy fused and after some minutes the person tor left. The second party, who had it ter left. The second party, who had ast ened to the dispute, then applied for a ballet in the name of Joseph A. Genereaus of 216 Albany-avenue, the well-known reastate agent, who stands about 6 feet inches. The personator, being a short fellow, was repudiated and the scrutineer ask ed for his arrest, but the deputy again refused.

Had Too Big a Roll, and 14 fraudulent ballots. One man got a zallot, marked it, and there were so many lallots in the bundle after be had folded it over, that he berely succeeded in getting it over, that he berely succeeded in getting it fur the slit of the box. At poll 54 there were 9 personations and 12 fraudulent ballots. At poll 62 there were 8 personations and 9 counterfeit ballots in one bundle. At poll 82 there were a number of personations and the ballots in the box exceeded the votes cast by eight. There were 10 ballots without initials, but shey were all counted.

Mr. Mills cited these cases as only samples of the work done in South Toronto to defeat the Liquor Act. He claims that there are many other cases equally glaring and criminal, which could be given in detail, showing that there was an organized conspiracy on the part of those opposed to the Liquor Act to cause its defeat.

THE EVENT OF THE SEASON IN UPHOLSTERIES AND High-Grade Silk Damask French Tapestry Coverings, Silk Dra-

By far the biggest event ever occurring in the Drapery and Upholstery Section of this store begins Monday, when, for three days, we hold a half-priced sale of highclass Coverings and Draperies. Fashions change in these goods, as in everything else. New things keep coming in, and this store, ever in the van, feels called upon always to show the newest; consequently, the aristocrats of yesterday in Furniture Coverings and Indoor Draperies can receive but scant courtesy to-day. We clear everything in the department that strikes us as blocking the way for newer goods-no matter how artistic or valuable it may be in itself-at a fraction of its worth between now and stock-taking next

Never had the mistress of a pretty home such a chance to renovate or improve it as this. Never had the professional upholsterer a better chance to lay in a stock of "specials." We mention four of the principal lines herewith.
