MARINERS CONSIDER SCHOONER EMERALD LOST FOR THIRTEEN DAYS SHE HAS BEEN UNREPORTED PROBABLY FOUNDERED DURING RECENT STORMS

With the Heavy Cargo She Carried She Hadn't the Ghost of Chance, Says One.

A man who has a practical and extensive knowledge of lake craft and lake navigation, told "The World" that he did not think the "Emerald" had a ghost of a chance, unless she had managed to get in behind some island, or in some bay, and was wind-bound. But this is improbable for thirteen days have passed since she was reported anywhere. There was a chance that the squall may have driven her so far out of her course, and that she was so much disabled that she might be able to only make slow headway, in case she was trying to make a port. But if she was so badly injured that she was leaking she would not stay afloat very long, owing to her heavy cargo.

BERRY LITTLE HOPE.

In the opinion of marine men, there seems to be every reason to fear that disaster has overtaken the schooner Emerald, which left for Fairhaven three weeks ago last Tuesday for a cargo of coal for the Toronto Electric Light Company. Those on board were Capt. McMaster of this city; his son Walter; John Slight, mate, of Port Hope; John Selkirk of Picton, 40 years of age, married, and with two children; John Bohman of Picton, about 24, unmarried; a Frenchman from Odgersburg, and the woman cook, Mrs. Wright of St. Catharines.

The recent tempestuous weather on the lake is thought to be too much for the schooner. It is said that the Emerald reached within 25 miles of this city and then had to put in to Charlotte, which port she left a week ago last Sunday, about 4 p.m., where Capt. McMaster was seen by Capt. Van Vliet of the Van Allen, now in Toronto harbor, which left about 5:30, and which an hour later exchanged salutes with the ill-fated craft. The Emerald then ran off into the open lake, about nine miles from Charlotte. About midnight a heavy storm blew up from the south-east with rain and then had to put in a few hours later. She was rated A-2 at last spring's inspection, had a capacity of 100 tons of coal; was owned by Capt. McMaster, and cost about $6000. Altogether she was eighteen years ago, at Port Dalhousie, she was equipped for a sea-worthy.

How Many Have Reached Home?

Capt. Van Vliet, who says he expects she was a three-master—may have fallen to the deck, smashing holes, through which the high seas, raising the waves, would cause the boat to founder. There is a considerable boat traffic even at this time of the year from the Welland Canal to Kingston, and a good live-saving service along the south shore, but the Emerald was hardly better than the float in that part of the lake and its whereabouts are unknown.

Hadn't the Ghost of Chance?

Another mariner, more optimistic, thought that the strong north-west gales may have caused the Emerald to drift along to some secluded spot, awaiting favorable winds to come back. Last night a visitor to Mrs. McMaster said that from the train, at Port Hope, a schooner was to be seen out in the lake, heading her way westward, but as there were several schooners in service little hope can be raised on this point.

Was a Well-Known Sailor.

Capt. McMaster is about 50 years of age and has been sailing out of Toronto for about five years, previous to which time he lived at Deseronto. He owned and sailed the schooner Emerald and Atlantic, securing the Emerald three years ago. He was a member of the Toronto Yacht Club, and in this season sailed the lake for the first time, for the winter season. Before he was with the Rathbun Company at Deseronto, Capt. McMaster leaves a wife Mrs. Mary McMaster, daughter of Thomas Carter of Deseronto.

CAPTAIN McMMASTER OF SCHOONER EMERALD AND HIS SON WALTER.

Chicago Welcoming Cattle Canadian Well to the Fore

Secretary Wilson of the U.S. Promises to Come to Guelph Fat Stock Show.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—(Staff Special.)—Canada, and the Canadians are much in evidence around the big pavilion where the International Live Stock Exposition opens to-morrow. Hundreds of stalls hold the fine animals from all parts of the Dominion, and the Maple Leaf and the Union Jack are gracefully entwined amid the decorations. While Ontario and Manitoba have the largest number of exhibits from Canada, the Dominion generally is well represented. The sheep of Canada are here in the largest number, but carriage and harness horses, heavy draught animals and blooded cattle are well represented from Canada. In fact, the public is exhibiting the most marked interest in the exhibits from across the line, and the tributes paid to the sagacity and the care of the Canadian breeders and to the Dominion generally is sufficient to make the citizen of the British possessions to the north proud of the progress of his country in this branch of its industry.

Its Large Scope.

The association is really composed of the breeders of the States, Canada and England, but official representatives are here from Mexico, Brazil and many other countries. The breeders of the States are giving very particular attention to the Canadian exhibits in an effort to prevent the importation of the prize, as they did last year. The exhibitors are all of the highest quality, experts freely admit the Dominion leads. There are over 12,000 exhibits from all parts of the world. W. S. Ferguson of Scotland, who is here to judge the bulls, goes to honor the Guelph show in this respect. Many of the exhibits here are to be sent to Guelph, and many of the officials from that city are in the crowd to Guelph following the close here next week.

Hon. John Dryden, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Mr. Hodson and other Canadian officials are expected to participate in the opening to-morrow.

Many governors of states are here and live stock associations from many sections of the world will hold meetings during the exposition. The Secretary of Agriculture for the United States is here, and it is expected to be in Guelph with several other American officials. He is expected to inspect the Canadian animals with his inspection of the exhibitors, and to fill him with amazement. He knew Canadian breeders were so far in the lead of the boasted blooded herd books of the States.

Prize for Canada.

Mr. Ferguson, the Scotch expert, observed that the World's fair display of animals from Canada was the best ever gathered for an exhibition, and would establish for the time the high percentage of first prizes. Street fairs are selling buttons with the Maple Leaf and the Union Jack entwined around the neck of the King and the Queen. They are freely purchased by the thousands of exhibitors residing here and the hundreds of visitors from the Dominion. Altogether the Canadian contingent displays a case of the swelled head, so warmly they are greeted and so loudly is the flag of the country cheered, to say nothing of the comment the preliminary inspection of their exhibits has provoked.

The Dexter pavilion is supplemented by a circus tent, covering two blocks, for the overflow.

THAT CAMPAIGN FUND.

Mr. Whitney hasn't much to be thankful for to Mr. J. W. Flavell, his newspaper, The News, or its editor, Mr. J. S. Willison.
Mr. Flavell has supplied information to Mr. Willison to the effect that Mr. Whitney in 1902 had a conference with the members of the Ontario Conservative Association, an association of "eight or ten prominent citizens of Toronto, naturally of Conservative leaning," who had decided to organize to combat corruption, and had raised a fund for that purpose. At this conference we are told "Mr. Whitney asked the members of the association to take charge of the campaign fund in connection therewith" (the election of 1902). This was assented to, and all told $28,800 was raised "and expended in the elections and the postscript thereafter."

These facts are admitted, rather are confessed and corroborated by the further confession of two Conservatives who were retained in the election and who resided in court that they pocketed the appropriation made them out of this fund.

Mr. Willison and Mr. Flavell are bound to go further and tell us who made up "the group," "the eight or ten prominent citizens of Toronto, naturally of Conservative leaning," who supplied the $28,800 spent by the association in behalf of Mr. Whitney and his friends. The Globe is using this confession with somewhat deadly effect—rather could use it with deadly effect were it not seeking to cover up the charges of corruption made against the Liberals and Mr. Ross. The Globe says two things: That even if the fund were not used corruptly other money from another fund may have been used corruptly, and that these gentlemen of the association in doing the legitimate left their friends of the party free to raise funds for things not legitimate. The Globe also says and says truly that because money is legitimately spent it does not follow that there was no corrupt understanding that the contributors of the $28,800 were to receive recognition or consideration for their contributions from Mr. Whitney or his party if they came into power. In other words "The Globe hints and Saturday Night in effect states that the $28,800 were of the class known as "corporation grafters." It is even said that some of these contributors gave much larger sums to the Liberals, and that while Mr. Whitney's friends confess that he drew out of the corporation fund in a little tin cup or pannikin the Liberals got tubs and patent pails full from the same source. But this The Globe and Mr. Ross stoutly deny. Mr. Willison at least admits to the tin-cup draught. To remove this impression, that the Globe is trying to create Mr. Willison is bound to expand his history of the fund question. He must name his men, and the public will soon ascertain their status as "corporationists."

In the meantime let the public not be led away by the confession made by Mr. Willison that no fund was raised for the Liberals. Mr. Willison in an article published in The News of Feb. 2, 1902, says:

Monopolist and franchise-holding corporations, large financial institutions, whose success depends on the use of certain natural resources, and other capital enterprises, are undeniably unpopular with the public, and unquestionably on good terms with every government in the country. They are denounced with freedom and are given what they want. The Liberal party has tried itself on its championship of the plain people; the Ontario government is handling the Niagara power question in the interests of capitalists, who wish to be the middlemen to take toll of the public. The Liberal party boasts itself the founder of municipal institutions in Ontario; the Ontario legislature refused to allow Toronto to protect itself from excessive charges for electrical energy, and the Ontario government gave the permission to the city to elect the representatives of two Toronto monopolies. It would be difficult for a capitalist active in association with corporations to find an Ontario constituency which would elect him. It would be still more difficult for a capitalist to find the electors of Ontario to prevent a group of capitalists from getting a charter upon which they had their desire. It is a fixed principle that a Canadian government will be friendly to capitalists and corporations.

The reason for this primarily is that the capitalists know how to manage governments and the parties which back the governments or may back future governments are not so curious art. It has been developed to a high pitch of efficiency, and it is practiced with superb success.

The call issued thru a citizens committee for a meeting of citizens to discuss the constitution of the Board of Education for the ensuing year resulted in a large and representative gathering at Association Hall last night, 1902.
