PROHIBITION SCARES ANXIOUS POLITICIANS

Can't Go Around With Keg on One Shoulder and Bucket of Water on the Other.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Did you ever see anything get to the front so fast as prohibition has within the last year or so, and without the help of some of the statesmen on the hill who hardly know which way to turn? For a time they thought the agitation was going to be confined to the south, and the northern gentlemen who have profited more or less through the help of the breweries and distilleries in their districts looked on complacently.

It is different now. The trouble has broken out in many states of the north, and no one knows in whose district it may make its next appearance. If there is anything that scares the ordinary congressman it is for a question to arise that involves more or less morality. A congressman is always strong in public for morality. To hear most of them speak you would think they were preachers. They cry out againstunkenness and other evils in stentorian tones, but they have heretofore been in the habit of getting after the voters, no matter where they were to be found.

Now a man has to know just where he is at before he can get in his seat in the capital and show for prohibition or shout against it. He wants the church vote and he wants the saloon vote. It is mighty hard to carry a keg of beer on one shoulder and a bucket of water on the other.

Watching the Signs. There are signs that the question will become national, too. So far it has been limited to cities and states, but the effort to throw the preceding holds of prohibition over the district bids fair to land the whole problem into the national convention, and that would be very unpalatable to the politicians. It is funny if both parties adopted a prohibition plank? Stranger things have happened. That, however, is going to be avoided if there is any way of doing so. There are some men of much influence in both houses who are putting forth every effort simply to choke off the matter without any publicity. Such a thing can be done. If they can just smother it in committee then they hope to smother it successfully in the conventions.

Congressmen are practically a unit for temperance and some of them are boldly for prohibition. Few congressmen drink and those who ever drink to excess can be numbered on the only partially digested. There was a time in Washington when you could pick out the stegmen by their convivial, not to say blabbing, and it was considered no compulsion to see a line of representatives and senators before a bar. Both houses had their special bar in the capitol. Bottles and glasses were part of the equipment of committee rooms. Old time policemen will tell of helping many members to their homes, some of them famous in the history of our country. But it is bad form to drink now and far from being reputable to drink excess.

ALLOW CANDIDATES TO PAY HIRE OF RIGS

Members of Legislature Feel That the Law Should Be Changed.

When the legislature resumed its work in the evening it turned its attention to the act respecting the registration of candidates. The act provides that the committee without discussion, Col. Clarke (Centre Bruce) objected to the clause which requires men and school teachers are not disqualified from voting by removal from a constituency. It was making an undue exception, he said. A. G. MacKay thought that bank clerks should be included. Mr. Whitney pointed out that clergymen and school teachers were compelled to change their residence, while with others it was more a matter of choice.

Mr. MacKay objected to a ballot being numbered in cases of impersonation where the right voter claims his ballot. Under the act this extra ballot is to be numbered and the number on the ballot will show if it was carried away by the Dominion Agent, and the clause was allowed to stand for consideration.

When the question of election expenses was under consideration, the members settled down to a heart to heart talk on the payment of livery bills. The law prohibits such payments. Col. Hugh Clark remarked that every member paid such bills, and that some arrangement should be permitted for their payment. Mr. MacKay also thought that the candidate might be allowed to contract at a statutory rate for half of the conveyances in a livery. With this Mr. Foy was rather sympathetic. Mr. Hyslop thought the rural drivers should also be entitled to remuneration. The clause was allowed to stand for consideration.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S SERMONS.

Editor World: Re letter of "Enquirer" in the World of Feb. 25, concerning Pastor Russell's sermons, now being published in your paper.

Since "Enquirer" difficulty appears to be respecting the origin of evil, kindly permit me to offer a few thoughts in support of Pastor Russell's inference that its origin can be traced to Satan.

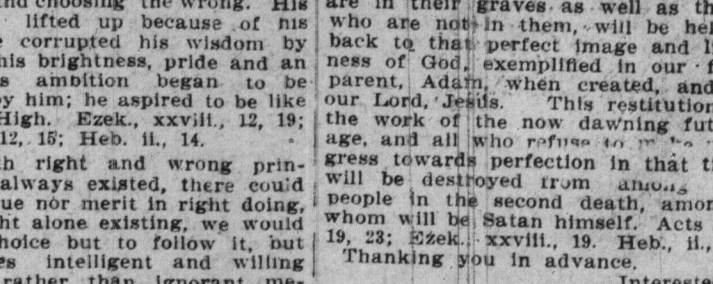

In the first place we must distinguish between "evil principles" and "evil practices." Good and evil as principles have always existed, and must always exist, but the various orders of spirit beings, archangel, cherubim, seraphim, angel, etc., as well as God's human creature, "man," were all created in God's own image and likeness (Gen. 1, 26; v. 1; Ezek. xxxviii, 15), now, however, an image and likeness of God, so far as the body and mind of man is not an image of God in this respect, and altho the various spirit orders named above have spirit bodies like unto God's, yet He is vastly different from them in that He is of a much higher order or rank above all other natures immortal living. (1 Tim. vi, 15, 16.)

We ask, then, what does the expression "the image of God," mean, and we answer that it has reference, not to man physically, but rather to his mentally and morally and to spirit beings likewise. We define it thus: "An image (as created) is the being, including Satan, were created in an image or likeness of God in that (1st) they possess those mental and moral faculties which enable them to distinguish between right and wrong principles commonly called conscience; (2nd) they also possess the liberty of choice as to which principle they will practice, commonly called free moral agency."

It being true, then, that right and wrong principles always did and always will exist, and it also being true that Satan was created an image of God in that he could distinguish between those principles, and was at perfect liberty as to which he should follow; as also were our first parents, Adam and Eve, as well as all spirit beings, we ask, Who was the first of all this number to reject the right principle and practice the wrong? From the Scriptural account (and that is the only one worthy of our notice) we understand that Satan was the first to defect from following that which was right and choosing the wrong. His heart was lifted up because of his beauty, he corrupted his wisdom by reason of his brightness, pride and an unrighteous ambition began to be practised by him; he aspired to be like the Most High, Ezek. xxviii, 12, 13; Isa. xiv, 12, 13; Heb. ii, 14.

Had both right and wrong principles not always existed, there could be no virtue nor merit in right doing, and the right alone existing, we would have no choice but to follow it, but God desires intelligent and willing obedience, rather than ignorant mechanical service, and so He has, before us right and wrong, at the same time giving us perfect liberty of choice, and gives us to understand that the choosing of the right will bring its own reward of life and blessing, while the choosing of the wrong will bring its reward of death, Deut. xxx, 15. So, then, in answer to "Enquirer," we would say that evil principles have always existed, but evil began to be practised by our great adversary, Satan, it continues to be practised by those whom he has deceived, but, in the time, after the bitter lesson of the exceeding sinfulness and undesirability of sin has indelibly impressed itself upon the minds of all, God will again take up his rod of authority, which He has temporarily dropped, and all the willing of mankind, those who

Cigaret Stops Car.

"Bobby" Lendrum, ex-Seagram "jock" and a cigaret tied up Churchill-street car 94 for three minutes. Conductor 821 objected to "Bobby" occupying a seat on the plush with the cigaret performing the interior, wherefore the car stood opposite the public library at 7.30 last night till 10.15, to relieve the impatience of the 15 passengers, snuffed out the "dope-stick" and the car went on.

If You Sleep Poorly, Read This?

Nothing drains and strains the constitution so much as insomnia. It allows too little time for the body to recuperate. The cause nine times ten is from the stomach. It may be gas, from fermentation—perhaps food only partially digested. When you awaken, get up and take twenty drops of Nervine in sweetened water. This corrects the stomach trouble at once, quiets the heart if palpitating, gives you an immediate sense of comfort and refreshment. Nervine has assisted many through back to health and as a sleep inducer can't be equalled. Get some Nervine from your druggist to-day and your next sleepless night will be a short one. This advice has been followed so often with good results that it is almost certain to be successful in your case, too.
