A spirited attack on the course taken by the Ministerial Association to settle the Dr. Carman-Rev. Mr. Jackson controversy was made by Rev. J. E. Starr in the pulpit of Berkeley-street Methodist Church last night. The pastor also created somewhat of a sensation by charging the Toronto Conference with having been swayed by the predilections of Methodists of wealth in appointing Rev. Dr. Jackson.

The speaker said that in the interests of Methodism some things should be said about the cause of the "explosion." The cause was so small a after.

British Conservatives, having committed themselves to a definite policy, are not likely to be influenced by the scope or method of American tariff revision. Their own work is cut out for them here, and cannot be neglected when they return to power.

The moral drawn from the elections in Scotland by The Manchester Guardian, the most consistent organ of Liberalism, is that protection is commanding the support of an interval of the support of the face.

According to her own version of the manchester Guarding, is that protection is commanding the support of an increasing proportion of the rising generation of voters, whose sympathy is excited by the idea of self-sacrifice for the cause of imperial unity and whose blood is stirred by the cry. "Let us tax the foreigner." This is followed by the confession that the Liberais must labor sleeplessly for the defence of free trade by scattering tracts among the masses and by ceaseless platform activity, since the tariffer ferform candidates are already talking themselves hoarse in a systematic campaign or education. The country is likely to have as much economic discussion as it can stomach. Predict General Election.

What has always been the matter with Toronto, and always will be the matter until some earthquake occurs, is the utter lack of foresight. Yonge-street is a lane that might have been widened at a profit to the city 20 years ago before the Confederation. Life and other buildings were put up. It could be done yet by expropriating, not a mere strip, but the whole property on the frontage to be widened, and reselling it as is done in other cities. Toronto has not learned to see twenty-five years ahead yet. In fact Toronto never looks 25 months ahead.

A quarter of a century is a fair slice out of any life and a visit to Chicago after 22 years to one who has spent most of the interval in Toronto suggests many comparisons.

Three years' residence from 1984 till 1887 gave a fair conception of the Chicago of that day, relatively much in the same stage of development as Toronto at present. It is true there were 600,000 people then and only half that in Toronto now, but in mahy respects Toronto is standing where Chi-
