SUPERIOR PAINLESS DENTISTRY!

"There is a world wide cry against the dentists that they torture their patients. Those of strong physique submit and endure the agony. With a second class this is simply impossible, and thousands of teeth are neglected and lost even though the patients may be able to pay for our most skilful services. Then there is a third class who, after months of mental torture in anticipation, finally come into our hands, and with nerves strung to a hurtful point, pass through the ordeal, but at what a cost! We do not sufficiently consider the consequences of shock in the dental chair, yet undoubtedly many suffer for months and even years from injuries to the nervous system received whilst in our hands.

The greatest duty of our profession today is to discover and adopt a mode of painless performing our operations."

A. of the maritime provinces, to be held in Fredericton from Oct. 22 to 25. A very fine programme has been arranged for the main session and there will also be special conferences.

Rev. A. A. Graham was greatly pleased with the returns from Harcourt, Kent county, where the saloons were voted of the parish by an overwhelming majority yesterday. Mr. Graham visited Harcourt during the campaign. The temperance forces, he says, were splendidly organized.

A Telegraph reporter went up to the Every Day Club Autumn Fair last evening to get a report of the proceedings. Incidentally, he won a pair of gloves at the excellent table and an umbrella at the bean toss. He left the rest for this evening. At the request of a number of ladies who are ardent suffragettes, a vote on the most popular ticket will be started this evening. The ladies show their political aptitude by their interest in "the man with the pull." Regulation ballot boxes are used.

After the prisoners had been disposed of this morning in the police court, a motherly woman, worrying over something, stepped into the court room and asked that she be allowed to pay her son's fine in order that he would be set free. It developed that her son, Edward McHugh, who yesterday morning was sentenced to a fine of $8 or 30 days jail on a charge of drunkenness. His mother pleaded with Judge Ritchie and he ordered McHugh to be brought into court. The prisoner was brought in, appearing very downcast, and shamefacedly looked at his mother, who was standing by the table, in tears. McHugh promised to behave better in future, and after giving him some excellent advice, His Honor allowed him to go with his mother, who paid his fine apparently with good cheer.

LAST CRIB OF NEW WHARF PLACED IN POSITION TONIGHT

With tonight's tide it is expected that the last crib of the new Clark wharf will be placed in position. It was expected that this morning's tide would have seen it in place, but Mr. Clark said the water was not high enough. The crib was moved to within three feet of its proper position, where it rests very evenly, and no trouble is anticipated in moving it into its place tonight.

THE CHANGE OF FRONT (Sackville Post.)

The St. John Sun, which bowed down and worshipped the image of Hon. Mr. Emmerson when that gentleman was minister of railways, is singing an entirely different song today. Then Mr. Emmerson was the greatest railway manager that ever happened. Today the Sun is crying out for company management. Why not reinstate Mr. Emmerson, if his management was so great a success only a few years ago? The principal owner of the Sun and Chronicle is Mr. Pearson of Halifax. The Sun has at one time or another fit to boom the member for Westmorland—there was something in it for him; but today Mr. Emmerson has nothing to give in the way of political favors, and Mr. Pearson has therefore turned his attention to other things, and just now, for reasons best known to himself, he would like to see the People's road handed over to a company, whether the C. P. R., Mackenzie & Mann or to some other company in which Mr. Pearson himself would be largely interested, is not known. Perhaps the Sun will disclose the secret one of these days.

POLICE COURT

Calf Moose Case Dismissed—Trouble in Restaurant and Sequel in Court

The case of Peters & Rice, charged with having in their possession a portion of moose unlawfully, was again brought up in the police court this morning. The matter was dismissed. H. H. Pickett, appearing for the defendants, asked that his honor dismiss the case or else deliver judgment, as his client could not afford to come up to court so often as he had to do. Judge Ritchie said that as had no word from the other parties, he would dismiss the case, but he said that he understood the man who shot the moose in Queens county might be brought here for trial.

In the court this morning there was the usual array of prisoners charged, for the most part, with drunkenness, and Judge Ritchie speedily disposed of them. Samuel Barker, and Englishman, charged with being drunk in the I. C. R. yard yesterday, received a severe lecture and was fined $5.

Michael McKeown, charged with being drunk in Sheffield street, was also fined. "He who he was 'that very drunk' had 'just a few glasses of beer.' Sergt. Campbell told of making the arrest and Judge Ritchie told him that his name was Melancon.

Duncan McKay, when a charge of drunkenness was read to him, said he had just come from "down east" and was in the depot waiting for his train, when he was arrested.

"You have no business there in a drunken state, even if you come from Washington," said his honor—"38 or 30 days."

Andrew Magee and John Clancy pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but their memory failed when the charge of using profane and abusive language was preferred against them. Magee was charged with ordering lunches, amounting to 75 cents, in the "Do Drop In" restaurant in St. John street, and not paying for them. This charge was made by the proprietor, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, and she also charged Clancy with using abusive language to her.

Mrs. McLaughlin said that Magee and Clancy, accompanied by another man named Theo. Cairns, came into the restaurant yesterday afternoon and ordered lunches, which amounted to 75 cents, for which Magee said he would pay. When she came to collect the money, Magee told her that he had already paid her, giving her a $2 bill. This she denied, and on Magee still persisting in his statement, she called Sergt. Baxter to arrest him. Meantime, she said, Clancy had been calling her names—names such as were not fit to be used in the dens of Sheffield street," she said this morning.

Sergt. Baxter, who accompanied Mrs. McLaughlin's testimony and told of making the arrest. His honor imposed a fine of $8 on each of the men for the charge of drunkenness, and one of a similar amount on the charges of profanity. He also told Magee that he might be proceeded against on a charge of assaulting and (the judge) would also investigate a charge of breaking windows, which had been made against him some time ago by an old man named Cooper, on the Marsh bridge.

THE LATE W. I. WHITING (By H. L. Spencer.)

Except among a few of St. John's oldest residents the news of the death of W. I. Whiting in the city of New York, which was received last Saturday, was the occasion of but infrequent comment, because, though a native of Kings Co., and for several years a respected and successful business man of St. John, he left here a good many years ago, soon after the great fire of 1877—and since then had been but an infrequent visitor in his native province. A large majority of Mr. Whiting's contemporaries here have preceded him on his journey to the "Great Beyond," and the younger generation have heard of him but casually or not at all. In more respects than one Mr. Whiting was a notable man. In his business on South Street he was capable and alert, and his integrity was never questioned. He broke no pledges, he never turned his back on a friend, he was jealous of the good name of the city, and intensely Canadian in his sentiments. Mr. Whiting was born in Kingston, Kings Co., and while still a very young man he went to St. John, to join in the battle of life. As a general merchant and ship owner, he was quite successful, but he was a persistent reader of old and curious books, of which he probably had a large collection than any other resident of the city, with the exception, perhaps, of the late James McMillan, and after the fire of 1877 had swept away much of his property, he resolved to live the remainder of his life among books; and with several cases of rare books that had been stored in his den over his store on South Street, he removed to New York, and opened what became later, according to the New York Sun, the largest Ancient and Modern book-store in the world. So far as we are advised, his enterprise was a financial success, but financial success was not his sole aim; he wanted to live his life in his own way, and it is to be hoped he succeeded in doing so. Mr. Whiting first established himself at 27 Beaver street, but later removed to 62 New street, where it is said, among the books that were stored from floors to ceilings, the uninitiated were as liable to go astray as they might be in the catacombs at Rome.

Mr. Whiting was himself a writer, satirical, cynical and humorous, of no little note. The writer has before him three of his productions—"Harlequinade," "Pegasus to Purgatory, via Wall Street," and "The Crowning City."

The following lines are reproduced as a sample of Mr. Whiting's verse.

"Mothers of Kingston! daughters hear! Hungry I seek my childhood home. Oh! give me that substantial cheer That oft ye gave ere I did roam; Ah! meals by you, there's none can beat them, And I'm the daisy that can eat them.

Fathers of Kingston! sons, attend! And freely let your pity flow; Like, yet unlike, hath been your friend 'Till him who went from Jericho After his thieves, Samaritan. But I have never yet found one.

But such is life; some up, some down, Some play the fool, and some the sage, Some act the king, and some the clown, And such hath been in every age; But come what may, oh, never fret, But pray you may be happy yet."

Mr. Whiting was never married. An alarm from box 2 was responded to this morning about 9:0 o'clock by the fire department, the cause having been a blaze in a shed at the rear of the roofing establishment of G. S. Fisher & Co., King St. The fire was thought to have caught from a spark from a neighboring chimney. The roof was quite badly burned. The shed was used as a place for mixing materials used in roofing purposes. There was no insurance.
