SERUM SEEMS CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

New York University Medical School Has Achieved Remarkable Success.

(New York Times) No more pain and no more crippling because of rheumatism are a possibility of the future, judging from the results obtained in the last four years from an entirely new method of treatment of the disease at the clinic of New York University Medical School, First Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street. This treatment consists of a series of serum injections administered twice a week.

More than 5,000 cases have been handled with 80 per cent. improved to a point just this side of what can be termed a positive cure, according to a statement from the school yesterday. Many of the patients, however, have reached the point of calling it a cure because they no longer suffer pain and the conditions which hindered or prevented their movements have entirely disappeared.

The serum used is a graduated series of streptococcus viridans, which the doctors in the clinic acknowledge to be the underlying cause of rheumatism. A small amount of the serum is used at the beginning and gradually built up to a comparatively huge dose. At least twenty treatments are administered and the immediate results are astonishing in some cases. One man who was brought to the clinic two weeks ago could not walk a step, and recently he hopped off the floor with both feet. This improvement followed four doses of the serum.

The doctors in charge of the clinic regard his reaction as an unusually quick one and due to his particular body acceptance of the serum. Other patients show an equally great improvement, but after a longer period of treatment. From 100 to 110 patients are treated on Monday and Friday afternoons. The patients vary from young men and women in their early twenties to those who are well past the half century mark.

Chronic sufferers from rheumatism, or "multiple infection arthritis," as medical science calls the disease, have heretofore received various kinds of treatment, ranging from baking the affected part and many forms of massage to the home remedy of rubbing with snake oil. The latter was and still is credited with magic healing powers in backwoods sections of the country.

LEPROSY AMENABLE TO TREATMENT

(United States Public Health Service.) Leprosy is in a measure amenable to treatment, says the U. S. Public Health Service. During the last ten years (1912-21) a considerable percentage of the lepers segregated at the Kalaupapa Hospital near Honolulu and on Molokai Island have been paroled; that is, they have been released as being "not a menace to the public health," but have been required to report for examination at certain intervals which vary with the individual case. Of those paroled about thirteen per cent. have relapsed and have returned to segregation; but about one-fourth of these were later paroled for the second time. In all, 242 lepers were paroled; thirty-one relapsed and seven of these were later paroled. Ten were completely released from parole.

The chance of arresting the disease decreased with the length of time that it had been allowed to go without treatment unless this period was seven years or more. Apparently patients who survive without treatment for seven years possess powers of resistance that slightly increase their chances for marked improvement under treatment.

Those who desire it are treated with chaulmoogra oil and its derivatives. The parole system was begun in 1912 and has worked admirably. Those friends that the conditions existing at the hospital were good; and the mere fact that they had been released has shown that segregation might lead to cure and not to lifelong confinement, as it almost invariably did previous to 1912. As a consequence many lepers, instead of concealing the disease up to the last possible moment (and thereby spreading it through the community) are now surrendering of their own accord and taking treatment. This earlier surrender and earlier treatment hasten the degree of improvement that will secure parole and will later, perhaps, complete release. About seventy per cent. of these who have been paroled were in segregation for less than two years.

Hair Often Ruined by Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Mulafied coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and grassless, and is better than anything else you can use. Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. You can get Mulafied coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you "Mulafied." Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.
