One of the most remarkable golfing drives on record was that made recently by Frank E. Dennis, professional to the Crewe Club at Haslington, England, the ball coming to rest 415 yards from the tee. The drive was witnessed by two players, was measured by the green-keeper and afterward by a schoolmaster in the employ of the club secretary, and found to be correct. To Defend Titles.
Washington, March 21.—Riflemen to defend the world's marksmanship title for the United States in the 1922 international matches in Milan, June 9, will be selected by open competition among army, navy, marine corps, national guard and civilian contestants, so the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice announced. The try-out shoot will be held on the Marine Corps Rifle Range at Quantico, Va., May 8, 4, 5 and 6. The scores made there will determine the personnel of the American team, which is expected to leave for Cherbourg May 16 on the Shipping Board liner Old North State. They will return to the United States about July 4. The American team, in winning the world's championships in the international team and individual rifle matches and for shooting in the standing, kneeling and prone positions at Lyons, France, in 1921, administer the first defeat in eighteen years to Swiss contenders.

ATHLETES MAY BE PAID WHILE LAID UP,
SAYS A. W. COVEY

The larger portion of the time at last night's meeting of the City Baseball League representatives was taken up with discussion with A. W. Covey, president of the M. P. B. A. U. of C., of various points arising from the demand for affidavits, which has been causing so much agitation in amateur ranks. The answers given by him have cleared the local atmosphere to some extent, but plans for the formation of the city league under the same rules as last season have not yet definitely decided on. The arguments between representatives of the teams and Mr. Covey waxed hot at times, but as a result of the meeting the continuance of the three teams together in the amateur ranks was brought nearer to a realization than it has been since the question of signing the affidavit was first raised. Mr. Covey will attend a meeting of the St. Peter's team in the near future to try to clear up all questions now under dispute.

Last night's meeting opened in the Commercial Club rooms, in Prince William street, with Frank White, president of the city league, in the chair. A report of the meeting of the committee which had interviewed Mr. Covey on Saturday was given to the members. Mr. Covey questioned Mr. White, saying that the Canadian and United States amateur associations had the same rules, but the Canadian association was trying to carry out rules in a straightforward manner without trying to find loopholes to escape carrying out the spirit and idea under which the rules were formulated. He also said that the association would accept an athlete's affidavit without question, even if it were dictated by another person, unless that person was introduced against the athlete other than the single affidavit.

Mr. Covey wished that the various amateur clubs would fight the attempt of the independents to ruin amateur sport with accusations, by flatly contradicting false reports and asking the originator to prove his charge or get out of sport. In reply to a query, Mr. Covey said that he had received the sanction of the executive of the local branch of the amateur association and of the Canadian association to carry out the plan of securing affidavits. He also announced that the president of the Quebec branch had decided to insist on the signing of affidavits. One man at the meeting contended that these men could not honestly take the affidavit, Mr. Covey said that they could, but if their consciences would not permit them to take the affidavit after being told officially that this did not hinder them doing so, a clause containing the time and nature of the accident could be inserted in the form, specifying also the amount received, and these notations which would show they were acting in good faith. Mr. Covey also announced that an athlete could receive up to $150 for a meal without being professionalized, no matter what he actually paid for the meal. He showed that the affidavit only asked that the athlete should be in good standing in 1914 and did not insist that he had never received money, prior to that time. The latter clause, he said, only applied to the period since November, 1919.

Mr. Covey admitted that the original list had contained many prominent local athletes, but he said that several of them were not on the second list, which included only men against whom sworn affidavits had been made. He said that he had 200 names on the second list. Mr. Covey then requested that he be given an opportunity to address the St. Peter's baseball team before they made a definite declaration regarding their policy for the coming season. This offer was promptly accepted by J. Dever and G. McGovern, both of the team. A suggestion to black-list certain managers and promoters of sports, who were said to be trying to ruin amateur sport in the maritime provinces, was introduced at the meeting and received some discussion. No steps were taken, however, to recommend any such drastic action by the amateur authorities, although many of those present seemed to think that it would be a long step to-

New Rival of Horse.
(Toronto Globe.)
In bygone days a pair of turkeys would not have been regarded as having a look-in compared with that lord of the farmyard, the horse. Yet it is said that at a sale in Percy township the other day Dobbin sold for $20 and two turkeys for $18.50.
A correspondent at Warkworth, where the sale took place, suggests that such valuable adjuncts to the farmer's life stock should have every advantage that the horse has had, and believes that turkey veterinarians would be worth while.
