

A Skagway Tragedy.

William Dugan Murders William Wray and then Ends His Own Life.

A Hidden Romance in the Life of the Murderer—The Story of the Crime.

News was brought by the Tees of a tragic murder and suicide which occurred in front of Johnson's saloon at the entrance to the Pacific Coast Co's wharf in the city of Skagway, Alaska, about midnight on Thursday last. William Dugan, a Skagway barber, shot William Wray, and then fired two shots into his own breast and died ere the echoes had ceased to reverberate. Dugan had been in the saloon for some time for six months, and went there from Juneau. He is said to have come from Chicago. His victim, William Wray, was a bartender at the Al-Ki saloon.

The murderer and his victim had been great friends for some time, and were living together, but some time previous to the murder a money matter came up between them, which no doubt had something to do with the tragedy. Two days prior to it, Wray had left the room in which he had been living with Dugan and had been rooming in the saloon building.

They met in the saloon last Thursday evening about 10 o'clock and sat at one of the card tables talking and playing for some time. About 11 o'clock Dugan said: "Come on, Billy, ain't you coming home with me?"

"No," replied Dugan, "I'm going to stay with Johnson (the proprietor of the saloon) to-night."

Wray had told Johnson when arranging to stay there that he had decided to change his room, because Dugan was "getting kind of queer lately" and he was afraid of him.

Dugan became angry and began to abuse him, reminding him of his financial obligations. Wray was silent and Dugan commenced to call him names, which were not exactly polite names, and the saloon-keeper interposed and asked him to stop.

With a parting imprecation upon his erstwhile friend and room-mate, Dugan then made for the door. As he was closing it, Wray stepped to it and called to him: "Don't go away mad, Tom, come and have a beer with me before you go. We were here."

"Oh, go to—," responded the barber, and there was a loud report which drew the attention of the saloon-keeper. Wray staggered back into the saloon into the arms of one, W. E. Babcock, saying faintly, "I'm shot." He was helped to a room off the saloon and placed on a bed.

Almost instantly two shots were heard and when they were in the saloon rushed out they found Dugan lying in a pool of blood at the door.

Three Skagway doctors were called and gave every assistance to the murdered man. For half an hour he seemed to have a chance for life, but gradually his pulse began to beat and he rallied rapidly. It was only a temporary rally, however, for ten hours later he died.

Both men, according to those present, were sober at the time of the lamentable affair.

conclusion to end it. He is said to have been of good family. He may have left them, left, perhaps, the woman he loved years ago, in a fit of anger or under some misunderstanding, and hoped for a reconciliation had been kept alive for all those years by the letters he destroyed when hope was no longer possible.

That he had determined to kill himself on about Thursday evening can therefore be accepted as conclusive. That in this mental condition he should quarrel with his best friend is only natural, or a natural sequence of his unnatural propensity. The ordinary man in his condition, in life, when the friends with whom he had quarrelled offered the olive branch the reply would be "Go to the devil."

Dugan said this impulsively, with his revolver. What did it matter? He would himself be dead in a minute. Perhaps he and his friend would journey to the hereafter together and be friends there.

The main point brought out at the inquest was that the quarrel between the friends was about money. Wray had been out of work for some time and Dugan had shared his cabin with him. He had also loaned him some money; Wray had some machinery which the man had been selling for him. When he got the money he would repay his friend Dugan. Dugan made many inquiries of the marshal as to this business matter. He made the last of the morning of the shooting.

"Yes," it is held, said the marshal. "When will Wray get his money?" "I paid him five minutes ago, $84.90."

When Dugan asked for "payment" in Johnson's saloon that night Wray refused. He naturally abused Wray, Wray said no word. That is the evidence. Dugan felt that his last friend had betrayed him.

William Wray, the victim, was born in New York, and came to the coast some fifteen years ago, being for many years on the Sound, as a machinist especially in Tacoma.

About a year ago he went to Skagway under engagement to go to Juneau to build several steamers for a Tacoma company. The scheme did not materialize, and Wray was left practically stranded. He attached the machinery to recover his wages and secured judgment. The machinery was sold a few days ago, on the morning of the evening on which he was shot he received the money from Marshall Tanner.

When Wray felt that he was dying, he asked his friend Johnson to write down the address of one of his sisters, and to write to her a loving letter, telling her as gently as possible the sad news of his tragic taking off. This seemed to be a favorite idea, and his name and address as given by Wray is: "Miss Edna Wray, 310 Humphrey avenue, Oak Point, Chicago, Ill."

Mr. Johnson has decided to bury the body temporarily in the beach, and Wray's sister, and if she does not decide to send for the remains, he will have them sent to Tacoma for burial. This he says he will do in order to carry out the wish of his deceased friend, who had expressed the hope never to be buried in "this God-forsaken country."

Mr. Tarlax awarded the contracts.

—Jas. G. Young, who has been employed as a bookkeeper in the Mining Record office, was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of larceny. It is alleged that he had embezzled a little girl named Dora Drogg into his office on Monday night and there attempted the offence mentioned. The prisoner is about 30 years of age, while his alleged accomplice is about 12 years of age. Hearing Dr. Fraser's evidence this morning the charge against Young was changed to criminal assault. The great difficulty was experienced in securing the names of the witnesses, and the case was not sufficiently calm to proceed for an hour. The case is proceeding this afternoon. W. H. Langley appearing for the defence.

—It is reported on apparently good authority that a number of Chinese men who arrived in British Columbia recently have been "suggested" to the United States from Vancouver and Victoria during the past fortnight, says the Province. A sloop laden down with contraband Chinese is said to have left Victoria, weeks and comes to this port, where her cargo of human freight was added to considerably. It then made for the south. The United States revenue launch, Scott, has made a fruitless search for the vessel, although evidences of the Celestials in the shape of recent fires was found along the shores of Hood's canal. The United States cutter Grant is still hunting for the vessel, but it is thought that the Celestials are now well along into the interior of Washington state. The present search is the first attempt that has been made for several years to run contraband Chinese into the States by means of vessels.

—In the Speedy Trials Court this morning before Mr. Justice Walkem, Elzeard Tetu was tried for arson. Mr. Frank Higgins appeared to prosecute, and Mr. S. Perry Mills was for the defence. Several witnesses called for the prosecution, who swore that on the 28th of November they saw the accused on the Cedar Hill road. His actions were very suspicious, and later on, at the scene of the fire, a strong smell of coal oil was detected. Evidence was called to show that the accused had insured the house for $400, and it was alleged he had deliberately and with intent set fire to and burned down the house with the intention of defrauding the insurance company. After the case for the crown had closed His Lordship said there was not a title of evidence for several years to run, but that he would therefore dismiss the case. Mr. Higgins objected, and showed strongly that when sufficient cause had been adduced by the prosecution that the accused's actions were suspicious the latter should be placed on his defence and made to prove his innocence. His Lordship allowed him to prove, an alibi for his client, as it would clear his character, which had been smirched in this case. He would prove to the satisfaction of the jury that Tetu had not been at the scene of the fire and was not responsible for the same. His Lordship said that if Mr. Mills desired it he would withdraw the dismissal and hear the case, which is proceeding now.

There was a large attendance and many beautiful floral emblems conveyed by the respective contributors. The arrangements were in charge of W. J. Hanna.

—Curator Faanin, of the Provincial Museum, has just completed mounting a magnificent specimen of bull moose (Alces Americanus) which was presented to the museum by J. T. Studleigh, of London, Eng., last fall. The animal is unusually large even for his class, standing five feet nine inches in height, and being ten feet in length. The specimen will be the aristocrat of the museum, for he is one foot and two inches higher than the great elk which has hitherto occupied the pedestal of premier proportions in the collection. The specimen was secured at Cook's Inlet on the same trip in which Mr. Studleigh secured the mountain sheep, which he also presented to the museum.

—Yesterday afternoon the ladies and friends of the W. C. T. U. assembled at Mrs. D. Spencer's house, Belleville street, when the resignation of Mrs. James McGregor, treasurer of the Union Refuge Home, was received with great regret. Mrs. McGregor has held the position for the past ten years, and her resignation on account of being re-appointed to the position of matron of the British Columbia Protestant Orphanage. The committee of the W. C. T. U. presented Mrs. McGregor with a gold brooch with pendant and a very appropriate address, as a mark of esteem and gratitude for her very valuable services rendered to the Union in the past. Mrs. McGregor suitably responded, and said that no matter where she was called to she would still take a heartfelt interest in their good work.

—On Tuesday a committee of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association met at the Parliament Buildings to consider the most advisable way in which to expend the funds now to the credit of the association, in furthering the interests of the fruit growers of the province. The committee consisted of W. H. Hayward, of Melchieson; C. B. Harris, of Salmon Arm; Henry Kipp, of Chilliwack; and Hon. F. Carter-Cotton, Minister of Agriculture. A lengthy discussion took place, the consensus of opinion being that the fruit growers should be directed particularly to Manitoba and the Northwest Territories as a market for this province's fruit. Unfortunately several shipments made last summer resulted in Winnipeg in a very unsatisfactory state, and this fact has created a prejudice in the minds of the dealers in the prairie province against the British Columbia product. Every effort will be made to overcome this prejudice and to guard against a repetition of this mistake, the aid of the transportation companies in the matter being earnestly requested. Winnipeg is promised the aid of the government, and another meeting will be held early in April to further consider the matter.

Breaking Down

Some people break down gradually and others go to pieces all at once. First there may be a cold or a cough. Some derangement of the stomach appears which impairs nutrition and weakens the vitality. Debility is an invitation which consumption seldom fails to accept. The germs of consumption grow most rapidly in the cases where the system is most broken down. Every one should, therefore, build up the constitution and secure good physical development, particularly of the chest and lungs.

You cannot do this with faulty digestion; your food must nourish you, and your cough must stop. Dr. Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure helps tone up the system and enables you to get rid of the cough. If used as directed, no better medicine can be found. It has cured hundreds of cases of incipient consumption. A typical case, and one among thousands, is that of Nelson Gough, of Strathroy, Ontario, who writes to the S. C. Wells Company, of Le Roy, N. Y., as follows: "When I first began taking Shiloh's Consumption Cure both my lungs were badly affected. One day I met Dr. MacKenzie who asked me what I was taking. I told him, and how it was helping me, he said: 'Keep on strong and healthy to-day.' Shiloh's Consumption Cure is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee that the purchase money will be refunded in case of failure. 25c, 50c, and $1.00. In England is 2d., 3s. 6d. and 4s. 6d."

SLUICING AT ATLIN.
Miners Find a Way of Winter Sluicing Below the Frozen Ground.
—James A. McDonald has returned to Skagway from Atlin. He tells the Skagway papers that in two localities on Pine and Spruce creeks sluicing is carried on and that the parties are doing quite well, notwithstanding the frozen ground and ice-bound streams. A number of men conceived the idea of digging trenches through the gravel to a depth below the frozen ground where they found plenty of seepage water from the gravel for sluicing in a small way. Sinking the sluice boxes to the bottom of these trenches and giving them an extra steep pitch they have been enabled to wash out considerable gravel. They lose nearly all the fine gold, but are doing quite well, considering the difficult conditions under which they are operating. A short time ago four men in this way took out $300 in three days' work, or in a time equal to twelve days' work for one man—$25 a day to the man. Mr. McDonald has been up and down many of the creeks in the district, visiting many of the miners in their cabins and he says it would greatly surprise any one to see the numerous fat buckskin bags of gold they possess. He predicts that the Atlin country will surpass the world by its great richness and the uniformity of the distribution of gold over the whole district.

BORNE TO THE GRAVE.
The Remains of George Byrnes Laid to Rest at Ross Bay.
One of the largest funerals ever witnessed in Victoria took place this afternoon when the mortal remains of the late George Byrnes, who died suddenly at his residence on Monday evening last, was carried to its last resting place in the Ross Bay Cemetery.

The body, which has been lying in the family residence since the sad event, was covered with floral tributes, evidences of the great respect and esteem in which the deceased was held. Among the many tokens of regard sent were beautiful wreaths and crosses from the James Bay Athletic Association, of which he was vice-president; the Pioneer Association, and the Royal Jubilee Hospital Board of Directors.

The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr. Chas. Hayward, and those who carried the deceased to his last resting place were: P. S. Dunlop, Captain Buchanan S. Rogers, Captain Palmer, C. A. Holland, Joseph Wilson, H. D. Helmecken, M. P. P., and D. C. Campbell.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Liver Pills, aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the system and purify the blood.

Hon. Dr. McKechnie, president of the council, came down from Nanaimo yesterday.
