The entrance of the wedding party was the signal for the seductive strains of the wedding march from Lohin.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her maid of bonor, her sister, Miss Mabel Russell, who wore a very fetch-ing gown of mauve and white silk, ing gown of mauve and white silk, daintily trimmed with chiffon and rose point lace. ericton Baptist church, tendering his resignation:

Dear Brothers and Sisters—For upwards of six years it has been my joyful privilege to serve as pastor of this church. It is with heavy heart I now request release from that effect to enter a new field of labor in a neighboring city.

As the years of my pastorate here have lengthened, I have felt the union between us to be one of increasing endearment and tenderness. No words can express my gratitude for your thoughtful and unvarying kindness and your generous appreciation of the work I have tried to do. No one can be so pannfully conscious as I am of the limitation and imperfections of that work, and if any part of it has been done well, it is largely due to favorably by your loyal support and loving sympathy. It is heard to break eway from you, for you live deep in my love. In this I speak for Mrs. Freeman as well as for my-self. But since I have concluded, after earhest and prayerful consideration, that it would be right to enter upon a period of service chewhere, I must rejuctantly request a severance of the pastoral tie. The greatest confidence you can now display toward me will be to accept this resignation without healtancy or any suggestions of reconsideration. As it seems to be important that I should take up the new work as soon as practicable, I have to ask that this resignation come into effect April 15th, 1901.

And now, my dear people, let me assure you that the remembrance of your love will abide in my heart as an inspiration through all the labors of life. I shall server pray for your spiritual enrichment and enlargement. In your sorrows I shall share, in your triumphs I shall rejoice. May God guide you all by His Spirit, in His service, and His eternal glory.
