The loose, seamless back is connected with the loose, double-breasted fronts in shoulder and under-arm seams and above the closing the fronts are reversed in lapels that extend in points beyond the ends of the rolling collar. The sleeves are finished with upturned flaring cuffs.

A dressy outside garment is shaped by pattern No. 8891, which is in eight sizes for ladies from thirty to forty-four inches, bust measure, and costs 1s. 3d. or 30 cents. It is made of velvet but the most slender figures.

A single-breasted box jacket that may be slashed or plain is shaped by pattern No. 8910, which is in seven sizes for ladies from thirty to forty-two inches, bust measure, and costs 1s. or 25 cents. Light tan cloth is shown in the jacket, which has loose fronts and back that extend only to the waist and stand out from the figure. The rolling collar reverses the fronts in lapels and the sleeves stand out in a stylish way at the top. Braid ornaments decorate the sleeves at the wrists, and a single row of braid trims all the other edges of the jacket. The collar will frequently be made of velvet and the lapels and wrists may be faced with the same, if liked.

A lining of silk in either the checked, plaided, striped or shaded variety is always added to jackets of this description and handsome buttons will serve for closing or ornamentation. When an elaborate effect is desired, a handsome braid design may be
