Anna Clayton; -08-The Enquirer after Truth.

"The morn is up again, the dewy morn, With breath all incense, and with check all bloom Laughing the clouds away with playful acorn, And living as if earth contained no tomb,— And glowing into day; we may resume. The march of our existence; may find room. And food for meditation, nor pass by Much that may give us pause, if pondared fittingly."

Almost before the stars paled on the morrow, Elder Clayton entered his study, seated himself in his chair-his old armchairand elevating his feet to the window-sill, was n lost in a perplexing maze of thought. He had not rested well the night before. Every half-hour, until long after the "short came, Mother Clayton aroused him from his dozing to say, that she "would bet anything, if she was in the habit of betting, that that college madcap would entice the girl from their church and communion! And as many times as this was uttered, Elder Clayton tried to persuade himself that if she was really convinced that some other way was right, he would try to be reconciled to her enjoying her own opi-nions-but as many times he failed. Mother Clayton at last worked herself up to the denunciation that, " If he did entice her away, he might make off with her, for she did'nt want any sprinkled Christians round her !"-thus solacing herself, she went to sleep; but it only added to the Etder's sleeplessness and unrest. And now, after a troubled night, he had again, in the silence of his study, resumed the train of thought which so greatly disturbed his usual It seemed to him if he was equanimity. not an Elder, having the charge of a church -if he was only a lay member, he could get up more Christian resignation. Halt dozing, and conning it over for the twentieth time, the door gently opened and Brother Burton entered.

"I thought I heard you up, Brother," he said, stepping quickly towards him; "I want to talk with you-perhaps it would be well enough to turn the key, so we won't be interrupted. Now, Brother Clayton. what do you think of this matter-it really assumes an unpleasant shape, don't it ?"

"Why, yes," said Elder Clayton, thought-ally. "The effect of this on my children fully. is what I fear! It robbed me of my sleep last night-I was thinking of what the equences might be, of having such doctrines brought in contact with their young minder. When one gets older, and young minder When one gets older, and has his principles fized, as yours and mine "What are, Brother Burton, then he is not blown off the track so easily; but I fear for them

-I fear it will not only disturb the peace of my family, but possibly divide it for-ever!" "Yes, yes; O of course you can't be ex-prected, if the girl persists in believing such strange doctrines in defiance of your ex-pressed desires, counsel, Bible teachings, and everything, that you can have that re-gard for her you would have if also were dutiful and obedient," said Brother Burton. "Let me see; she's a girl you've taken to bring up—she's not your own daughter, "Bay and "I the first ploce," responded Anna, "in the first ploce," responded Anna, "in the first ploce," responded Anna, "in the first account we have of water bap-tism at instituted by John, he says he in-stituted it because there was One coming after him whe first ploce, may be and when Christ of the shadow of a first of speech? Langley's Cordial Rhubarb.

PERHAPS Rhubarb in the various forms in which it is presented to the public is one of the most reliable me-dicines for Summer use known. Its peculiar action, first as an Aperiant and then as an Astringent, conduces greatly to the popularity it has obtained; and when to this drug are added other ingredients of aromatic, anta eid and carminative properties, as in the Cordial Rhu-bard, a compound is formed, invaluable in all cases of Diarrheas, Lysentery, Cholera, &c This preparation is no intended to produce the wonderful effects attributed to some of the Elizirs of the anciens and to many of those of modern invention but is designed to act as a corrector of modern invention but is designed to act as a cor of modern invention but is designed to act as a cor of mode prevalent during the fruit senson, and as a re of the tone of the digest we organs when re axed it the heat of the weather or from any other cause.
