TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.

Night School

Pupils' Treat

The pupils who attended night school at the Star Hall, during the past winter, were given a splendid treat there last evening. The gathering, to the number of 96, assembled at the school and were served an excellent repast by the Star Ladies' Aux.

iliary, after which a programme was taken up, many of those present contributing musical or vocal items, all of which were much enjoyed. Before leaving the pupils were presented with a bag filled with good things. The Night School has had a most successful term and a larger number than ever availed of the opportunity offered.

THOSE TRAVEL FRIENDSHIPS.

"If you ever come down our way, you must be sure to look us up. It won't be hard to find us. Just go to the postoffice and ask where the Neals live. They'll show you just how to get there."

If I heard that said once this winter, I know I heard it said 20 times. Mrs. Neal is one of those cordial persons who makes friends with everyone, and as each batch of guests departed from the inn where she was one of the long time guests, she bade them goodbye with that invitation.

Did she mean it?

They Do Mean It At The Time.

In a way. In the same way that most travelers mean the cordial farewells they extend to their new made friends.

"Goodbye, my dear, don't forget to drop us a card and let us know if you had a good voyage."

"If you come through Boston and don't call me up, I shall be fearfully hurt."

"Goodbye, I'll send you some of those pictures we took just as soon as I can get them developed."

Don't forget that you are going to pay us a visit just as soon as we get home."

So they plan to cement the friendship that has grown so swiftly when both were thrown together in the hot house intimacy of boat or hotel life.

But How Often Do The Friendships Develop?

And how many times is the friendship really cemented? How many times do these snapshots get sent, or the postcard or telephone calls or visits materialize?

Perhaps once out of ten times. And if one in ten of these friendships thus favorably started lasts more than a few months, that is a very good average.

Congenially that is a very good ingredient in friendship, but propriety alas, is an even larger one. And the nicest people we meet on our travels always seem to live the farthest away.

Have you ever made a friend while travelling that you kept as a friend through the years? And by "kept as a friend" I mean kept in contact with either through a regular correspondence or by meetings.

A Neighbourhood Of Real Friends.

I have often wished I could people a neighbourhood with the people I would like best to see every day, instead of people who came there by happenstance. And among those would be some of my Letter Friends, and some of my oldest friends, and some people I think I'd like to know, and some I've met on my travels and of whom I still think at times.

Perhaps that will be one feature of Heaven—that our neighbours won't be just Happen Folks, but the people we like the best. I would be willing to exchange my share of the gold paved streets for such a neighbourhood.

Ancient Relics Found in British Columbia

REVELSTOCK, B.C., May 6.—Stone implements older by aeons of time than Senestrus' sarcophagus or Tutankhamen's tomb as emblems of man's past life story are being dug up on the Tagle Pass farm of Thomas Griffiths on the west side of the Thompson River.

The farm is said to be situated in the oldest known rock strata. Each year as he ploughs and breaks the land, Mr. Griffiths finds the primitive relics and he now has a collection believed to be of considerable value. First, he discovered crude stone implements evidently used for cooking purposes. Then he found a goblet made of galena, which had evidently been brought there from a considerable distance, as there is no galena in the adjacent territory.

British Columbia archaeologists regard the farmer's discoveries as among the most important of their kind west of the Rockies. The origin of the relics is a mystery and several theories have been advanced.

It is known that the Indians were on the Pacific Coast long before the Chinese Buddhist priests, who, according to legend and the histories of Hoel-Shin (449 A.D.), discovered Western America long before Christopher Columbus was born.

Efforts to associate the implements with any branch of the Indian race now inhabiting the coast have, so far, proved unsuccessful, and it has been estimated that there are about 160 distinct Indian groups. Professor Hill-Tout, well-known authority on Indian Affairs, and in history of the coast province, finds remote Eastern Asian and Polynesian affinities for some of the six groups that have left their traces in British Columbia, and the implements found on the Griffiths farm are said to be not unlike the handwork of certain tribes of South Sea Islanders.

A Vicious Dog

Last night a young woman proceeding along MacFarlane Street, was severely bitten by a large Newfoundland dog, and was forced to receive medical attention. Inspector Barter was called to the scene and took the dog in charge, but did not destroy it as he had not the necessary authority.

Humane Slaughter

MECHANICAL INSTRUMENT RECOMMENDED.

The Sanitary Committee of the Corporation of London recommend the passing of Clause 9 (B) of the Ministry of Health's model by-laws relating to slaughter-houses, which provides that animals for slaughter shall be first effectually stunned with a suitable mechanically operated instrument.

The question has been investigated for the committee by the medical officer of health (Dr. W. J. Howarth), the superintendent of the Metropolitan Cattle Market (Mr. J. R. Hayhurst), and the veterinary surgeon at the Central Meat Market (Mr. T. Dunlop Young).

They recommended that mechanically operated stunning instruments be used for cattle, calves, horses and pigs, that a captive-bolt instrument be specified to the exclusion of one releasing a bullet, and that classes of instruction be organised for teaching slaughtermen the anatomy of the skull in different animals, and the proper use and care of the instrument.

A rider recommends the exclusion of sheep. Dr. Howarth, however, differs on this point, and appends a recommendation to include sheep.
