The Face Behind the Mask

A Romance.

highness and his nobles took the stations of authority behind the table, and summoned the guards to had the prisoner up before them, which was done; while the rest of the company were fluttering down into pay the greatest attention. The cases in this midnight court seemed to be conducted in a decidedly original plan, and with an easy rapidity that would have electrified any other court, ancient or modern. Sir Norman took his stand, and eyed his judges with a look half contemptuous, half defiant; and the proceedings commenced by the dwarf's leaning forward and breaking into a roar of laughter right in his

"No levity, young man!" interposed the lord chancellor, rebukingly; "remember you are addressing His Royal Highness Prince Caliban, Spouse and Consort of Her Most Gracious Majesty, Miranda!"

"Indeed! Then all I have to say is that her majesty has very bad taste in the selection of a husband, unless, indeed her wish was to marry the ug-indeed her wish was to marry the ugliest man in the world, as she herself is the most beautiful of women!'

Her majesty took not the slightest notice of this compliment, not so much as a flutter of her drooping eyelashes, betrayed that she even heard it, but his highness laughed until he was perfectly hoarse.

"Silence!" shouted the duke, shocked and indignant at this glaring dised and indiginant at this giaring dis-respect, "and answer truthfully the questions put to you. Your name, you say, is Sir Norman Kingsley?"
"Yes. Has your grace any objections

His grace waved down the interruption with a dignified wave of the hand, and went on with severe judicial dig-

"I confess it looks like it. What

'With the greatest pleasure," said the duke, who had been scrawling on another ominous roll of vellum, and now passed it to the dwarf. "I never knew anyone it gave me more delight to condemn. Will your highness pass that to her majesty for signature, and pronounce his sentence."

His highness, with a grin of most exquisite delight, did as directed; and hir Norman looked steadfastly at the queen as she received it. One of the gauzy nymphs presented it to her, rneeling, and she took it with a look half-bored, half-impatient, and lightly awled her autograph. The long dark lashes did not lift; no change passed over the culm, cold face, as icily placid as a frozen lake in the moonlight dently the life or death of the stranger was less than nothing to her. To him, too, she was as nothing, or nearly so; but yet there was a sharp jarring pain at his heart, as he saw that fair hand, that had saved him once, so coolly sign his death warrant now. But there was little time left to watch her, for, as she pushed it impatiently away, and refapsed into her former proud listlessness, the dwarf got up with one of his death's-head grins, and began:

"Sir Norman Kingsley, you have been tried and convicted as a spy, and the paid hireling of the vindictive and narrow-minded Charles; and the sentence of this court, over which I have tence of this court, over which I have the honor to preside, is, that you be taken hence immediately to the place of execution and there lose your head by the axe."

"And a mighty small loss it will be," remarked the duke to himself, in a sort of parenthesis, as the dwarf concluded his pleasant observation by thrusting himself forward across the table, after his rather discomposing fathis, and breaking out into one of his shion, and breaking out into one of his diabolical laughter-claps.

The queen, who had been sitting passive, and looking as if she were in a spirit a thousand miles away, now started up with sharp suddenness, and favored his highness with one of her fieriest fiery glances.

"Will your highness just permit somebody else to have a voice in that matter? How many more trials are to come on tonight?"

"Only one," said the duke, glancing over a little roll which he held; "Lady Castlemaine's, for poisoning the Duchess of Sutherland."

"And what is my Lady Castlemaine's fate to be?" "The same as our friend's here, in all probability," nodding easily, not to say playfully, at Sir Norman.

"And how long will her trial last?"
"Half an hour, or thereabouts. There are some secrets in the matter that have to be investigated, and which will require some time."

"Then let all the trials be over first, and all the beheadings take place together. We don't choose to take the trouble of traveling to the Black Chamber just to see his head chopped off, and then have the same journey to undergo half an hour after, for a similar purpose. Call Lady Castlemaine, and let this prisoner be taken to one of the dungeons, and there remain until the time for execution. Guards, do you hear? Take him away!" hear? Take him away!"

The dwarf's face grew black as a thunder-cloud, and he jumped to his feet, and confronted the queen with a look so intensely ugly that no other earthly face could have assumed it. But that lady merely met it with one of cold disdain and aversion, and keenof cold disdain and aversion, and, keep-ing her dark bright eyes fixed chillingly upon him, waved her white hand, in her imperious way, to the guards. Those warlike gentlemen knew better than to disobey her most gracious majesty when she happened to be, like Mrs. Joe Gargary, on the "rempage," which, if her flashing eye and a certain expres-sion about her handsome mouth, spoke the truth, must have been twenty hours out of the twenty-four. As the soldiers approached to lead him away, Sir Norman tried to catch her eye; but in vain, for she kept those brilliant optics most unwinkingly fixed on the dwarf's

"Call Lady Castlemaine," commanded the duke, as Sir Norman with his guards passed through the doorway leading to the Black Chamber. "Your highness, I presume, is ready to attend to her case.'

"Before I attend to hers or anyone else's case," said the dwarf, hopping over the table like an overgrown toad, "I will first see that this guest of ours is properly taken care of, and does not leave us without the ceremony of say-

THE MASONS OF MICHIGAN

Had a Record-Breaking Year-Ontario Grand Lodge Officers Will Attend the M. G. L. Meeting in Detroit.

Detroit, Jan. 23 .- The annual meeting of the Michigan grand lodge, F. and A. M., which begins today, will be unusually interesting on account of three things. The first is the recovery of Grand Master Frank T. Lodge from what threatened to be a fatal illness. The second point worthy of notice will be a visit from the grand lodge officers of Ontario. In July, 1898, the Michigan grand lodge officers attend-ed the meeting of the Ontario grand lodge at Toronto and presented the Ontario grand master with a gavel made from the wood of the battleship Maine. The Canadians now come here on a return visit. They will be re-ceived with suitable honors, and their stay made as pleasant as possible.

Another notable feature is the fact that last year was the banner year for Free Masonry in the state, the total gain in membership, 1,530, breaking all previous records. Michigan now has 386 lodges, and stands fifth on the continent, being only exceeded by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio.

SUNNY WOMEN.

Who has not known the woman whose disposition is described by that one word sunny?" There's always a laugh lurking on her lips. Her cheeks are ever ready to dimple in smiles. Her household influence is as brightening and stimulating as the sunshine. Nothing can be crueler than to have this sunshine blotted out by disease. But this is a common erucity. The young wife who was the sunshine of the home becomes its shadow. Every young wife should know the value of Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription in the protection and preservation of the health. It promotes regularity, dries the drains which enfective ble body and mind, and cures inflammation, discration, and female weakness. It nourishes the property system and gives to the body the balance and buoyancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

ancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

*I can say that your medicine cured me, writes Mrs. Mead Pearce, of Stoutsville, Pairfield Co., Ohio. "I had suffered about twelve rears from female weakness and I had almost given up, thinking there was no cure for me. Then I heard shout Dr. Pierce's medicine and thought I would try it, and can say that seven notities of your "Favorite Prescription" made any well. I am now able to do my own housework. I took about try live bottles in all of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Fook some of the 'Golden Medical Discovery, 'Favorite Prescription' and some of the 'Pleasant Pellets."

Hon, J. J. Tarte's Brilliant and Patriotic Address.

French Canadians Destined to Live Under the British Flag.

The Triumph of Great Britain To Be Desired-Plea for Concord. Among Canadians.

Hon. J. I. Tarte made an eloquent and patriotic speech at Sherbrooke, Que., on the occasion of the nominations for the bye-elections. Among other things he said:

"We have heard today a good many things about loyalty. During the last few months the loyalty of the French-Canadians has been assailed to a degree that I thought we would never know in this country of ours. I thought that the French-Canadian minority in Canada had given in the past sufficient evidence of its devetion past sufficient evidence of its devetion to the British crown. (Hear, hear.) Sir, permit me to say that when in 1775 my French fellow-countrymen took up arms in defense of the British flag in this country, they had not much, after all, to thank England for France had been defeated; the French minority was not treated then as it is now; but all the same they took up arms in defense of the flag. (Applause.) I may add, and I am sup-ported by English historians, that if the French minority had not behaved the French minority had not behaved as it did, the British flag would not be floating today over this country. (Hear, hear.) In 1812 the same thing was repeated. French-Canadians was repeated. French-Canadians fought, bled and died for the crown. Permit me to say, with all the energy I can put into my words, and I know what I am talking about, for I am the son of a French-Canadian farm-er, that the French-Canadians have no desire, no wish, to change their allegiance. (Cheers.) But, sir, I know why that cry has been raised, and I appeal here to my English friends of both political parties, I am speaking on the soil of the eastern townships, that is to say, before a mixed population. My English friends are here to stay; I hope they will stay and increase in numbers. My French friends are also here to say. We cannot get rid of each other, and there is no reason for us to get rid of each other. We belong to the same great Christian family, although our blood may be different; the God we adore is the same, and the country we love is the same. (Cheers.) So we have to live in peace, amity and harmony.

A DANGEROUS CRY. In 1896 the majority of the electors of Canada intrusted the reins of office to a party which has chosen as its leader a French-Canadian. I once more take the opportunity of thanking the great Liberal party of Canada for the generosity and liberality they gave evidence of then. (Cheers.) They took great risks, because in times of crisis, when the public mind is not just as calm and solber as it should always be, it is easy to raise in any part of the country the cry of 'A French-Canadian prime minister.' The cry has been raised, I am sorry to say, but it has not succeeded. (Hear, hear.) Four elections by acclamation today prove that TO IMPROVE

"I have been assailed in certain parts of the country and certain newspapers. They say I am a disloyal man. I am not disloyal; I am loyal to the British Empire, I am loyal to the core. I say it before you, but I say also I am loyal to this country of ours. (Cheers.) I echo the national sentiment uttered by my friend, Mr. McIntosh, 'Canada for the Canadians.' I am loyal to my country, and without fear I say I am loyal to my race and my blood. (Hear, hear.) My position has been assailed, and will be assailed before parliament, I hope, and though I have no time today, I challenge my friends on the other side to invite discussion on the position I have taken.

EXPLAINS HIS ATTITUDE. "I repeat that I believe that any country, and especially this country, before engaging in any new policy should consult parliament and the nation. If I have committed a crime in wishing that parliament be called, I am guilty of that crime. I am a firm be-liever in the people. We have fought and bled to maintain and win our principles, and I say without hesitation that I would have liked to see the example of the English nation followed m this matter. Still, I do not object to this country helping England; I quite understand that the destiny of the French-Canadians is to remain under the British flag. (Cheers.) You are not for annexation, I am not for annexation. I am in favor of the present state of affairs; there is no reason to change; but my desire was that par-liament be called. My views have not prevailed, that is all, and I stand here today taking my full responsibil-ity for everything done by the govern-ment, which I believe was the best thing that could be done. I wish that peace may be soon established in South Africa, as it is here. We have not yet passed the moment when we cause to shake each other by the hand and exchange wishes for peace and prosper-it. I wish that peace be established; I wish that the flag of England be carried triumphantly to the goal which is being aimed at." (Cheers.)

The Weak, The Diseased, Made Strong and Healthy Through

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Every drop of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent communicates through the blood, aweat, urine and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life; for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, consumption, syphilis, uncured and badly-treated venereal in its many forms (send 10 cents for illustrated book, "Radway en Venereal") glandular diseases, ulcers in the throat, mouth, tumors, nodes in the glands and other parts of the system, sore eyes, strumous discharges from the ears, and the worst forms of skin diseases, eruptions, fever sores, scald head, ring worm, salt rheum, erysipelas, aone, black spots in the flesh, tumors, cancerous growths, female complaints, and all weaknesses and painful discharges, nightsweats, nocturnal lesses and all wastes of the life principle are within the curative range of this Wondet of Modern Chemistry and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them. If the patient daily becoming reduced by wastes and decompositions that are continually progressing succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood, and this the Sarsaparillian will and does secure, a cure is certain for when once this remedy commences its work of purifleation and succeeds in diminishing the loss of wastes its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better, appetite improving and flesh and weight increasing.

SCROFULA FROM BIRTH.

Dr. Radway,—Dear Sir: It is with pleasure I take my pen in hand to inform you of the great cure effected by your medicine called Sarsaparillian Resolvent. I have a girl 3 yearsold last September, who has suffered from scrofula ever since she was 2 years old. In fact, the doctor told us she was born with it. We had our best local doctors with her, and it seemed like all hope was gone, for they told us if the disease settled on her lungs she could not be cured. This frightful disease scated or seized upon her lungs severely. I began to think that our little girl could not live very long, our physician's medicines doing no good. In the meantime I received a copy of your medical publication, called "False and True," which you sent me. After seeing the accounts of so many cures effected by your treatments. I at once resorted to them, and by the time she had used one bottle she was most well. The ulcers that were making their appearance on her body are entirely gone, her lungs almost healed, or, at least, she has quit coughing. She has begun on the second bottle, and I believe that by the time she uses all of it she will be well. She had a very bad cough. I am yours, with respect. SAMUELS. BARKER.

LIFE A BURDEN. SCROFULA FROM BIRTH.

LIFE A BURDEN.

Dr. Radway,—Dear Sir: For a long time past 1 have been suffering in the most distressing manner from a long train of symptoms which have baffled the skill of all the medical men down here, and which, I feared, if not arrested in their progress, would terminate in the total prostration of my etrength. Loss of appetite and desire of stimulating and artificial means of sustenance at irregular times, want of healthy sleep and consequent depression on arising in the morning rendered life quite a burden to me, until a friend induced me to try your medicine. So I got a bottle of Radway's Sarsaparillian and a box of Radway's Pills and took them according to directions. I soon found relief. I got three boxes and three bottles more, and I am better in health than ever before. I remain your humble servant, ARTHUR D. WRIGHT, Unionville, Mich. LIFE A BURDEN.

The Most Economical the Eest. One bottle contains more of the active principle of medicine than any other preparation.

Taken in teaspoonful doses, while others require five or six times as much. Sold by druggists. Price $1.

Hon. J. I. Tarte's Plan for Diverting Trade Into Canadian Channels. [Special to The Advertiser per C.P.R.] Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 23.-Hon. J. I Tarte told your correspondent today that he would ask next session for a sum in the estimates to improve the navigation of French River from its mouth at Georgian Bay to North Bay on Lake Nipissing, so that steamers of the Great Lakes could bring wheat from Fort William to North Bay on the Canadian Pacific. The Canadian Pacific will place a fleet of steamers on the route to carry grain, and in this way divert it from Buffalo, where it now finds an outlet. Mr. Tarte says all that is necessary is the building of three locks, making dams and doing ne dredging to permit vessels draw-eightfeen feet of water to pass

GAS GUSHER AT CHAUTAUQUA. Jamestown, Jan. 23.-Whalt is regarded as the best natural gas well ever struck in Chautauqua County was op-ened on the Assembly grounds, Chautauqua, Saturday. The Assembly has been making an effort to increase its supply of water, and one of its wells was down to a depth of 600 feet when the gas well was struck. The vapor rushed from the ground with a pressure estimated at fully 1,000 pounds to the square inch. The new well is only three or four miles from the natural gas wells at Mayville and its pressure is very much stronger than any of those.
