YOUR DUTY.

MR. CITIZEN! There is a quiet but determined effort being made to take the operation of the Street Railway from the Lighting Commissioners and to place it under the management of a committee of the Town Council.

It is a utility worth $125,000, and therefore no toy, to be lightly given to a Commission one day and to the Council the next. To do so would be fatal to its success. The tree is now rooted and growing well in the commission's field. Transplanting it to the Council's commons would injure it, for years to come.

The average councillor has not been accustomed to dealing with large undertakings, which call for a wide experience in business and an intimate knowledge of machinery. It is no disgrace if he has not been accustomed to handling big things. Not many men have had the opportunity.

That is one reason why men, chosen and elected for the purpose, are sought. Another and equally strong reason is that a man may be elected to Council at the beginning of one year and grow tired of public life, or he may take a stand in Council which does not meet the approval of the people, and out he goes at the end of the year. Councillors come and go with the seasons and because of the short term for which they are elected, it would be very unwise to place a utility like the Street Railway into the hands of a committee of the Council. Permanency of management and continuity of policy form the keystone of success in municipal ownership. Berlin has assumed too big an obligation in that quarter to experiment.

The Record appeals to every elector who owns even a picket, if not a fence, to vote in favor of operating the street railway under a Commission.

It is a grave matter which certain members of 1909's Council propose doing, and your stake in Berlin should lead you to go out to the polls on Monday and vote for Commission management.

"Ring out the old! Ring in the new!"

ON THE PIER HEAD.

We have come down to the pier head of time which jets out into the great unknown sea called Eternity. Here on its extensive point we stand and wave our last farewell to our visitor nineteen hundred and nine who tarried with us a twelvemonth. Did we enjoy his company? Yes indeed, for though it was not always sunshine, the skies lowered at times and the tempests raged, yet during his short stay, prosperity and happiness shone upon us, as perhaps never before. We feel we are better men and better women because of our comradeship together. Life has taken on for us a new, deeper, higher meaning, the lessons he set before us were hard at times to learn, the tasks appointed were difficult often to fulfil, but they evoked from us our best. Our resources of manliness, courage, patience and love, were largely drawn upon thereby, but such demands we regret not. Our departing guest has taught us shown us more clearly than ever, how to "Be of good courage and play the man."

Is it any wonder then that we wave him a sorrowful good bye and that alas! forever? As we stand and look, past us he glides with a smile upon his face, for his work is done, his mission is finished. Out into the golden glories of the west he sails over the waving shimmering mysterious sea. On our eyes we stand, and strain our eyes to see, blurred and misty with tears. Yes, we exclaim "Here he is, yonder! yonder! when on our ears falls the tolling of a bell rousing us to the fact that he is gone, past our vision and our ken forever, never again shall we behold him, but one day in the future, we shall be reminded of his visit, when the recording angel shall show unto us from the Book of Life our record of good and evil, success and failure.

But as we meditate on this point of time with the waters of Eternity's sea lapping our feet to! a stranger is by our side, young and joyous and beautiful. Whence hast thou come? we wonderingly ask. From the east, he replies, and then with an irresistible charm, he proceeds to tell us, he has come to take the place of him who has gone and to tarry with us for a while. In his eyes we look in vain, for the destiny he holds in store for us, his secrets he steadfastly refuses to tell, until the hour appointed for their revealing arrives.

What shall we do with this charming youth? A whisper, an inspiration comes into our hearts. "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers," a loving impulse controls us, and taking him in our arms, we press him to our hearts, and say in our tenderest accents.

"Welcome nineteen hundred and ten!" may thy stay with us be pleasant and happy and profitable truly we shall endeavor to make it so, even to the end of thy sojourn, thou hast come from far indeed, even from Eternity, and ere thou goest back, leave we beseech thee, thy mighty impress for holiness, goodness and truth upon our hearts and lives. And his answer is a smile fascinating, and bewitching in which is enclosed his audible response given in silvery tones:

"Yes if thou desirest it so."

And thus our newly found friend and we lovingly start off together for a year's journey.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
