TITAN ARRIVE Liners Were Delayed in Heavy Gale-Titan Hove to in High Seas - Monteagle's Wireless Gear Damaged

Both the C. F. R. steamer Monteagle and the Blue Funnel liner Titan, which came to the outer wharf on Sunday morning, from Yokohama, encountered the heavy southerly gale which prevailed off the Vancouver island coasts on Thursday and Friday, the Monteagle having the aeriels of her wireless telegraphic apparatus blown away, and the Titan was hove to through Thursday night. There was a tremendous sea, big waves sweeping over the steamers. Had it not been for the delay occasioned by the storm, both vessels would have reached port on Saturday. The Monteagle, which left Yokohama on January 7th, brought 4,000 tons of cargo including a large amount of tea and 1,200 bales of silk and silk goods worth over half, a million dollars. There were 25 saloon passengers, 36 Asiatic second class and 206 steerage. The saloon passengers included Mr. J. B. Jackson, formerly Canadian trade commissioner at Shanghai, who returned with his family to take up his residence in Vancouver, where his son Mr. H. G. Jackson is to join the Province staff as cartoonist. Mr. Jackson said trade was at a standstill in China and would not recover for a consider able time. Mr. B. Foith of the Shanghai Tug & Lighter company, came from Shanghai, Mrs. Howard and son, and Rev. E. Lund, a missionary, came from the Model Settlement, Mr. W. Hollaway and family came from India where they have been engaged in mission work, Messrs. J. Sutherland and J. Irvine were from Hankow. Other passengers were Mrs. J. Carlton, H. Cunningham, Mrs. C. M. Edge, Mr. J. J. Evans, S. Kickerillo, P. T. Wisner, Mrs. J. C. Warrington, and Miss M. E. Wood, a missionary from Wuhu.

Titan's Big Cargo

The Titan of the Blue Funnel line, brought 165 Chinese, of them 136 landed here, and a cargo of 11,000 tons of general freight, including 1,500 tons for Victoria and 6,000 tons for Vancouver. Ma Sule, a well known local Chinese merchant, was a passenger. The steamer brought news of the arrival at Singapore of the survivors of the British steamer Kuala lost off Socotra. After the steamer struck, the second officer, second engineer and three lascars were sent to Aden for assistance.

Arabs Attack Wreck Meantime, on the breaking of day, the situation of the Kuala attracted the quick eye of the coast patives who are infamous for their predatory habits. They went out to the vessel and swarmed aboard her, the officers and crew being helpless in the face of their numbers. For a time the natives gave little trouble beyond the very fact of their presence, but soon they began to look threatening. Their intention plainly was to help themselves to the portable portions of the vessel. Added to that was the fact that the ship exposed to the influence of the northeast monsoon, however slight, was bumping heavily. Fortunately, at this juncture, the Russian steamer Meteor was sighted and signalled. She steamed as

Li is Popular According to advices brought by the Monteagle General Li is still the hero of the situation, and the fact that he shows no signs of surrender to Yuan Shi Kai has given the Revolutionary army added confidence. And the same may perhaps be said of the Imperial army following on Yuan's obduracy.

Whether in the end Yuan will be called upon to give way no one can yet tell, but it seems that so much pressure is being brought to bear upon him that he will have no other course to take than to comply with Li's desires for a Republican government. Stowaway's Mad Attempt

A Japanese stowaway was landed from the Titan. He was one of the coolies engaged in loading the vessel at Yokohama and went down into No. 3 hold to sleep off the effects of the celebration of the New Year. When he came up the steamer was five hours out from Yokohama. The Japanese, with his boots slung over his shoulder, was more anxious for home than to make a voyage across the Pacific and he went to the rail, threw his shoes over, and was about to jump overboard when seized. He explained that he had intended to swim back in the hope of being picked up by a fishing vessel. He would have had little chance for his life.

Hunted Crocodiles

The Titan made a call at Port Swettenham in the Malay states and the doctor and wireless telegraph operator ook advantage of the call to go up the river to hunt crocodiles. They had some good sport.

Glenfalloch's Experiences

When the Titan was at Hongkong the British steamer Glenfalloch was towed in, after a perilous trip from Singapore. she lost her propeller during a monsoon when off the Paracels. Cargo, ooms and spars were rigged on the oremast, and awnings and tarpaulins ind all canvas available was rigged to seep steerage way on the vessel, and e finally was enabled to reach Haalong ay, on Hainan island, having sailed miles. Capt. Townsend landed to seek assistance, the Chinese running Way when he approached. Finally after walking 15 miles through several vilages he was able to procure a sampan hich took him to Sama where he found small revenue boat with Mr. Morgan n charge. This man had not seen a now white man for a year. With his ssistance a fishing boat was secured nd after voyaging for seven days he

the disastrous retreat from Hanyang, eral has since paid with his life for this-the Imperial army drove back the Republicans with heavy losses. The insurgents took to the water amid a hail of shrapnel, and the river was thick with drifting vessels, mostly laden with dead. It was a veritable flotilla of the dead that drifted down past Hankow, while throngs stood on the Bund and watched, and hurried rescue parties went out to bring in the wounded from the derelict sampans and junks. An Awful Sight

"It was an awful sight," said Mr. Sutherland, "On one boat, a war junk, there were 150 dead. There were scores of sampans, and on nearly every one were corpses, most of them mutilated by the shells. A pinnace was sent out from H. M. S. Cadmus, which was anchored off the Bund, and hundreds of bodies were brought ashore. Some mov-ing picture men waited with their cameras on the Bund to make pictures of the ghastly scene.

Imperials at Hankow

"When I left the greycoats of the Imperial army were holding the vicinity of Hankow, and the rebels were gathered at Wuchang across the river. Spies were caught from time to time in each camp, and capture was usually followed by the unfortunate spy being shortened by a head. I went up to a group of Imperial troops gathered around a Chinese in Tsen Sen road a few days before I left, and found that they had captured a spy from Wuchang. He was led away to be beheaded.

To Attack Peking

"The Imperial troops are anxious to attack the rebels now that the river is low, which will prevent the warships, now flying the republican flag, from being of much assistance. The revolutionists have secured a fleet of transports in readiness for an attack on Peking, and it is expected that when the peace negotiations fail, as is likely, they will move on the capital. Four merchant steamers with 3,000 troops on bcard were waiting at Woosung when the Monteagle sailed from the river port ready to proceed north to land their expedition at Chefoo or Chingwantao. If the latter place is selected the Imperials would be quickly moved by the railroad to oppose a landing. Prepare For Campaign

Yuan, the great premier, as they refer to him, will not easily abandon all his fond hopes for a monarchy.

Crimes in Interior

The unfortunate part of the whole situation is that, taking advantage of the period when it is difficult to trace where there is law, the brigand community are running riot all through the countryside. The tales of robbery, pillaging, ravishing and other horrors daily reach us. Whilst the armistice is on also the armies have been ruling with an iron hand wherever they have been. In Wuchang order has been preserved, because Li Yuan-Hung is there; but in other places far out in the country in Hupeh the Revolutionary soldiers have been accused of the most disgusting behavior, whilst in Hanyang and country further away from that city now unde Imperial domination, it is reported that the maltreatment of the women and the general savage conduct of the Imperial soldiers are too terrible to write of. Trade at Standstill

Trade is absolutely crippled. During hese days of cessation of warfare merchants have been able to transact a little business, but it has been little indeed, for, although cargo has been coming up in larger quantities, there are now not a fourth of the traders to buy. Within the last three months the trade of this centre has gone back fifty years, and until there is permanency of peace, no one can hope for better times to come. Many of the smaller men, unable to stand the strain, are thinking of closing up altogether. Already several firms have recalled one or two assistants, those whose leave is anywhere near due are asked to take it at once, and those who take a same view of the situation here are advising a sittingtight period for the whole of next year The rebel headquarters are at Nanking, where President Sun Yat Sen took office on New Year's day after a salute of 21 guns were fired. Both at Wu-chang and Nanking there is much apprehension that the Imperials will move against those cities, and many observ-ors consider that their occupation is quite feasible. The rebels have 30,000 men at Wuchang and 20,000 at Nanking.

Manchu Quarter Wrecked

From Nanking news was brought that the Manchu quarter is in ruins. One of the big buildings destroyed was an ancient powder magazine near the east gate of the forbidden city, built during the Ming period. This was blown up by a party of Manchus, who took this means of suicide. The old building was a hising a condition of affairs, the result of which would be startling. their existing rights. A deep seated feeling of passive hatred was being en-gendered against the) white races, and unless the union government's policy was changed, passive hatred would become active resistance.

Dr. Abdurahman declared that the white policy meant a war of extermination against colored races and natives, and he urged the Congress to lay down a basis upon which to fight for political rights. He urged all native and colored natives to drop Dutch and to learn English.

The somewhat inflammatory language of this speech is condemned as injuring rather than benefiting the colored cause Responsible journals urge the colored people to trust to the slow but steady growth of principles more liberal than hose embodied in the South African Constitution.

QUEBEC, Jan. 22 .- The marriage mestion appeared again in the provincial legislature at its sitting today when Hon. L. Decarie, the provincial secretary, replied to several questions that had been put by Mr. Godfrey Langlois.

Hon. Mr. Decarie said that the decree of the council of Trent respecting marriage had been promulgated in this province in 1700 by Mgr.
