Case_The Price of a Carpet_Blakeley acious Witness. ackleton v. West the plaintiff claimlant of a number of cows, milkto defe carts, harness, etc. A verdict was given for plaintiff for $249. N. G. Bigelow ap-peared for the plaintiff and John Akers for defendant; defendant; Lawson v. Wilkinson was an action for $150, the price of a carpet. Defendant dis-puted the amount and said it should be only $70, and the jury returned a verdict for the latter amount. A. M. Macdonald appeared for plaintiff and N. G. Bigelow for defendant. Blakeley v. Leys was a suit which threat-end to revive the Murdoch matter. The plaintiff is che mother of Mrs. Murdoch. Mr. Murdoch is one of the counsel for the defendant, and Mrs. Murdoch and her ister were in court as witnesses. It ap-for defendant. Blakeley v. Leys was a suit which threat-ned to revive the Murdoch matter. The plaintiff is the mother of Mrs. Murdoch. Mr. Murdoch is one of the counsel for the defendant, and Mrs. Murdoch and her isster were in court as witnesses. It ap-pears that about seven years ago John Leys, the defendant, recovered a judgment against Alexander Blakeley and another. He put in an execution on Mr. Blakeley's house-hold goods, but withdrew on Mrs. Blakeley claiming them. A short time ago he again attempted to enforce the execution : Mrs. Blakely again claimed them, and the present suit is brought to try the right to them. Mr. W. R. Mulock, plaintiff's counsel, in opening the case endeavored to show that allowed to proceed. Mr. Mulock asked for a bench warrant against Mr. John Leys, barrister, the de-fendant, on the ground that he had failed to appear on a subpœna. The judge re-fused, as Mr. Leys had only been paid $1 witness fees, instead of the professional fee

After Mrs. Murdock had given her evidence the court adjourned. The following is the peremptory list for to-day: Burns v. Leys, Caspar v. Summer-ville, Doherty v. Draper, Barker v. How-land, Boyd v. Child, Booth v. Neill.

THE PREACHER AND THE DOG.

A queer incident took place a few Sunone of unlawful assembling and the other of assault. Some of the witnesses said they thought the boys were there only "for fun."

A cheer incident took place a few Sun-days ago in a country meeting-house in one of the western counties. The preacher was young, enthusiastic, and spoke in a loud and sing-song voice. The meeting-house was small, and so was the congregation. Anyway there was room for a dog, and the dog was there. Perhaps he was a regular church-goer and perhaps not; it is no mat-ter. He didn't behave like one, and the young preacher resented his impertinence by THE CASE OF PEARL REED. The Kingston Whig says that the girl Pearl Reed, now undergoing a sentence of one year and eleven months in the Mercer ter. He didn't behave like one, and the young preacher resented his impertinence by stopping short in the midst of his sermon, stepping down out of the pulpit and giving the ddg a vigorous and vicious kick. It is hard to say which was most surprised by this acf, the congregation or the dog. But the young preacher didn't wait to enquire; he returned to the pulpit and resumed his discourse. Again the dog behaved in an unseemly way, and again the preacher left his pulpit, walked down, seized the unruly dog by the back of the neck and the first joints of his tall, hurried him to the door.
