It Takes Her About Two Weeks To Get Broken In.

It Is Unwise to Stir Up Her Nervous Reflexes by Trying to Teach Her All Your Fads at Once-Give Her Time to Grasp Your Routine.

Many a mistress becomes hopelessly discouraged by the seeming inefficiency of the new maid in the first two weeks, when a longer trial would have shown marked improvement had she only given the girl a chance to prove it. The first fortnight is the hardest time for the servant in a new home, and it usually takes her all of that time to become accustomed to the way in which the head of the house likes to have her work done. If the mistress encourages her and does not lose patience in the beginning the girl will usually show signs of real efficiency in the last half of the first month.

Unfortunately, however, most women are apt to look on their maids' first efforts in the most critical way. The maid can always feel this supercritical atmosphere, and her work is not improved any by the nervousness created through fear of dismissal.

The new maid, as a rule, falls into one of two classes—the rather shy girl who needs to be told just what to do and the confident, rather aggressive girl who takes hold immediately and starts work without any directions. The average mistress usually prefers the latter, but the former often makes the better maid if her services are retained long enough.

The average mistress does not want to have to direct a maid all the time, and small blame to ber. But often the shy girl will settle down and become an excellent maid after she has grown accustomed to the way in which her employer likes to have things done. She would prefer being directed at first until she knows just how the housewife wants the work done, but once she gets the swing of things she goes ahead and patiently, housewives, if by so doing you obtain a thoroughly satisfactory girl. If after three weeks or a month you see she does not take hold at all it is time enough to let her go then. If you find the new girl wants to be told just what to do next do not be impatient, but show her just what you want done and how. Make her out a schedule of the work to be done each day in the week-Monday, washing; Tuesday, ironing; Wednesday, sweep ing; Thursday, cleaning silver; Friday, mending; Saturday, baking, or any oth er arrangement you prefer. Tell her the duties which have to be done daily, like bed making and brushing up.

It is far wiser to spend two weeks in breaking in the new maid carefully

And she will be satisfactory, for you will have all the work done the way you want it. But don't lose patience in the first fortnight.

In Fireless Cooker.

Many people who have fireless cookers have perhaps often thought of baking potatoes in them. This can easily be done, and they are just as satisfactory as when baked in the oven. Put the largest heater over the gas flame and arrange the potatoes close together on this; let them stay half an hour, turning occasionally; then put in the cooker and cover up, and in another half hour they will be done.
