Reciprocity of Press and Pulpit

The following from the Fairfield, Maine, Chronicle, is neatly done and has a wide application outside of Maine. He was the manager of a church fair, and one morning he walked into the newspaper office and said:

"I want an item this morning?"

"Of course," replied the editor. Whereupon the visitor laid the following note upon the table:

"The ladies of the Street Church will give a festival at their vestry hall next Friday evening. Literary and musical entertainments will be provided, and a supper will be served to all who desire. The ladies in charge of the affair have had much experience in such matters and are sure to provide a good time. The admission will be only fifteen cents, and it is certain that no one can attend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to go and take your friends."

When the editor read it, he said:

"Oh, I see, an advertisement."

"No, not an advertisement," he replied. "I prefer to have it in the local column," replied the manager.

And seeing that the editor looked skeptical, he continued:

"It will interest a great many of your readers and help a good cause; besides we have spent so much money in getting up our entertainment that we can't afford to advertise it without increasing the price of the tickets. In such matters as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

"Well," said the editor, "if it goes into the local, I suppose you would read a little notice in your church next Sunday by way of reciprocity."

The visiting brother asked what notice, and the editor wrote and handed him the following:

The Weekly Chronicle for the coming year will be the best and cheapest family paper in Maine. Its proprietor has had much experience and has all the helps which a large outlay of money can secure. His paper has a larger circulation than any other in the country, and is to be furnished at only $2. It is certain that no one can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to take the Chronicle, and subscribe for your friends."

The manager hemmed and hesitated, and then said, solemnly, that he "doubted whether it would be judicious to read such a notice, but suggested that if it were printed, copies of it might be distributed at the door on the evening of the entertainment."

"Yes," said the editor, "but it might attract more attention in the middle of a sermon. It will interest a large number of your congregation and help a good cause, and besides so much money is spent on the Chronicle that the owner can't afford to print hand bills to advertise it without increasing the subscription price. In such matters as this, we ought to be willing to help each other."

Beaver Flour
the original Blended Flour

THE FINEST STIMULANT.

"It always makes me smile," said Edward W. Bok, in an interview in the New Broadway magazine, "when some woman, a reader of our magazine, writes me and asks: 'What do you know about the needs, the life or the struggles of poor people—people who were born with a silver spoon in your mouth?' Bless her heart, she knows that I have been through it all. I know what it is to live on practically nothing, to scarcely leave the house at night, go to the lot and pick up odd pieces of wood because we had not the four cents to buy a bundle of kindling; to pick up odd bits of coal; to go around afraid to stoop because of the patches in my clothes. Know it? O, yes, I know what it is to be poor."

"And it was fine, I tell you," said this man unexpectedly.

"Fine? You mean poverty?" I asked.

"Oh, no," he said, emphatically. "The finest thing that ever happened to me, the finest thing that ever happened to a young fellow is to be poor. There is no greater stimulant than poverty—not as a condition in which to stay, but as a condition to work out of."

That's what Edward thinks now, when he is drawing a fat salary; but at the time he was stealing coal and wood in those cellular trunks, it didn't strike him as being so fine. We observe all these fine things about poverty are ordinary notices. No one arises up to proclaim the joys of poverty when he has it.

Tack in Mouth Made Horse a Runaway

(From New York Herald.)

To the Editor of The Herald:

Runaways, so sudden and dangerous as to be fatal to life or limb, are of frequent occurrence. How many of these are caused by a sore mouth or an ulcerated tooth against which the unyielding bit is pulling is a question well worth considering.

Not long since, we learn, a pet horse, steady and tractable, earned the reputation of becoming vicious and a runaway. Accordingly his fate was sealed; his owner sold him.

His distressing doom, while being broken of his "bad habits," need not be described here. Labeled as incorrigible, he passed from owner to owner, when an intelligent veterinary bought him. Examining his mouth, he discovered that the animal had picked up a tack with his teeth. It was imbedded in the jaw and the pressure of the bit became unendurable. It was removed and the gentle creature, forgiving its abuse and misunderstanding, became again the old time docile friend.

An ulcerated tooth could, without doubt, explain many supposed cases of hydrophobia, both in horse and dog, as instanced by the fine animal that crushed his groom in his stall, supposed to have become suddenly maddened. When subdued and examined the horse was found to be suffering intensely and in urgent need of a dentist.

Our safety as well as a higher sentiment should urge us to a better understanding of our mute companions.

"Sunshine" Furnace

Where Shaking is Respectable

A Draft of furnace down, with no other assistance, is impossible to overcome the dust nuisance in shaking down. Only a draft that rises of itself above the fire. Draft built upwards like an air-lift, and a draft made outlet is therein provided, dust will escape through ash-door into and into open air.

In "Sunshine" Furnace the legitimate dust outlet is provided. It's a great big dust-pipe running straight from ash-pit to dome, thence to chimney. When big pipe damper is opened, all dust in ash-pit ascends to dome; then, when direct drafts are opened, all dust passes up chimney.

Always the clean and quick dust route in "Sunshine" Furnace—via grate, to pan, to dust-pipe, to dome, to chimney, to open air.

CAPTAIN OF GLADIATOR DISMISSED.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 12.—After a lengthy consideration, today, the naval court martial into the loss of the British cruiser, Gladiator, as a result of her collision with the American liner St. Paul, last April, found Captain Lumsden had hastened his ship by a default, but not by neglect, and advised him to be reprimanded and dismissed from his ship.

Deep down beneath all differences of form and ceremony and creed is the ever enduring and all pervading faith in God. No age has ever held such universal charity of man for man and creed for creed. As we see more clearly that those things which are spiritually immutable lie at the base of all forms of religious thought, so do we see that those unchangeable truths must in some way at last reconcile all differences.

BORN IN IOWA.

Our family were all born and raised in Iowa, and have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (made at Des Moines) for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact, when in El Paso, Texas, the writer's life was saved by the prompt use of this remedy. We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcoossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proved very successful and is constantly growing in favor.—ENNIS BROS.

NEW LIGHT PLANT FOR WOLFVILLE.

Wolfville has a big joke in the electric light matters. An arbitration court which sat at that town lately decided that if the electric light plant there was to be acquired by the town, the sum of $25,800 should be paid to the company. Of course this was prohibitive, and the Council became the butt of considerable pleasantry, more or less painful as the outcome of its endeavors to secure light. This continued for a week, but on Wednesday evening the Council at its regular meeting quietly authorized the floating of bonds and the immediate construction of a new plant. This naturally occasioned much wonderment, but to all enquiries the Council pointed to its October meeting and asked wherein could be found anything prohibiting the acquiring and operation of a plant both for street purposes and general sale of electricity. The Act supplies all the necessary machinery, and the only obligation the town was placed under was that of promoting an arbitration, the award of which it was at liberty to reject. Now it is up to the Council to laugh.—Kentville Advertiser.

John Shorby, charged with burglarizing Senator King's store at Chipman, N. B., Thursday, escaped from jail at Gasquet during the night. He is about 35 years old, of medium height, wore a dark drab suit, with a slouch hat, and had large dark eyes, being of dark complexion.

How the Other Half Lives

That sentiment of tender charity are innate among the poor can be seen from a case which presented itself among a group of little children at a school where we visited," writes Mrs. John Van West in her Christmas article in the Woman's Home Companion. "They were of the most destitute, this little class, but as regular as soldiers in attendance. After an unusual absence of two days, one of the small pupils, Mary by name, was closely questioned by the teacher on her return. Very reluctantly she responded that they had been without food at home and that she was ashamed to come hungry to school.

"No comment was made before the other children. Nothing further was said.

"The following morning a small procession filed before the teacher's desk—a procession of little people, tiny, poor, ignorant. Yet not one of them came empty handed. One brought an apple, one a slice of cheese, one a roll, one a slice of meat. And each, as she put her meagre offering down, whispered to the teacher: 'It's for Mary.'"

600,000,000 Tons of Coal

Sydney, June 12.—Work at the new collieries of the Dominion Coal Company, numbers Twelve and Thirteen, is proceeding satisfactorily. At the former the slope has reached a distance of eleven hundred feet, and the latter about forty feet, with air slopes well in progress. Both these collieries are on what is known as the Victoria Seam, which is nearly seven feet deep and of excellent quality. The slopes are about a mile apart, and about seventeen hundred feet to the rear. It is proposed shortly to open collieries on what is called the Linnox Seam, which underlies the Victoria. Underlying the latter and further to the rear is the famous Mullins Seam, and near the shore line the Atlantic, overlying all, is the Barrachois area, which was worked in former years. There are beneath the surface, it is estimated, about six hundred million tons of workable coal, which, at the rate proceeding in the Glace Bay district, will last about two hundred years. At Dominion No. 12 about twenty thousand tons have been banked, and shipment will commence about September first, when the branch line connecting the mine with the main line of railway will be completed.
