

WARRS OF Landed Estates

HOUSES AND OTHER PROPERTIES

The war against the landed estates in England, which has been going on for many years, has now reached a new stage. The Government has decided to take steps to reduce the power of the landed class, and to bring about a more equitable distribution of the land. The first step is to limit the amount of land which any one person can own. This will be done by passing a law which will restrict the number of acres which any one person can own. The second step is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the land. This will be done by passing a law which will require the landed estates to be divided up into smaller plots, which will be sold to the tenants. The third step is to bring about a more equitable distribution of the income from the land. This will be done by passing a law which will require the landed estates to pay a higher rate of tax. These steps will be taken in order to bring about a more equitable distribution of the land and the income from the land. The Government has decided to take these steps because it believes that the present system is unfair and that it is necessary to bring about a more equitable distribution of the land and the income from the land. The Government has decided to take these steps because it believes that the present system is unfair and that it is necessary to bring about a more equitable distribution of the land and the income from the land.