

Wheat was in here today that had been threshed, within a few days, from the shock, that was better than would be supposed possible. It was sweet and not badly swollen or sprouted. Although somewhat damp, it would stand shipment very well if moved before hot weather and not left too long without rehandling. An elevator man was said to state that he purchased grain from a field in Nelson county, which was in the shock all winter, and it went No. 3. He did not believe it would have graded more than No. 2 last fall. There is grain in shock, standing on low land, which has been completely ruined by the water. In Cass county the grain was threshed last fall, except a small portion in the northern and western part; some in the eastern portion of Ransom county is yet unthreshed, and the same in Dickey county. Griggs has some unthreshed, as well as other counties.

In Cavalier, the western part of Pembina, Walsh and Grand Forks counties in Nelson, Ramsey, Pierre, Bottineau, McHenry, Foster, Wells, and Benson counties, perhaps one-third of the grain was unthreshed this spring. Quite a little of it was in shock, although in Cavalier county it was all stacked. Some was threshed in the last ten days and the stacks are turning out fairly well. Wheat in shock is not the failure many have been afraid it would be.—Minneapolis Market Record.
