SHOT, AT AS AN INFORMER.

gave information to the Government touching the plans and projects of the extreme Nationalists.

Since the collapse of the old Skirmishing Fund O'Donovan Rossa has started a new fund called the "Resources of Oivilization," which, he declares, is intended for the prose. of guerilla warfare against England. To this fund McDermott subscribed $50 before his departure for Europe, and he thus created the belief that his devotion to the "cause" was real. He attended several secret meetings of the Fenian Brotherhood in Oork and other places, and it is alleged that he imparted the knowledge he thus acquired to Detective Starkey of the city of Cork, and that the result was the arrest of Deasy, O'Herlihy, Featherstone, Dalton and others for conspiring to murder by means of dynamite. For this information, it is alleged, he received pay, then fled from lreland, was denounced by the Brotherhood as a traitor, and a demand was made for his death. It is stated also that two men were selected for the purpose of removing him, and that they followed him to England and thence to Paris.

He left France in haste, the Nationalists say, because the English Government had taken steps to compel him to appear as a witness against the men arrested as conspirators. He was followed to this city, as alleged, and confronted by one of his pursuers in Byan's salcon on baturday. This extraordinary story is vouched for, in its main details, by members of the Brotherhood; but there is no evidence thus far to show that the prisoner Gaynor is implicated in the matter in any manner whatever. When questioned he maintained an absolute silence as to the affairs of the Brotherhood, and denies the shooting. He says he was arrested while running in a orowd. He came to this country a short time ago, and is now looking for employment. He has no relatives in the city.

Detective O'Connor informed Justice Smith that he had searched in New York and Brooklyn for McDermott, but had been unable to find him. The Magistrate said he would remand the prisoner until to-day. Gaynor was led back to Sixth Precinct station house. The last seen of McDermott, said Captain Petty, was when he was bearding a Fulton Ferry car at Beekman street, near Park row. On leaving Ryan's saloon McDermot ran to Centre street and got on a Bleeker street car. He held a handkerchief to the side of his head. His excited manner caused a number of persons to leave the car while others collected around him and asked what was the matter. He got off this car and bearded the next one and went to Brooklyn and has not been seen

Michael Davitt and James Mc-Dermott.

(From the Dublin Freeman, July 14th.) A letter received by Mr. Davitt yesterday evening from the Editor of the Montreal Post contained the following in reference to James McDermott, of Brooklyn :you know bim, or ever heard about him, to let me know by return of mail."

In view : what appeared from the Central News in perturday's papers concerning this M.Dermott, and the coincidence of the report in yesterday's papers also of a plot being discovered in Montreal for the destruction of Government buildings in that city, Mr. Davitt cabled the following despatch at once in reply to the query of the editor of the " Letter received. M'Dermoit is reported to believed here to have organized those of Lon. don and Cork."

While in Dublin McDermott called upon Mr. Davitt during his imprisonment in Richmond Prison and represented himself as the special correspondent of the Brooklyn Argus and Rossa's United Irishman. He strongly deprecated Mr. Davitt's condemnation of dynamite outrages and louded the authors of the Phonix Park tragedy. In a spirit of frankness which can be better read in the light of yesterday's disolosures concerning himself and his "mission" to Ireland, he informed Mr. Davitt that Mr. Jenkinson had told him in an interview in the Castle the previous day that he (Mr. Jenkinson) was aware of McDermott's departure from New York long before his arrival in this country.

Upon the termination of the interview Mr. Davitt instructed the chief warder, who was present thereat, not to grant the privilege of a visit to McDermott should he again call at the prison for that purpose, expressing the opinion to Mr. Healy, who had refused to see McDermott in consequence, that the newspaper commission was a bogus one covering some other design, and that from the account which he had heard of McDermott's character in New York he believed him to be a man who would sell all Ireland, if he got a chance, for a hundred dollars. As McDermott is known to have been in the company of two men, now awaiting trial in Liverpool, previous to their arrests in Cork, and as it has also transpired that the information which led to the capture of Gallagher and his associates in London came from New York, from which city McDarmott came to Liverpool immediately following the arrests it is circumstantially evident that this man who has now turned up in Montreel, where there appears yet another dynamite plot, may have on at the bottom of this whole dynamite business either as an independent speculator in dynamite plots on his own account, or an agent in the employment of some unscrupulous officials not over friendly to Ireland.

The following cablegram in reference to this subject appears in the Daily Telegraph of yesterdsy: -

QUEEN VICTORIA.

HER MAJESTY PROSTBATED BY AN ATTACK OF MELANCHOLY.

Her Monomania of Seclusion, Sadness and Fear attributed to the Death of the Favorite Gillie." NEW YORK, July 18.—The London correspondent of the New York Sun writes :-The statement long expressed in hypocritical sighs, uplifted, mournful eyes, suppressed interjections, innuendoes whispered with bated breath, veiled in metaphor or clad in wary disguise, is now coldly, caimly, openly, dispassionately discussed by partisans as well as fees, by flatterers and scoffers, by the stanch adherent and fawning courtier, no less than the violent anarchist or the red republican. The mind of the Queen, not her body, is affected. Her eccentricities have taken unto themselves a name, which is only a synonyme for insanity. The lurking taint in the Hanoverian blood, the dementia traceable in the line of the Georges, bursting cut ever and airesh in some wild or ecuted to a letter by Lansdowne's agent, John wicked freak, now seems to have unmistakably overtaken the Queen.

The more or less harmless manias in which, during a long reign, Queen Victoria has allowed herself to indulge unchallenged and unblamed; the erratic fancies, sudden caprices, unreasoning dislikes, unconquerable obstinacy, of which so many testimonies exist, seem to have culminated at last in a sudden, serious, protracted, undisguisable attack of melancholy, a monomania of seclusion, sadness, and fear which it is idle now to color with any other motive. It is not in disrespect or with coarse insinuations that one is justified in attributing this last and painful outburst to the death of the favorite gillie. To one so selfish, the emallest alteration in daily habits at once becomes important. Small causes have at times great effects, and a subordinate incident will precipitate events which far more serious casualties have left unchanged; still, when a woman, a widow and a queen has been known to advocate the doctrine of the transmigration of souls in support of her sympathies; when she is credited with the belief that the soul of the Prince Consort had elected its domicile in the body of John Brown, it is not ungenerous or unnatural to conclude that her mind had already to some extent lost its equilibrium. What had beocme of the original, personal soul of the gillie; whether the old and new dwelt in twin-like harmony; whether the first proprietor of the mortal tenement retained some privileges over the second tenant, or the spirit of inferior status withdrew before its whilom master, are questions which may never be solved, and which, may be, were never seriously offered to Her Majesty's consideration. But history has already registered in its pages the authenticated fact "I have just had a visit from James Mc_ that Queen Victoria gazed with favor on the face of her servant, in the fond delusion that enigma Would it be too much trouble, it she could trace on his square, Scotch, broad lineaments come resemblance to the slightly Bourbonian outlines of Prince Albert's features. The blindness of Love and Faith must have been more far-seeing than mere human vision, for none besides her were ever able to observe any similitude; it may be. also, that above the high cheek bones of her Highland attendant, the Queen perceived, gleaming at her from hidden depthe, the light of the soul within.

THE LACROSSE GAME.

Had it not been for the brilliant playing of the St. Paul Lacrossa Club the sportive star of St. Paul would have tunken far below the horizon. It alone saved the c ty's reputation, as both the cricket and base ball clubs were defeated. The game was decidedly the best ever witnessed in St. Paul. The first game took 6½ minutes, the ball being put through by Lovell after a very hard tussle. In the second game foul was claimed by Donahue of the visiting team, after the tall had been put through the prescribed limits. The claim was allowed, and the ball faced again, and after twenty-one minutes of hard playing, Devine put it through the goal. The game, up to the time foul was claimed, took thirty-four minutes, and from that time to the close twenty-one minutes, making the total time of the game fifty-five minutes. The third game occupied six minutes, the ball being put through by Smith. After the Queensland, whose Parliament, he says, game the clubs took supper at the International, where speeches were made by Mayor Ames and Col. Glenn of Minuespells, Col. Agnew of Chicago, J. T. Lee, president of the Minnespells club, Dr. McDonald, president of the home team and others. The con-

I was born on the Lansdowne estate, near Kenmare, about thirty years ago, and had a thousand fold better opportunities of judging Lord Larsdowne's sets than the Rev. BERNARD GALLAGHER AT HOME. HE THINK'S A FAIR TRIAL FOR A CONSPIRATOR IMPOSSIBLE.

NEW YORK, July 23 -Bernard Gallagher, the brother of Dr. Thomas Gallagher, who was sentenced recently to hard labor for life cated in dynamite conspiracies, has arrived at his home at Greenpoint and was seen by a reporter. He at first refused to talk, preterring, he said, to avoid any newspaper notoriety; but he subsequently conversed freely on the recent trials of his brother and himself. Ber. nard Gallagher is a man about five feet ten inches in height and muscular in appearl ance.

"My brother and I," he said, "left New York for Europe, with no definite object in view, except to seek recreation and enjoy-We separated at Liverpool, my broment. ther going direct to London, while I proceeded to Glasgow, where I had a good position offered me which I accepted. My brother on his arrival in London put up at the Charing Oross flotel, registering as Dr. Thomas Gallagher, Brooklyn, United States. The man Norman, whose convict name is James Gibney, and who claimed to know my brother, is the most infamous liar that ever lived. My brother never saw him before his arrest. And let me say here, neither of us at any time, in any place, or under any circumstances has been connected with or has had the slightest knowledge of any of the secret societies, such as the Emerald Club.

"We never even knew of the existence of any dynamite schools, and now that we do know of them, we consider their existence the height of folly. We have never seen O'Donovan Rossa, nor do we know any of the other so-called leaders. My brother, no doubt, was convicted through the evidence of the man Fletcher, but this evidence was against my brother. I never wrote a single serious and letter except to my mother in America may be released is that Fletcher will turn up some other time and give evidence that will make a new trial necessary.

"My acquital was due, I think, to the fact that the Government wished to display some had to submit partially to the claims of the Attorney General, who was inclined to give us the benefit of the doubt. The recent expiosions at Westminster are now attributed by all sensible people in England to a lot of wretched rogues whose object is robbery and not revenge. Too much cannot be said in praise of the officials of the prison where we were locked up, as they afforded us every material comfort. Public opinion in England is very bitter against any one accused of conspiracy. It is impossible for an accused man to obtain a fair trial. Why, when sentence was passed upon my brother, the mob in attendance on the trial fairly shouted with joy. "My plans for the future are not arranged.

I hope to settle down here if I can obtain any suitable employment."

AUSTRALIAN CONFEDERATION. MELECURNE, July 21 .- At a mass meeting here, at which the Mayor presided, resolutions were unanimously passed indorsing the address of the Victorian Parliament to the Queen, which urged that New Guinea and other Pacific islands be annexed or a protectorate established over them.

The despatch from Earl Derby, the colonial Secretary, to the Government of Queensland in regard to the proposed annexation of New Guinea is published. In it Lord Derby states that official inquiry at Paris and Berlin shows that the fears of foreign annexation of New Guinea are groundless, and he emphasizes the objections of the home government to the annexation of that island by pected of desiring to acquire a supply of colored labor for the sugar industry.

the subject appears in the Daily Telegraph of yesterday:—

THE "CORMORANT BROOD."

It might not mean hanging, but pains and penalties dire would undoubtedly fall upon an Irish newspaper that placarded Royalty as head of the "cormorant brood." We have recently, from time to time, shown the immense appetite of the reigning family, in all its branches, for emolument, pay for pictorial Lord Lansdowne rack-rented, evicted and offices, and pension for continuing to do planted where once were happy though nothing on retirement. It is, therefore, proper that a stand should be made at once against any attempt to combine the advantages of two incompatible positions." This is pretty strong for the Times, and indicates a deep-seated feeling. Commenting on it, an English Radical journal goes very rough-handed to the case, and remarks that " surely this is a very significant hint to the Guelph or Grab family that the appointments of Edinburghs, Connaughts, and a host of other counterfelt generals, admirals, etc., to situations that should be filled by experienced and meritorious officers is a shame and a scandal-s hint the head and members of the cormorant brood would do well not to disregard." With regard to the strike we may here state that brokers and business men are greatly dissatisfied at the state of affairs. In some cases telegrams which were sent from Chicago yesterday did not arrive until today, and numerous cases of loss are mentioned. The pretension of the telegraph monopoly that things are working all right is so much humbug, and the Company is soundly rated and condemned on all sides.

In the money market the usual rate of discount for mercantile paper is 7 per cent. Loans on stocks are made at 5 to 51 per cent on call, 6 per cent on time.
