Periodicals.

The Social Economist contains a number of timely articles. The opening article, "Mandate of the Election," deals with the subjects that will demand the immediate attention of Republican Statesmen. These are mainly the revenue, the money question, the foreign policy, and the labour question. The writer points out, moreover, that the mandate of the election is chiefly that a protective policy is insisted upon. Another article discusses the legal merits of the Venezuelan question, and finds that "so far as official documents throw any light on the subject, the facts are against the Venezuelan claim." There is an excellent paper on "Woman Labour in England." Other subjects discussed in the December Economist are "The Great Metropolitan Bridge," "The Tariff," "Practical Christian Sociology," "Economic Service of Capital," "The Status of Sociology," and "Trade Unionism vs. Socialism." The editorial comments are all instructive and well-timed.

The Expository Times has more than one article significant of the changed views of the Old Testament entertained in these days. The "Song of Songs" has been the crux of expositors; and the headings of the chapters in the Authorized Version show how the translators thought it necessary to endow the poem with a mystical meaning in order to justify its place in the Canon. The view prescribed by Canon Fox, in the article before us, is that of Dalilzsch and others who regard the poem as an Epithalamium. It is here given in metre and will be completed hereafter. Several subjects begun in previous numbers are continued; the reviews of new books are done with care and candour, and many of the shorter articles are most suggestive for teachers and preachers.

Last month's issue of Athletic Life contained, among other interesting articles, an excellent paper on Football by the editor, Mr. De la Fosse.

Personal.

Friends of Mr. T. G. Marquis, B.A., retiring English master of the Stratford Collegiate Institute, met recently and presented him with a well-filled purse as a token of their appreciation of his worth. The presentation was made by Hon. Thos. Ballantyne in a neat speech.
