

be for continued high unemployment in industrial countries as authorities struggle with embedded inflationary expectations. For non-oil LDCs not only would there be no improvement in the debt burden but poorer economic performance would impair their ability to borrow.