

The Mandate

July 11, 1988

The following information was received from the Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security on July 11, 1988.

The Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security (CIPS) is a non-profit organization that was established in 1978. Its mandate is to promote peace and security through research, education, and public awareness. CIPS is currently working on a project to develop a national strategy for international peace and security.

The project is being funded by the Government of Canada through the Department of International Trade and Technical Cooperation. The project will involve a series of workshops and seminars on international peace and security, as well as the development of a national strategy for international peace and security.

The project is being coordinated by the Canadian Institute for International Peace and Security, which is currently working on a national strategy for international peace and security. The project will be completed by the end of 1989.

Sincerely,
