It is described as a musical comedy, altho there is rather more farce than comedy, but the audinates and the spring of 1910, when she was pleasing some and the spring of 1910, when she was pleasing some and the spring of 1910, when she was scores. William Schroeder is responsible day morning. for the music in this case, and has succeeded in setting the lively and attractive book to captivating numbers, which are distinctly above the average in style and distinctly above the average in style and quality. Several of the songs were catchy enough to hold the ear, and half-a-dozen of them got on the encore list. The vocal end of the performance was really su-perior, and in Miss Dorothy Webb, Craig Campbell Thomas ell, Thomas A. Conkey, Miss Eileen Van Blene, Misha Ferenzo, and the excel-lent chorus, the production has a strong foundation. The action takes place in the living room of the Van Cuyler residence on the Hudson. Edward Van Cuyler, an elderly uncle of Eloise and Jimmy. is discovered asleep by his butler seven beautiful young ladies, and seven equally beautiful domestics. All retire except the slumberer, who dreams, and ingeniously manages to animate the family ancestors, who sing a delightful quartet from their illuminated picture frames. It is the day on which Eloise comes of age, but her uncle insists of age, but her uncle insists that she does not attain her majority un-til five o'clock. If this is not good in law this is not good in law it is quite valid in musical comedy, and works out for the embellishment of the plot. Eloise gets rid of her uncle and introduces a bevy of girl friends and a troop of her brother's college chums, among whom is Sam Warren, from Texas, whom she perversely repels, but who determines to marry her, altho he disapproves of the wild splash into social gaiety upon which she is resolved. A stage toilet gives the audience a gasp while the dainty Eloise robes herself in a garment which Sam declares is not a dress but a veil. The frivolous heiress sets her heart on a hundred dresses, a hundred pairs of boots and ten motor cars, and takes the plugge into en motor cars, and takes the plunge into society, chaperoned by Mrs. Draper-Cowles, an impecunious hanger-on with a daughter, Maude. The chaperon, very well played by Mrs. Wheatcroft, has invited Count Piniaselli in order to marry him to Eloise, but he and Maude have already fallen victims to each other. fallen victims to each other. Russian dancer, another Paylowa, with her French partner, has been en-saged for the birthday fete, and she has brought her jewels along. They are con-tained in a box identical with one in which Piniaselli carries his credentials, and are taken by mistake. All the errors of the supposed theft are visited on the the supposed theft are visited on the heads of Sam and Uncle Edward, who plot the loss of Eloise's fortune in order to cure her of frivolity, and the music and the actionthus weave things wrong and unravel them right. The irruption of the college boys with their yell is a rousing incident and was encored. The duet, "If We Must Part," by Miss Van Biene and M. Firenzo, was encored. Firenzo has a capital operatic tenor and it was heard to good effect afterwards in "When I Sing in Grand Operation"." "Present Operation of the control of

Another rousing college song was "Life is Just a Song and a Smoke and a Joke, You've Got to See the Old Game Thru." The tag-rag dance which followed had three encores, and the performance concluded triumphantly with the duct, "Love's Awakening," by Mr. Conkey and Miss Webb. The piece should be a prime favorite, and if it has any fault, it is that of presenting too many good things. THEME OF PLAY GOOD

Mr.Quigley as "Father Kelly" Gives a Splendid Portrayal of the Beloved Priest.

"The Rosary," a drama which breathes purity and goodfellowship and leads the way to a brighter view of life and humanity, is the offering at the Grand Opera House this week, and at the opening performance last evening was witnessed by a big audience, ample proof that the play has lost none of its popularity. Its endorsement by prominent clergymen all over the continent has had onsiderable to do with its success, and judging by the warmth of the reception t promises to live for a number of years. The theme of the play concerns a man and woman happily married and surrounded with every luxury that money can secure. But the hus band is an unbeliever—an atheist without a faith of any kind. There is a jarring note in the household harmony, a personality at war with the peace and love of its members. No one notices this until a friend of he husband comes, Father Kelly, a priest of the modern world, with a deep insight into human nature and a divine love for his fellowmen. When stress and trouble comes, when the home is wrecked and husband and wife are brought down to the depths of suffering, it is the priest's calm courage and faith that saves them, driving away the clouds of suspicion. driving away the clouds of suspicion, doubt, mistrust, and bringing them both into the sunlight of hope and love. There is nothing strained, nothing theatric in the story unfolded, and every theatregoer, as he sits in his seat and listens to the drama, feels that he is witnessing a real transcript of life. Jay Quigley as Father Kelly gives a splendid portrayal of the priest, presenting in an earnest manner the various qualities—love for his friends, devotion to his religion and broadminded charity. The supporting company is all that could be desired and the story is unfolded in an interesting manner. The play is so well-known here and so popular that there is no doubt of it playing to capacity houses all week, and especially at the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Which were exceedingly well trained, took part in a decidedly unique entertainment. An enthusiastic reception was accorded the "Five Meiody Monarchs and Maid," whose program included some very good singing, dancing and instrumental numbers. The planists were very fine. "Spooks," Whipple and Hudson's offering, was quite original. Ben Beye, and Brother are cyclists of excellent talent. Leonard and Haley have some catchy songs. McRae and Clegg offer a bright musical program, including several numbers, introducing a sweet-tened harp and Moore and Jankie.

ADULTS NO LONGER ESCHEW BLUE BIRD

Maeterlinck's Symbolic Play Has Won Its Way Into Toronto Hearts.

IS ACTED WITH CHARM

Wealth of Exquisite Fancy -"Mary Goes First" Opens Tempest Week.

It has been remarked recently by a critic of note that the stage is on the verge of better things; that cleaner and more wholesome plays are being produced and that the mere desire to divert the mind of business-wearied patrons is giving way to the nobler one of stirring their appreciation of things worth while. If such be the case the Blue Bird ranks as a pioneer in the newer movement. It has come again to the Royal Alexandra, and the spirit it breathes is as sweet and clean as of yore.

Maeterlinck is one of the writers whose place in halls of literary fame stands secure. The wealth of exquisite fancy which he has thrown about the tale of the Blue Bird Mas rendered it as nearly immortal as the work of any modern author may hope to approach; and in the dramatization its beauty is not sacrificed in any particular. Rather has every artifice which stagecraft knows been turned to the emphasizing of the general sentiment of the story.

The thread of the tale itself is so well-known as to require no detailed exposition. The quest for happiness carried on by Mytyl and Tyltyl is pursued daily by the thousands that populate the earth and that explains the fascination of the Blue Bird.

One thing was to be observed last evening: the public has recognized that this Maeterlinck creation is not a play for children. Last year the impression got abroad that a real child's play had come, but takes a mind matured to some extent by experience to appreciate the full beauty of it and to gather the moral hidden beneath. Children take the leading roles because the "soul of the grown-up is the soul of a child."

The supporting cast is very satisfactory and the scenery and stage effects are well-timed and areas and stage effects.

meath. Children take the leading roles because the "soul of the grown-up is the soul of a child."

The supporting cast is very satisfactory and the scenery and stage effects are well-timed and appropriate. Master Jack Davis and his charming little associate, Harriet Mendel, captivate with their ingenuous deportment, and the host of other youngsters share in the honry. The dances are graceful and refined and the impersonations of the Cat, the Dog, the elements and comestibles are as popular as ever.

Seats For Marie Tempest's farewell repertoire engagement at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, beginning next Monday night, will be placed on sale tomorrow at the theatre box office. The plays in her repertoire are "The Marriage of Kitty," and the two new productions. "The Barn" and "Art and Opportunity." The company supporting Miss Tempest is the same that shared with her the honors of the London production of "Mary Goes First." Besides W. Graham Browne, the cast includes Kenyon Mussgrave, Franklin Dyall, John Alexander, Herbert Ross, Guy Newall, Norman Loring, Norton Cooper, Miss Kate Serjeantson, Miss Lilian Cavanagh and Miss Barbara Fenn. Miss Tempest's American tour is being conducted under the auspices of the Messrs. Shubert of New York.

LOVE IN A SANITARIUM

Browning and Deane had a great line of Browning and Deane had a great line of prattle, and their songs were well rendered. Tower and Darrell, introducing "That Red-Headed Comedienne," scored well, and their nonsense produced many laughs. Harry English and company in a one-act farce, entitled "What's in a Name?" produced many funny situations, and, altho the dialog was rather vague in places, it took well. The bringing home of a pony named Little Pepita was confused by a jealous wife with the name of an actress, and the trouble commenced, Arthur and Grace Terry worked hard in their novelty rope-throwing and lariat exhibitions. The Rose Troupe of acrobats and Leona Guerney, a singer of songs, completed a lengthy bill.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous be-cause acid irritates and inflames the deli-cate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably ninestomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer, Ordinary medi-cines and medicinal treatments are use-less in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever.
