

They who would doubt the lion's might
Forget his sons the wide world c'er,
Who, swift to battle for the right,
Would fight as they have fought before.

No! Britain dies not. Many a day
Her red-cross flag shall proudly fly
O'er new-born states that own her sway.
And help to shape her destiny.