ed in the tractor show here when the downpour this afternoon caused a cessation of operations. Fully 10,000 people thronged the tented citw and adjoining grounds to-day to witness the demonstrations. Farmers and their families began to arrive early in the morning from far and near, and by two o'clock the grounds were black with the crowds. Big cars and small cars brought their quota, and a few horses ven-tured to appear among the "gas" wagons. Over 500 motor cars were lined up in the parking spaces on the grounds, most of them belonging to farmers, a most significant fact. The demonstration had hardly got well under way when the rain start-ed, and as it increased in violence the crowd began to slowly wend its way back to the tents, Before long the ground was in such a condition as to render further work impractic-able, so the demonstration was called off for today. ## Investors Awaking to Possibilities of Canadian Gold Securities

Buoyant optimism has ousted the feeling of doubting pessimism as regards the future of the gold and silver securities of the Canadian mines, brough about by the tremendous change for the better in the war outlook.

So closely is the progress of the mighty war in Europe interwoven in the affairs of the Canadian mines that it is impossible to speak of the mines without referring to the war.

The startling change in the war situation since July has had an enormously heartening effect on the. people. Where a short time ago it required all the courage of the nation to persevere, now the change in the tide has driven away gloominess and doubt, and the latest Austrian peace effort has served only to steel the hearts of the people to greater efforts. The Allied faith in the generalship of Foch has been more than justified.

As the ebbing tide of German power becomes more pronounced, the market for the Canadian mining shares will grow relatively brighter. The difficulties under which the gold mines, especially found themselves, were brought about directly b the war. The conclusion of the war, therefore, wi be the signal for a return to at least approximate former conditions.

Markets are like pendulums, now swinging this way and now that, as public buying, or public selling decrees. When the outlook is clear, and profitable operations can be carried on, dividends are anticipated and the public buys. Any doubt as to the ability of the companies to make profits invariably brings forth liquidation.

For nearly two years the pendulum of the mining market has been pushed towards the selling side. due to adverse conditions. But there is always a point where the pendulum will not go any further. We believe that point was reached two months ago. Latterly the swing has been definitely towards higher prices.

As conditions improve with the approach of the end of the war, the momentum of the pendulum will. become greater and greater. Peace should witness a long "bull" period in the mine stocks.

That the swing towards higher prices is now under way is proven by the action of the natural leaders. Stocks like Hollinger, Dome, McIntyre, and recently Porcupine Crown, have all displayed a rising tendency.

This was only to be expected, as the actual intrinsic value of these companies is undeniably greater than the present market value, as represented by current prices.

It does not require abnormal clarity of vision to foresee increasing prosperity for mining companies, who have already gold values in ore proven underground running into the millions.

And the smaller companies, which have not reached the stage of development of the big ones, have a speculative value in most cases much greater than the present market price of the shares.

It is a fact that about the time that the war commenced more English and American capital than at any time previously in the history of the Canadian mining industry was being attracted to our camps. Growing and vigorous gold camps have a faculty of drawing money, as probably no other field of investment.

The influx of outside capital was stopped prematurely by the war, but there is every reason to believe that after the war this flow will be resumed on a scale that will make the mining districts of the north teem with activity. From results obtained at the big mines and the showings of the smaller ones. there is no room for pessimism as to growth of the Canadian mining industry under such conditions.

We have an unalterable conviction that no only is a boom coming in the mining markets, but that this boom will be justified by the greatest burst of activity in the camps that they have ever known.

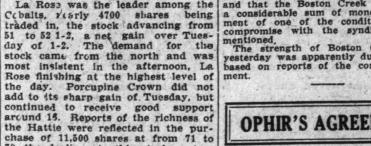

On this account we firmly believe that the gold and silver stocks of the Canadian north country should be bought without hesitation.

It is also well to remember that, so far a markets are concerned, it is anticipation that spells profits, not realization. He who ventures nothing usually gains the same degree.

Therefore, we advise early commitments. Write us for analysis of the good gold stocks.
