ers to give sectarian instruction, even voluntarily. As to Religious Instruction. The bill provides for the religious instruction proposed by the Cowper Temple, a year or so ago; that is, 45 minutes a day of undenominational teaching. The bill also provides for contracting out of schools committed to denominational teachings, as, for instance, the Roman Catholics. They will get a parliamentary grant pro-vided they fulfil certain conditions, but they will receive no rate aid. Cath-olic assent to the bill will probably largely depend on whether the par-liamentary grant is sufficient, in the words of Archbishop Bourne, "to keep our schools permanently in efficient being."
