ATHLETIC MOGULS MEET AT WINNIPEG

Reports Presented and Many Delegates for Betterment of Canadian Sport.

Winnipeg, Dec. 10.—With nearly fifty delegates on hand, all armed with the necessary material to make a stiff fight for what they consider the best interests for amateur sport thruout the Dominion most important meeting in the history of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada got under way here this morn-

President McDonald, in his report to the union, made a strong plea for the maintenance of true amateurism in sport. Referring directly to the suggestion that the union be split into eastern and western divisions, Dr. McDonald viewed the movement with alarm, and hoped that no such step would be taken. From British Columbia came an appeal for consideration on the grounds of "isolation," by Davidson of the University of British Columbia, who urged the pooling of expenses of delegates and athletes to representative meets. An extension of the prerogative of the union to the ndividual branches regarding reinstatement of professionals under clause B of the amateur rule, was asked, and a hope expressed that associations claiming national significance should be national. In this connection, the Intercollegiate Union was mentioned, Dr. Davidson stating that this body should throw its membership open to western universities.

Speaking on behalf of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, W. M. Noble of Winnipeg called the attention of the delegates to the peculiar situation brought about by the migration of players, and the recent scandal in Alberta hockey ranks, Mr. Noble called for greater co-operation between the provincial branches of the union and local hockey association, as the best method of securing protection against migration. He also asked that the men who made the offers which induced hockey players to "migrate" be weeded out of amateur sport, suspended or expelled from further participation in sport.

James Merrick, secretary of the Canadian Olympic committee, submitte da report, which seemed to be satisfactory to the delegates present.
