

Furniture of Distinction for Dining-room and Library

For dining-room and library, the principal living rooms of the house, the furniture should be of a substantial character, with the idea of ornament subordinated to that of usefulness.

That furniture can be made possessing artistic beauty in design and proportion and at the same time convenient, comfortable and of real practical utility is evidenced all through the splendid winter exhibit of furniture for these rooms now arranged on our second floor. Even a hurried inspection will convince one of another fact also—that good furniture is not necessarily expensive.

These items will give an idea of the wide range covered by our showing in mahogany alone. In oak—"fumed," early English, cathedral and golden—we have an assortment almost as large.

A NICE AMUSEMENT

Parkdale Roller Rink Uses a New Invention Which Prevents Slipping and Eliminates All Dust—The Only Noiseless Floor in America.

When a roller rink floor becomes slippery, it is like skating on ice with a dull pair of blades, every stroke of the skater slips and slides and skating becomes tiresome.

A slippery rink floor not only takes all the pleasure from the pastime, but is also very dangerous.

To overcome slipping has been a difficult problem with rink men for years. The use of pumice, chalk, rosin, whitening, etc., will to a certain degree stop slipping, but it creates a more serious condition by filling the rink with dust and it is the very use of these various powders on the skating surface which killed the rink business twenty years ago.

Roller rinks now are using a new scientific liquid treatment on the floor to prevent slipping, which is called Dustless Anti-Slip.

A thin coating of this liquid is applied to the floor two or three times a week, after it becomes dry and sets the floor becomes very fast, slipping is impossible and there is absolutely no dust.

Old rink men claim that Dustless Anti-Slip has been known twenty years ago, that the roller rink business would have continued to flourish up to the present day.

Mr. Ryan, manager of Parkdale Rink, in speaking to The World, states that the use of this liquid preparation on Parkdale floor has doubled the business at the rink. "We wouldn't think of running without Dustless Anti-Slip," says Mr. Ryan, "it keeps our noiseless floor in perfect condition."

The Parkdale Rink is conducted in the most approved manner, it is first-class in every respect, and the patronage is made up from the very best people in the city.

The management informs the writer, that on Tuesday, Nov. 16, another of the famous block parties will be given.

THAT FIRST-WATER SECTION WITH THE BELL-SHAPED FLUES IS FOUND ONLY ON A

OXFORD HOT WATER BOILER

A Hot Water Boiler is made up of a firepot and so many water sections. The first water section receives the greatest heat—it overhangs the fire. To be more definite we illustrate a sectional view of firepot and first water section in a Gurney-Oxford boiler. Note how the firewalls slope in—round fire and on first water section—two exclusive features found only in the Gurney-Oxford Boiler—positive proof of economy and efficiency—Economy because the fire heat is properly used up in heating the water—not the smoke-stack. Efficiency—because even when the fire is low the water is kept warm. A post card will bring you a Handsome Booklet on "Heating the Home—the Modern Way"—interesting—instructive—free.

A MIGHTY ORGANIZATION

World-Wide Ramifications—Organized Relief—Sun Never Sets Upon Its Beneficent Operations.

It was a pathetic sight—according to our own correspondent—to hear "the remarkable Octogenarian Commander-in-Chief of the greatest Missionary Organization in the World" announce in a calm manner that he had lost the sight of one eye, and the other was fast failing. Following this announcement, however, was the declaration—characteristic of the man—that he hoped to be able to direct the affairs of the world-wide army for some years to come.

The indomitable courage and energy which has stamped General Booth's career seems also to have made its impress upon the movement of which he is the founder. In all parts of the world the heroic workers of this Organization are to be found, night and day, prosecuting their beneficent labors among the poor and the unfortunate. Human suffering is their sole, but effectual, apology for methods that may not always appeal to those of esthetic tastes. A needy soul, or the victim of unfortunate circumstances, is not likely to be bothered about such tastes, however, any more than a drunken man, and are usually in about as much need of urgent help. It is the Army's proximity to the great masses, and its susceptibility to the needs that has caused its work to be recognized among all classes.

"If the Salvation Army was wiped out of London, it would require $500 additional policemen to take its place in the prevention of crime and disorder." To-day Statesmen, Philanthropists and Ministers declare that the Army has become a necessary factor in the fabric of affairs, and could not be abolished without consequences such as we do not wish to contemplate.

We are reminded by the approach of that festive season which brings cheer and gladness to all classes that those in comfortable circumstances have not only a duty to perform as stewards, but have a glorious privilege to send Christmas cheer to others by remembering the poor and the unfortunate. The various institutions of the Salvation Army offer a ready means of access to numbers of such men, women and children. Your assistance in these works of mercy is earnestly requested.

Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

DAUGHTER OF MAYOR GAYNOR TO WED SOON

One of the Wealthiest Young Men of L. I. Summer Colony the Other Party.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Wedding bells will mingle with the inaugural acclaim for Mayor-elect William J. Gaynor. The no formal announcement has been made by the family, and probably none will be for some time, it became known that Miss Gertrude Emily Gaynor, Mr. Gaynor's eldest daughter, has become engaged to Alexander Stewart Wetherell, one of the wealthiest young men of the summer colony at St. James, L. I., where Mr. Gaynor has his summer home.

That an engagement exists between the young people will be news to the residents there, tho it will probably be no surprise, as they are seen almost daily on horseback together riding over the country roads. Their engagement is the culmination of a boy and girl romance which may be said to date back to seven years ago, when Mr. Gaynor and his family first became summer residents at St. James. Miss Gaynor is 19 and Mr. Wetherell is 24.

The Wetherell home, a splendid place overlooking the bay, is only a short walk from Deep Wells, the Gaynor residence, and the young people have been good friends since the families first became acquainted.

Wetherell is popular at St. James. He has been spending his summers there since he was a boy. His father was a Presbyterian minister and during some years ago. His mother died last year. He is grandson of Judge J. Lawrence Smith of Suffolk County. His mother is one of the four daughters of Judge Smith. They were Mrs. Wetherell, Mrs. Prescott Hall Butler, Mrs. Stanford White, widow of the architect, and Mrs. Dovebreast Emmitt.

Miss Gaynor is a handsome young woman, who is fond of outdoor life.

counters with big African game. The dangerous game of Africa, he says, are the lion, buffalo, elephant, rhinoceros and leopard and the hunter that follows them does so at a certain risk of his life or limb. The leopard, he said, in point of pluck and ferocity, is more than equal of the other four, but his small size always renders it likely that he will merely maul, and not kill a man.

"My friend, Carl Akely, of Chicago, actually killed, barehanded, a leopard which sprang on him," says Mr. Roosevelt. "He had already wounded the beast twice, crippling it in one front and one hind paw, whereupon he charged, followed him as he tried to dodge the charge, and struck him full just as he turned. It bit him in one arm, biting again and again as it worked up the arm from the wrist to the elbow; but Akely threw it, holding it's throat with the other hand, and flinging its body to one side. It luckily fell on its side with its wounded legs uppermost, so that it could not tear him. He fell forward with it and crushed in its chest with his knees until he distinctly felt one of its ribs crack. 'This,' said Akely, 'was the first moment when he felt he might conquer.' Redoubting his efforts, with knees and hands, he actually choked and crushed the life out of it, although his arm was badly bitten."

Mr. Roosevelt devotes considerable space to telling how he brought to bay and finally killed a lion.

"I could still not see the lion when I knelt," he says, "but he was now standing up, looking first at one group of horses and then at another, his tail lashing to and fro, his head held low, and his lips dropped over his mouth in peculiar fashion, while his harsh and savage growling rolled thunderously over the plain. Seeing Simba and me on foot, he turned toward us, his tail lashing quicker and quicker.

"Resting my elbow on Simba's bent shoulder, I took steady aim and pressed the trigger; the bullet went in between the neck and shoulder, and the lion fell over on his side, one foreleg in the air. He recovered in a moment and stood up, evidently very sick, and once more faced me, growling hoarsely. I think he was on the eve of charging. I fired again at once, and this bullet broke his back just behind the shoulders and with the next I killed him outright, after we had gathered around him."

BYGONE PIANO ART; THE ORPHICA

The early nineteenth century was a period of unrest and experiment, conditions which found expression even in its musical instruments. Such oddities as the "Orphica" were common another strange "piano" being the "Gtraffe," opening like a cabinet and standing some eight feet high.
