

BURROUGHS JOINS EDISON CAMPERS

Tents Are Pitched in Naturalist's Orchard

Ford's Name Cut on Boulder; Pair Chat Before Roaring Wood Fire Like Happy Schoolboys

Roxbury, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When Henry Ford reaches Roxbury to join the camping trip through the Catskills and Adirondacks, which Thomas A. Edison, Harvey S. Firestone and John Burroughs are taking, he will find his name immortalized in John Burroughs' own handwriting. It is engraved in solid rock beside the road a few rods from Woodchuck Lodge, Md. Burroughs' Roxbury cottage in the mountains. The naturalist set his just put it there himself with a hammer and chisel, which Mr. Ford sent him for the purpose.

Two years ago Mr. Ford was visiting Mr. Burroughs in Roxbury. One day time was hanging heavily on their hands. Mr. Burroughs said to Mr. Ford: "I have a lot across the road which has not been of any use to me because it is full of rocks, and I don't know what to do about it."

Mr. Ford, being a practical man, replied: "Why can't we go over and clear it out?"

For two whole weeks, with the occasional assistance of two farm hands, John Burroughs and Henry Ford, with their shirt-sleeves rolled up, dragged rocks out of that field. Mr. Burroughs admits that they paused occasionally and that there was a day once in a while when they did other things, but the fact remains that the field is now clear of boulders.

In honor of his distinguished helper, Mr. Burroughs named the plot "Ford Field." He spent most of Tuesday lying stretched out on a big boulder at the side of the road getting the title chiseled into it. Below the name is a huge hand pointing out the location of the field.

Like Happy Schoolboys.

At eight o'clock John Burroughs and "Tom" Edison were sitting together like two happy school boys before a roaring wood fire in front of their tent, discussing the nature of primitive man. The camp was pitched in the orchard in front of Woodchuck Lodge on the high hillside, with the beautiful Delaware Valley spread out before them.

They reached Roxbury about six. Mr. Edison was in high good humor. He pointed out delightedly the arrangements made for the comfort of the campers—the electric lights in the tents, the camp cots, and the stores of good things to eat packed away in the trunk which Mr. Firestone added to the commissary department.

The crowd dried on fish. Did they catch the fish themselves? That was what John Burroughs wanted to know. They didn't exactly catch those fish. But they got them off the man who did, which is certainly closer to nature than buying them in a fish market.

It must be added here that before the automobile party arrived Mr. Burroughs was a tiny bit uncertain as to what he was getting into.

Doesn't Fit Into Dusk.

"There is nothing like camp life," he said. "I've been camping all my eighty odd years, but I'll have to admit that at my age a bed feels pretty good to me, and I haven't particular scruples against a hotel once in a while. I find that my body doesn't fit into the crevices and bumps of a camp bunk as it used to."

When he heard that the expedition was to include tents, cots and other accessories, with four husky men to take care of them, he looked relieved.

No one can charge that Mr. Burroughs is losing his hunter's eye.

"I've been doing a bit of gardening here," he said, with pardonable pride exhibiting a handsome squash and a peck of huge potatoes. "It's a bit difficult sometimes to get rid of the rabbits and woodchucks, but I've forced out the rabbits, and as for the woodchucks, well, I've shot twenty-five from my porch, and that's seventeen better than the record of my nearest competitor among the neighbors."

Although the post-naturalist would like to have his guests of the night remain in Roxbury, the spirit of exploration has seized upon them all, and under Dr. Burroughs' guidance they were off

FORD ANSWERS LIBEL SUIT.

Declares His Statements About Navy League Substantially True.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Henry Ford, through his attorneys, has filed answer in the supreme court of the District of Columbia to the charges of the Navy League, which instituted a libel suit to recover from him $100,000 damages. Mr. Ford in display newspaper advertisements said that the league was supported by the munitions makers. The suit was filed at the instance of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the league.

Mr. Ford denies that he was guilty of defamatory libel, and insists that his statements were substantially true. He also contends that the statements were privileged, as the matter with which they dealt concerned the people of the United States. He also points out that similar statements had been published in broadcast and made in congress without denial from the Navy League.

WOMEN WORKING IN THE FREIGHT SHEDS

Act as Checkers and Assist in Unloading Lighter Parcels; C.P.R. Well Satisfied

(Toronto Mail).

Women are now working in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's freight sheds at the corner of Simcoe and Wellington streets, and are, W. Coulter, local freight agent says, giving satisfaction. They will be employed at Parkdale, West Toronto and North Toronto and at many points of the company's system, including Montreal.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has been impelled to avail itself of the services of women in its freight sheds by the shortage of labor. It has in the last few days engaged about 17 girls at the office at the corner of Simcoe and Wellington streets. All of these are the wives or members of the families of soldiers. Eight of these young women are employed in the freight sheds and four of them have husbands at the front. They act as door checkers, that is, they check all the freight delivered by teams at the sheds for shipment to points outside the city. Shortly more women will be engaged to act as delivery checkers, that is, to check incoming freight handed over to teamsters for delivery to the consignees.

In the sheds the young women can be seen, book in hand, marking off the packages brought by teams to the sheds to be placed on cars and sent to other places. In the past checkers were required to assist the teamsters unload their lorry. The young women do help with some of the lighter parcels, but are not called upon to handle heavy ones, because the men, who are displaced by women, are not given other positions. General Manager A. D. MacTier recently visited the freight sheds at Simcoe and Wellington streets, and he saw the young women at work, talked to them and expressed himself as well pleased with the innovation.

RALLY FOR RECRUITS IN IMPERIAL TONIGHT

Recruiting still continues dull and unless something develops before the last of the week the city will fall into position in the weekly returns.

The only bright feature in prospect is the recruiting rally tonight at the Imperial, 10 O'Clock, in an effort to secure 100 men to complete the establishment of the 140th Battalion. The speakers of the evening will be Lieut.-Col. F. A. Guthrie, O. C. of the 140th Battalion, and Sergeant Bradbury, and if anticipations are realized the visit of the recruiting party will not be in vain.

The meeting will follow the second performance at the theatre and young men personally interested are earnestly invited to attend. The object is to select immediately the men to complete the unit as it is going overseas within two weeks. The attractions are manifold. There will be no delay in Canada to train, and assurance is given that the body will go to the front intact. Furthermore, the regiment is more representative of the city than any yet sent overseas, twenty-two of the officers and 440 of the men belonging here. And this is no small inducement to be identified with a unit so thoroughly St. John. Units composed of St. John stock have played prominently in events at the front so that her soldiers as a whole are being recognized as the most courageous and ingenious soldiers in the service.

Apple Crop Will Be Poor

Daniel Johnson, Dominion Fruit Commissioner, who is visiting the Toronto Exhibition, says that the Ontario apple crop will be sixty per cent. of that of last year and that the quality will be half as large as the crop of 1915. While the Ontario apple crop is small that of the northwestern states is large.

Carrigan's
Retirement
From the Game

Of the reported retirement of Wm. F. Carrigan of the Boston Braves from baseball at the close of the season, Edward F. Martin wrote the Boston Globe from Washington as follows:

Washington, Sept. 12.—Gloom swept through the Red Sox ball club at the Harrington today when Manager William F. Carrigan confirmed the report that he will retire from baseball at the end of the present season, when his contract with the Boston American League Club will expire.

There have been many rumors concerning Carrigan's probable retirement, but he has merely laughed at them and when the latest one was heard today it was expected that Carrigan would pass out the usual laugh and say, "See Joe Lannin."

"See Joe Lannin" is just what he did say, but he said it in such a way that it was plain to be seen that there was something behind his words. After a little pressing, Carrigan, who never was much of a talker, finally admitted that he would quit the game at the end of this season and that he would have done so at the end of the 1915 season, only that his contract had a year to run.

"A month ago," said Carrigan, "I told President Lannin of my plans. He has passed them on to the committee. With a laugh Bill added 'My arm has gone back on me.' Players tried to muster courage to say something pleasant when they heard of Carrigan's announcement, but there was a lot of choking up. No manager was ever fairer in his dealings with players than Bill, who, while a great mixer, played no favorites and always called a spade a spade."

"I don't need to play baseball," said Carrigan, "I have plenty of money." When asked if he could be persuaded to change his mind, he stated that he would retire from the game for good at the end of the year and that all the King's horses and all the King's men could not drag him back into it.

"I gave President Lannin plenty of notice, I am really through. I told him a month ago, so that he could make whatever plans he wished regarding my successor, and who he may be I do not know. I did not want to wait until the season was over and then declare myself. The decision might be formed that I was trying to get a better contract. I am done with baseball after this season. Carrigan is a man of his word."

Manager Carrigan is well fixed financially. According to reports, money he made in baseball he invested profitably and he merely stuck to baseball for the love of it.

It was ten years ago last June that Carrigan came to the Red Sox from Holy Cross College, where he was a star baseball and football player. He caught and played the infield on the ball team and was a guard on the eleven. One of his first big achievements in Boston uniform was catching the first pitched innings of the notable twenty-four inning game that Joe Harris pitched against Jack Coombs, Sept. 1, 1906.

In the spring of 1907 he was sent to the Toronto team of the International League under an optional agreement. That season the Maple Leafs won the championship of their league and Carrigan was instrumental in their triumph.

Recalled By Boston.

He was one of the stars of the league and was recalled, arriving back in Boston in time to get into a post-season game in which he pitched a shutout for the Red Sox. In that series his all-around work was a revelation.

As a coach of young pitchers, Bill has been a tremendous success. In the days when Joe Wood started and when Eddie Cicotte, Ed. Karger, and Charlie Hall were in there coaching them along. Later Ray Collins was another pitcher who did his best when Bill was behind the plate. Carrigan's games were always stood out conspicuously. The way he blocked off runners at the home plate proved his courage better than anything else. He was a veritable iron gate.

"Dutch" Leonard owes much of his success to the tutoring of Bill, who makes the Dutchman work every minute. Carrigan's games earned him the nickname of "Dutch" some years ago. He might have been rough in his way, but he was never intentionally injured a fellow ball player and was respected by all players.

He was appointed manager of the club in July, 1915, after Jake Stahl had been deposed by James McAlleer, who was the president of the club. In the autumn prior to his appointment as manager, Carrigan and Wagner were big factors in the winning of the world's championship from the Giants. They were the Red Sox's strategy board.

Only the other day Bill remarked that he had spent a very happy career with the Red Sox and that he had to smile every time any one mentioned the supposed fight during the World's Series in 1918 between Carrigan and a fellow ball player, and was respected by all players.

"I never could understand how such a story was ever started," Carrigan said.

Players Dismayed.

Some of the players have been aware of the rumors regarding the retirement of Manager Carrigan, but have never made any comment on it. Today, when the actual announcement was made they were uncomfounded. Now they want to work all the harder to win so that Bill Carrigan may complete his career in the baseball hall of glory.

Who his successor will be is now the big question. There has been talk of Connie Mack selling his Philadelphia interests and coming to the Red Sox as manager, but the astute Connie has given this story a denial. There is a possibility of President Lannin selling the club.

If a successor is taken from the players with the club the choice would undoubtedly be between Heinie Wagner, Jack Barry and Dick Hoblitzel. Wagner and Barry, with Bill, were members of the famous trinity of strategists while Dick Hoblitzel is one of the smart ball players of the country and also has the equipment for the job. Whatever Carrigan does he does is known by President Lannin, who is at present in Boston. Carrigan has no idea what will happen in Boston and will not be back in Boston until two weeks from today.

Master Strategist Carrigan is ready to stage his last big act in the big show, and his supporting cast is strong to put the goods over for him.

Y. M. C. A. SOCIAL COMMITTEE.

The social committee of the Y. M. C. A. met at the rooms last night to perfect its organization and to outline the policy for the coming year. A. F. Blake, chemist at the city refinery, was elected chairman of the committee and H. I. Knowles was chosen to act as secretary. The other members of the committee are Chas. E. Upham, Hilton B. Crowley, Fred N. Myles, Ralph S. Stephenson and A. E. Hoyt. This committee will act in conjunction with the secretaries in carrying out the social programme. Mr. Blake announced that 1917 would mark the fifth anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association in St. John and that every department of the association was going to make this the biggest year in its history. The committee then proceeded to elect officers for each phase of the work. H. I. Knowles was chosen chairman of the musical committee and he will act with the general secretary in the organization of an orchestra and glee club. The dramatic club was placed in the hands of Hilton B. Crowley with instructions to begin work immediately. In order that the association activities might reach more of the young men of the city a committee with Chas. Upham as chairman was appointed to institute special socials during the year at which socials, groups of employees from the various stores and probably plants would be invited. The committee then discussed at length the programme for the opening reception to the members and friends which will be held on Friday, September 29.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cured By Using
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Cholera Infantum is one of the most common, and at the same time one of the most dangerous summer complaints of infants, and many children have died who could have been saved had the proper remedy been used on the first sign of this trouble.

Cholera Infantum begins with a profuse diarrhoea; the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in, and the child rapidly loses flesh, and becomes weak, prostrated and languid.

Write: B. A. C. Grewell, Roxbury, N. S. W. I can recommend, most highly, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. A friend of mine, whose little daughter was ill with cholera infantum was given up by the doctors. The little mother asked me to comfort her and see the child. I told her I had a bottle of Dr. Fowler's, and asked her if she would try it. When the bottle was half used the child was well. This cure was a miraculous one, for I thought the child was dying at the time.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years. Anyone who has ever used it will not accept a substitute. See that you don't. When you ask for "Dr. Fowler's" be sure that you get it.

The genuine is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c.
