Better Methods---

Better methods push their way to the front everywhere; from the tiniest workshop to the factory of million dollar dimensions.

In the kitchen, too, are better methods utilized; better ovens, better utensils, better ingredients for the goods the kitchen produces.

Where's the point? The household that has been using Star Flour for sixty years is still using it.

Proof conclusive that no improvements are possible in Star Flour--no better methods obtainable in the art of kitchen cookery than the formula using

COSTS OF FOOD DISTRIBUTION ARE TOO GREAT

Washington, April 16--The costs of food distribution are too great, the federal trade commission declared here, and recommended improved marketing facilities and processes at the great consuming centres as a long step towards lowering the high cost of living.

"The movement of food should be made most direct from field to factory," the commission declared in a report on wholesale marketing of food; one of the series in the food price investigation ordered by the president.

Elimination of unnecessary costs and losses in food distribution, the report added, would not only "act as a counter agent in checking disparity in food prices and money incomes, but would strengthen the nation's position in its competition for world trade."

The report asserts that the rapid rise in food prices in recent years is not so significant as that "the money incomes of large numbers have fallen far short of a proportional increase."

"The weekly wage of union organized labor is 1918 bought but 77 per cent. (according to the department of labor) as much food as in 1918. The larger number of service incomes do not fall within this group and are much slower to respond to the pressure of a higher cost of living. Moreover, these incomes are for the same reason usually less in amount. It follows that for very large numbers of people receiving relatively small incomes, a week's wage in 1918 was purchasing much less than 77 per cent. of the food it bought in 1918."

Food absorbs 82 per cent. of the average American household's income. It, therefore, constitutes no inconsiderable part of the wage and salary cost in all production. Of two communities whose products enter the same markets otherwise equally, that one which supplies its working people with food at a lower community cost, either will pay its working people a higher real wage or will have a marked advantage in underselling the other through lower production costs. Both results may in some measure follow.

"A wise government policy toward the food industries may lower production and distribution costs together with the final sales price without proportionately increasing government costs, thus reducing the national cost of food."

IMMIGRATION A NECESSITY

Without Aliens Americans Would Starve Says Prof. Pupin.

New York, April 16--"Americans would starve and freeze to death if immigration were eliminated from our national life," Prof. M. I. Pupin, of Columbia University, declared here in an address before the conference on foreign immigration, held under the auspices of the international council.

"We could not do our work in twenty-four hours or twenty-four years," the professor continued. "Approximately 61 per cent of the workers in the bituminous coal mines are foreign born, 71 per cent of the workers of the packing industry are foreign born, 50 per cent of the railway maintenance workers and 72 per cent of the pottery workers are foreign born."

Dr. Antonio Stella, representing the Italian immigrants to America, protested against the literary test, which, he said, "excludes the toiler, who is a good workman but a poor scholar, upon whom America depends for her posterity."
