His kiss was warm upon my lip, His ring shone on my hand; He said, "O love, my wandering steps Must seek a foreign land, But all life guards of hope or lave Remaineth, dear, with thee;

Dream of the day when fate shall bring Thy lover o'er the sea."

The weary hours have slowly passed, The autumn days are here; There come no fond, consoling words, My lenely heart to chees. The golden gibries of the fall

Have lost their light for me, For O my lover comes not back From far across the sea.

He found no grave beneath the wave. Nor mid the coral deeps ; Neath no green sod nor graven stone In foreign land he sleeps:

Life's pulse is strong within his heart-It holds no thought of me; Alas, my lover comes not back From far across the sea!

The ship that bore him, Kameward bound, Has long since reached the shore, Ah, never, nevermore!

No eager step sounds on the floor, No voice sighs tenderly, "Behold thy lover hath returned From far across the sea !"

Through the dim mist of louely tears, I saw in dreams the day -When joy should sit on sorrows throne-L ve kiss my tears away ;

But wilder woe and sadder tears Were all Fate brought to me The day that he I loved returned From far across the sea!

Decrease of the Chinese Element

The last steamer from China brought only 69 Chin-se. For some time past the depart ure of these people from this port have beer more than the arrivals. The number residen in this city is estimated to be less by 2,000 than it was a year ago, and the number in the whele State is probably not over 37,000 where as a year or two ago, it was from 40,000 t 50,000. There has been an excess of arrival over departures for 1870, thus far, of about 7.000; but this excess has not been concentra ted in San Francisco, while death and immi gration to other States, and Territories have siderable. It is probable that there will be no material increase in our Chinese population bereafter. The grand attraction of the surface hereafter. The grand struction of the summer is almost completely gone, the digging remaining which Chinese can work being few The completion of the Pacific Rail and poor. The completion of the Pacific Rail road returned about 5,000 to a depressed labor marker, and caused many to return to China of emigrate to other portions of this coast. A considerable reduction of wages led to the employment of whites in many instances where Chinese had been employed before. Womer and children found situations in u any factories to the exclusion of Chinese. In addition to all these causes, the growing antipulty to the race, and the hard treatment to which it has often been subjected, tended to discourage their coming, and caused the Chinese companies to i-sue an address advising their country men at home to stay there-[San Francisco Bulletin.

Fun and Fancy.

Si Slocum Jr., say that the man who wrote to the gal and wanted her to "Meet him by moonlight, alone, was discovered to be a ma ried man by the father of the young lady, who horse whipped him for trying to get his daugh-ter in the "grove at the end of the vale."

The chap who sighed "Ah! cou'd I teach the nightingale," has gone to teach school in the county as being more likely to allord him his hash. The chap who sung "Ah! don't mingle," takes his whisky straight.

The man who wrote to his love "Am not fondly thine own?" found her in the arms of a rival one right and concluded he wasn't. The chap who wrote to his looks to "Take me home to die," got bester and concluded to
