A Warning. The Portland, Me. Argus says :- Miss Agnes Wilfred, of South Portland, had a queer and painful accident befall her recently. She was using a curling iron to make some of those little fluffy curls on the back of her neck and had the instrument pretty hot. As she twisted it behind her head the ron slipped from the handle and fell on the back of her neck, where it made a burn. In attempting to remove it the hot iron slipped inside her elothing and went down next the skin, burning her back and shoulders hadly. She has recovered from the burn, but she isn't interested in back curls now and thinks others should be warned of what might happen to them.
