

TWO

THE STAR, ST. JOHN N. B. MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28 1910

LEAPS INTO SEA FROM ALLAN LINER

Corsican Loses a Passenger
—Reaches Halifax

Brings Many Passengers—Alleged Forger Brought Back

MALIBAX, N.B., Feb. 27.—The Allan liner Corsican arrived here to-day with one passenger less than she started from Liverpool with. When two days out from Liverpool Joseph L. Taylor, one of the steerage passengers, leaped through the porthole and ended his life. Taylor had been drinking, and for the greater part of two days he was in the ship's hospital. When a favorable opportunity offered Taylor made his way to the deck and plunged overboard. There was a heavy sea running at the time and though he was seen to take the fatal plunge it was impossible to rescue him. He was thirty-five years of age and was bound to Canada.

The Corsican met stormy weather the whole way across. She brought the mails, of mail, 75 second cabin, and 75 steerage passengers.

Among the passengers was George Whitford of Montreal, who is being brought back by Detective Gorman to answer to a charge of forgery, claims Lehigh as his domicile and to be a British subject, was held up by the immigration authorities on the strength of a cable from Lord Strathcona which alleges that Brown was wanted in Liverpool on a charge of embezzlement. Brown has retained a lawyer and will fight detention.

After a stormy passage from Rotterdam the Northwest Transport liner Uranium arrived at noon with over seven hundred passengers on board. The Uranium sailed on Feb. 8 and met unusually stormy weather, head gales being accompanied by high seas.

On the passage the steamer had trouble with her steam pipes and she was obliged to put into Plymouth, where she was delayed two days making repairs. Of her passengers who landed 220 here, the balance being taken on to New York.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GLOVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

TWO WEEKS MORE FOR ESSAY COMPETITION

Boys and Girls Notified Regarding Board of Trade's Prize Contest

The last day of February gives warning to the school children of St. John that but fifteen days remain for their participation in the Board of Trade's essay writing competition. The interest so far has been very keen and scores of literary efforts are already in the hands of the secretary of the Board of Trade, to be judged by the committee after the 15th. It is not too late yet for boys and girls of ready wit to decide upon writing an essay for this competition. Since the offer of $45 in cash prizes was made scores of statistical articles and explanatory articles have appeared in the newspapers, which would give ample material for the foundation of a good, sensible composition. It will be remembered the questions to be answered in the essay are: "What Improvements Have Been Made in St. John in the Last Fifteen Years?" "What Improvements Does It Need at the Present Time?" and "How Can These Improvements Be Brought About?" The prizes will be divided as follows: $10 for the best essay written by a pupil of grade 8 or under and $5 for the second best essay in the same classification. Two similar prizes will be given for the best essays written by pupils in grade 9 and over. A grand special prize of $15 will be awarded for the best essay irrespective of each paper the competitor must hand in his or her essay to the teacher of her school class, who will in turn so forward it reaches the Board of Trade secretary. Names of competitors must not appear on the manuscript, but will be written on separate paper and enclosed in a sealed envelope with a motto corresponding to a motto on the essay written on the outside.

WHERE IS THE JOINT?

At the evangelistic meeting held in the City Hall, Carleton, yesterday, Rev. Dr. M. R. Rees asked if it were true that there was a gambling house in the West End. He said he was told there is a place in the West End, where a man can go, pay a dollar, for a room, gamble and have all the booze he can pay for. One man told him he had visited the place and had lost three weeks' wages.

The West Side police state they have no knowledge of such a resort.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Melvin Shepard, the champion middle distance runner, was beaten tonight by a yard in a heart-breaking race by his latest rival, Harry Gising, of the N. Y. A. C. in a 900 yard scratch race the annual in-door games of Fordham University. Jack Eller, in the world's record time of 7:54 seconds, best effort, the former University of Pennsylvania time-topper in the sixty-yard low hurdle race. The previous record, 8:35 seconds, was made twenty years ago, by Alexander Jordan of the N. Y. A. C.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR
Stops Falling Hair
Keeps the Scalp Healthy
Does not Color the Hair

Prepared of Sulphur, Chlorine, Potash, Sodium Chloride, Capsicum, Sassafras, Water, Petroleum, and other ingredients.

CARLETON DEFEATED BY ST. ANDREWS SATURDAY

Four Rinks a Side Played on West Side
—One Carleton Rink Victorious
—Total Score 76 to 56

The St. Andrews' Curriers defeated Carleton 76 to 56 Saturday afternoon and evening. Four rinks a side played, all on Carleton ice. One Carleton rink, that skipped by J. M. Wilson, won over its opposing rink, the other West Side rink went down to defeat.

The score by rinks was as follows:

Afternoon.
A. L. Fowler, J. A. Clarke, A. Watson, J. U. Thomas, skip.....	13
W. D. Foster, R. Drinan, P. A. Clarke, A. Belyea, skip.....	25
Evening.
R. M. Robertson, G. W. Scott, H. G. Watson, Rev. G. F. Scott, C. S. Robertson, W. D. Foster, skip.....	15
F. L. Harrison, J. M. Wilson, skip.....	14
R. G. Haley, Wm. Watson, G. L. Wetmore, Chas. Smith, Dr. J. M. Magee, W. O. Dunham, skip.....	14
	76

To-night in the Carleton Rink play for the Melrose trophies began. J. M. Wilson plays A. Belyea and W. O. Dunham plays E. R. Taylor. J. M. Belyea has drawn a bye.

In the St. Andrews' club play for the Milligan medal has resulted in the following scores, George O. Kimball, 53; C. S. Robertson, 34; W. D. Foster, 30; S. B. Smith, 23.

If the weather is favorable St. Andrews will send four rinks to Carleton and Carleton will send four or six rinks to Carleton.

STOMACH DISTRESS AND DYSPESIA GO

Heartburn, Gas and Indigestion Vanish and You Feel Fine in Five Minutes

REGULATES DIGESTION

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diaphepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and it makes your essay Diaphepsin five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Diaphepsin. Then you will really see why it makes indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn and other distress go in five minutes and relieves at once all such ailments as belching of gas, eructations of sour digested food, nausea, headache, dizziness, constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion and dyspepsia, or an out-of-order stomach with the various every-day cures advertised that they have almost made up their minds that they have something else wrong or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and turns to acid, gas and stomach poison, which putrefies in the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poisons the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort, misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Diaphepsin.

TEN THOUSAND DIMITS

FOR SANITARIUM

New Mason's Hall at London, Ont.—
—Windsor Canines Most Wuzzies

Two Hundred Dogs Killed in Toronto

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 25.—The factory hands of this place have contributed a thousand dollars to the women's sanitarium. The subscription was a unique one as it was made in ten cent pieces.

Announcement has been made that a new Masonic temple will be erected at this place.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Two hundred dogs have been downed with since the rabies scare started here.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 25.—Two policemen are patrolling the streets of Windsor with guns to destroy all dogs without muzzles. The police authorities are determined that owners of the animals must place a muzzle on their dogs.

ANDES, Chile, Feb. 27.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook and his wife left today for the Argentine Republic. Their destination is not known.

FOSTER LOSES HIS LIBEL SUIT

McDonald Justified in His Criticism, Says Jury

They Believe Foster Aided in Good Faith, But Improperly—Charge of Dishonest Rake-off.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—After five hours' deliberation the jury in the Foster-McDonald libel suit returned a verdict at eight forty-five last night as follows:

"In view of the evidence presented to us, that J. A. MacDonald was justified in making the statements published in the Globe of Oct. 21, 1908. We and that while Mr. Foster acted in good faith while acting in the capacity as manager of the Union Trust Company, his actions are open to criticism, and that he is not entitled to recover damages from Mr. MacDonald."

Justice Magee instructed that a judgment for defendant be entered with costs, and that the charge of dishonest rake-off.

At the request of Mr. Hellmuth, K. C., a stay of proceedings was granted for thirty days. The jury were told by Mr. Hellmuth and individually gave admission to the verdict.

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

"I care not what Le Canada may have published, or what it may have retracted. My charge stands. It was this: That he asked for a private rake-off in a deal with trust funds; that he directed the suspicious way in which that personal rake-off should be paid; that he got that rake-off, and that the high-salaried managing director of the Union Trust Company, handling funds belonging to the I. O. O. F. fraternal society, he had no right or title to that money. That is my statement, made in his own constituency, based upon sworn evidence, and proved by his own letters, produced, sworn to and filed as exhibits in the case. That statement stands unretreated, unmodified, and by Mr. Foster undenied."

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

"I care not what Le Canada may have published, or what it may have retracted. My charge stands. It was this: That he asked for a private rake-off in a deal with trust funds; that he directed the suspicious way in which that personal rake-off should be paid; that he got that rake-off, and that the high-salaried managing director of the Union Trust Company, handling funds belonging to the I. O. O. F. fraternal society, he had no right or title to that money. That is my statement, made in his own constituency, based upon sworn evidence, and proved by his own letters, produced, sworn to and filed as exhibits in the case. That statement stands unretreated, unmodified, and by Mr. Foster undenied."

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

Following is the statement made by Mr. MacDonald in a public speech and reported in The Globe of Oct. 21, 1908, upon which the charge of libel was based:

"JOHN L." WOULDN'T WORK FOR MATCH WITH CORBETT

Here's an Inside Story About His Training Days Revived by the Jeffries-Johnson Fight.

By Jotum Bignmytt.

Arguments pro and con to the result of the Jeffries-Johnson fight have brought out many reminiscences of pugilistic encounters of long ago. As the condition of Jeffries is undoubtedly the masterpiece of his chances, the principal contention among the pessimists is the unequalled assurance that he can never be brought back to the same condition that he was in seven years ago. It is probably a fact that he will be lacking in some things, as age spares no man, but the friends of "Jeff" believe that if he can get seventy-five per cent. of his youthful ability and stamina back he has a good winning chance against Johnson.

In the course of a discussion a few days ago among some of the old time sporting men the memorable contest between Sullivan and Corbett was mentioned. The fact was brought to mind that Corbett's youth and Sullivan's age and extravagance told the tale. The argument brought out some facts that may never have been published in regard to Sullivan's condition upon that occasion.

It will be remembered that Casey, the handball player, had charge of Sullivan's training and that the afternoon of the day of the fight he invited a short jog on the road. Among the number was Arthur Chambers, who had been asked to stick close to Sullivan's corner during the fight.

As soon as Sullivan came into the stripping room for his rubberdown he greeted Chambers in his usual gruff way, and slipping out of his street garments seemed to be in a fair way for a long contest. Little did he know that he would be noticed externally, and at a glance one would have believed him to be in the pink of condition.

SULLIVAN WOULDN'T WORK

It was a very different story, however, when Casey told Chambers of the method he had been compelled to use to get Sullivan into the condition he had him. Casey, knowing that Chambers might be one of Sullivan's ring-side advisers, unobserved himself to the Philadelphia old time champion. "You think he looks well," said Casey. "All that fine appearance which you see has been done by rubbing. I could not get the big fellow to do one-tenth enough road or any other work, and the only thing left to do was to fix him up the best way we could. Start a time when he would start out for a long road jog he would not go more than a couple of miles, when he would sit down and after a rest would march back again."

Chambers was displeased with the Sullivan's condition. He had been told that the best possible trim. And that Sullivan, Chambers believed that the Sullivan could win under almost any conditions and stood pat.

The conversation took place while Sullivan was getting ready for his shower and showering. After taking a shower Sullivan took a dive in the pool and swam around for about five minutes, Chambers in the meanwhile watching him from the footwalk. After five minutes of swimming Chambers asked Casey how long Sullivan would remain in the pool. "He is liable to stay in there for half an hour if he feels like it," answered Casey.

AND SULLIVAN WOULDN'T.

Chambers, knowing that swimming is a very severe form of exercise, at once called to Sullivan to come out of the pool, as he had to be in the ring at eight o'clock, and it was then nearly five.

"Come out of there, you bloomin' seagull," shouted Chambers to Sullivan. "Don't you know you are going to fight tonight?"

Sullivan took as much notice of Chambers' remarks as if he was a clerk in the factory. He continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that the big fellow would get in one of his famous punches early.

The fight had not proceeded more than seven rounds when Chambers told his friends that it was 100 to 1 against Sullivan. He began to tire perceptibly after a minute's work trying to gain the springing Corbett in a corner. He could hardly put up his hands, and Corbett never gave him an opportunity to get near him until half of every round was over, when Sullivan was so slow that he could not block any kind of a lead.

It was in the eighth or ninth round, when Sullivan had been a clerk in the factory, that he continued to swim for at least fifteen minutes. Chambers went out of the gymnasium club in anything but a contented frame of mind as to Sullivan's condition, yet he failed to hedge, believing that