CURING,—The cutting and curing of Bacon, Hams, Shoulders, &c., for sale, should only be attempted by well experienced

It is not worth while packing lean cattle, as they will scarcely bring the cost of the barrels, salt and freight. No grade lower than Prime mess is saleable. Prime Mess is made from good fat grass-fed cattle, weighing not less than than 200 lbs. to the side after the neck and shank have been cut off. This side should be divided into three, by being cut across the ribs twice and then divided into pieces not weighing less than 6 vided into pieces not weighing less than 6 lbs, nor more than 8 lbs. each. The flank in all cases should be put in whole as cap to the barrel. A tierce of Prime Mess Beef is made as above, but from a side weighing 300 lbs., and comsequently requires much heavier, fatter cattle. A tierce will commonly sell for nearly twice as much as a bar-rel, on account of the superior quality of the POULTRY. The Poultry trade of Canada is growing annually; and it is of importance both to the producer and the consumer, not only that the birds be well fattened, but that the killing, preparing and sending, them to Mar-ket should be carefully and skilfully con-

FATTENING.—The first point is fattening. On no account kill a bird out of condition, or if you do, eat it at home. Unless tolerable fat, poultry will not bring the cost of packing and freight. The best time for fattening is when the weather begins to grow cold, and the best food is Indian Corn or other grain, together with a liberal supply of charcoal. This last is considered indispensable by professional poultry raisers.

KILLING.—Never kill on a damp day, but choose if possible cold clear weather—never cut off the head, nor twist the neck, but hang the birds by the legs, stick them effectually in the neck with a small sharp knife, and let them bleed thoroughly. Do not kill birds when the crop is full.

DRESSING.—Pick dry if you do not tear the skin leave the wing and tail feathers dip the fowl suddenly into boiling water drawing it out instantly, then plunge in the same rapid way into cold water. This gives the birds a fine plump, clean appearance, provided they be in really good condition. Never draw a bird. It is worth while to pay freight on the intestines because the meat cannot be kept sweet long after they are drawn and the air admitted inside the John Cochrane,

PACKING AND DIRECTING .- Lay the birds upon clean boards, in a cold room, till they are perfectly cool or frozen, especially when there is a probability of damp, close weather, great care must be taken that the animal heat is out of them. Pack in boxes with clean rye or oat straw, so that they do not touch each other, putting about three or four hundred pounds in a box, filled full. four hundred pounds in a box, filled full.—
