CONDITION POWDERS.

Condition powders are dead. Herbageum killed them. The stockman or horseman who uses Herbageum regularly needs no condition powders, and yet in one of our leading farm papers, in the Veterinary Columns, we find the following question: "What is the best condition powder?" and the V. S. in charge recommends the usual V. S. compound, in which antimony, sulphate of iron, etc., take equal parts.

These are drugs that act directly on the system and are, therefore, injurious, and any apparent benefit obtained by their use is not permanent.

Herbageum is intended for regular use, and where it is used regularly condition powders are not needed.

Herbageum contains no antimony, arsenic, copperas, saltpetre, resin, sulphate of iron, or any substance that cannot be safely fed regularly every day, and yet it will put a horse or other animal in condition and the benefit will be permanent.

This is neither guesswork nor vain boasting. It is a fact disputed only by those who have not and will not test the matter. The following letter is a sample of the opinion of those who are not prejudiced:

"I have a horse that, from bad care last fall, became hidebound and generally in a bad condition. I used Herbageum, and after a month's use of it his hide loosened, and now he is in a fine condition again—full of life. I find it beneficial also for my cow, she giving more milk this season than ever before."
