"LITTLE CHAPS" ARE FIGHTERS

English War Correspondent Tells of Prowess of the Bantams.

AT FIRST ENEMY DESPISED THEM

But They Were Soon Shown Courage Does Not Always Run to Size.

The following article, taken from the London Chronicle gives a very good idea of what a "bantam" can do if one puts a uniform on him and lets him at the enemy.

The following remarkable eulogy of little men in battle is penned by Mr. Philip Gibbs, our special correspondent with the British forces in the field. He writes, under date June 17:—

A month or two ago I chanced to be at a port in France when a transport ship came in with some new troops. The men filed down the gangway, and then formed up on the quayside before being entrained, and as they did so I rubbed my eyes, and wondered what had happened. These men were somehow different from all the other troops I have seen arriving in France on their way to the battlefields. They were all very small men. Lord! They were all very small men, Lord! They were all very small men, Lord! They were all very small men, Lord!

The Cook Quit

And we were "up in the air" about it because the wife knew nothing about cooking. She tried her best and meant well, I guess, but her first attempt at a meal convinced me.

So we had just about decided to eat in restaurants when suddenly my wife struck a bright idea. "Why don't you call 139 and insert a help wanted ad for a cook in The Courier?" she said. And I did—

—and the next morning there were many to choose from
