NO FLAG NEEDED

Is What Ottawa Officials Think of Skagway Customs House.

Skagway, July 5.—No word has yet been received from Washington relative to the late customs flag incident. The Ottawa officials say that as no duties are now collected at Skagway and goods are bonded from there only, it is not necessary that a flag should be hoisted over the office.

STEAMBOAT NEWS.

For nearly a week the cable by means of which steamers pull themselves up the Five Finger rapids has been foul among the rocks so it could not be used. The Bonanza King has been at the foot of the rapids since Tuesday with a broken capstan unable to proceed until the difficulty has been removed and necessary repairs were made. The Nora on her last trip down, arriving this morning did not attempt to ascend the rapids but transferred passengers and freight with the Flors at the head of the swift water. The cable was put in and is owned by the B. V. N. Co. and they have the keeping of it in repair. A charge of $15 is made each boat for using it.

The Zealandian arrived yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock with a heavy cargo and 26 passengers. She sails this evening at 8 o'clock.

Agent Mortimer, of the Aurors dock, is expecting the Monarch from St. Michael by the 10th.

The steamer Prospector left Whitehorse yesterday morning and is due to arrive tomorrow.

The Yukoner pulled into port last night at 10:15. She had all the freight she could accommodate but her passenger list was very small—only three.

Celebrated the Fourth.

That yesterday was the Fourth of July and that the day had been properly celebrated was attested to by the large crowd which greeted Magistrate Scarth in the police court this morning.

Indian Lizzie was the first prisoner called to the dock and charged with being drunk but as the evidence in her case was not ready she was dismissed until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Tom Baberson had become obstreperous in the Green Tree saloon and all the persuasion of the porter not being able to induce Thomas to curb his patriotic spirit the police had been called in to give him aid. He was taken to the barracks where he passed the balance of the day in quiet meditation and this morning was fined $10 and costs.

Wm. Nicholson was fully conscious of the responsibility which fell upon him to do his full share towards the proper celebration of the "glorious" Fourth. The trouble with William was that his capabilities were a little overtaxed by the responsibilities of the situation and he was compelled to ease his mind a little by a small draught. Draught followed draught in quick succession until his mind became overtaxed by the jug, he was carrying.

He then began to "whoop 'em up" in what he considered proper style but as it was not in accordance with the law of sobriety and proper conduct his celebration was suddenly cut short by the arrival of a constable on the scene and William, sober and wise this morning, pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs.

JOSEPH LADUE

One of Oldest Yukon Pioneers Dies at Schuyler Falls, New York

OF CONSUMPTION ON JUNE 27.

With Six Others He Crossed Chilkoot in '88

Has Long Had Lung Trouble—Leaves Wife and Adopted Son—Was 45 Years of Age.

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 27, via Skagway, July 5.—Joseph Ladue, president of the Joseph Ladue Gold Mining and Development Co. of Yukon, died of consumption at his old home in Schuyler Falls, N. Y., today. He leaves a wife and adopted son the child of a former employe named La May.

(The deceased was 46 years of age and passed over Chilkoot with a party of six other prospectors in 1888 working up the Stewart river and along the upper Yukon bars. For the past 19 years he has been identified with this country. He built a sawmill at Sixty-mile in the early nineties which was moved in '96 to Dawson. This was the first mill in the country in the same year he platted the present townsite of Dawson naming it after Dr. Dawson the then Dominion land surveyor, the grant for which, covering 160 acres, was allowed at Ottawa last March. He was associated in business with Arthur Harper who died of consumption also, in the fall of '98. Ladue has not been in Dawson for the past three years as he has suffered continually from pulmonary trouble since that time, he catching a severe cold while coming up the river from St. Michael which developed upon his arrival outside into lingering consumption. His father died of the same disease. He leaves large property interests in this district, owning valuable mining interests on Bonanza, Eldorado and Sulphur as well as city realty and the commercial house which bears his name. He also owned at the time of his demise a beautiful summer home on Lake George, N. Y., as well as two large farms in that state. R. F. Botaford, managing director of the Ladue Co., who recently arrived in Dawson, left the deceased only five weeks ago and says he can hardly believe he had passed away as he was not seriously ill at the time of his departure. In speaking of Joseph Ladue Mr. Botaford said: "I never met in all my life a more lovable and honorable man than Joe Ladue. I have known him ever since I can remember and in all that time I never knew him to tell a lie or even exaggerate a fact. I feel his loss keenly for the world does not hold many like him. The present officers of the company are S. M. Wood, vice president; R. F. Botaford, managing director and W. H. Lyons, general manager.")

Wages of Sin.

The great tragedy which shocked Toronto a week or two ago has furnished the press of the country with a text for much moralizing. In these days when the schoolmaster is so active and the press so "permeating," when not only the voice of the preacher is raised against crime, but statistics prove conclusively that the way of the transgressor against the laws of mankind is hard, why is it that men deliberately choose a career of warfare against their kind? It is a mere platitude to say that there can be no real happiness in such a life. Periods of debauchery following a successful raid upon some financial stronghold, with the shadow of a policeman ever present throughout the orgies, cannot be the highest form of human felicity. There is said to be honor among thieves; but the rewards which are offered for the apprehension of noted lawbreakers must be a great temptation for the weaker sinners to forsake their ways and take a few dollars with them into retirement. Notwithstanding that the bed appears to be hard, there are always plenty willing to occupy it.

There was one Canadian among the trio of desperadoes who murdered the policeman in Toronto. His career has been traced by the reporters, and it has been proved conclusively that a disinclination to labor was at the root of his trouble. A smart boy at school, a leader in frolics and sports of all kinds, bright and cheerful in disposition, daring and brave, but unable to endure the toil and monotony of life on a farm. One day he threw aside the spade and entered a factory. When that closed down he was out of work, and when next heard of at home he was in the dock on a charge of robbery, for which he got four years' imprisonment. Surely it must have been the evil associates of prison life and not a natural propensity for evil which dragged this young man down or he would never in a fit of remorse after having been the cause of the death of a fellow man have dashed himself to pieces on the stone floors of a jail? Is there no argument in this melancholy case of the desperate Rutledge in favor of giving erring young men a chance to return to the straight path and win back the good name which may not be irretrievably lost? What a tremendous weight of responsibility rests upon our judges and all who have sought to do with the administration of justice. Censorious neighbors in a remote country district in Ontario are no doubt busy pointing out the shortcomings of the father of the young man Rutledge, but the picture of an aged figure with white bowed head and not a word to say in defence or condemnation of the living or the dead drawn by a skillful hand in one of the Toronto papers, surely represents more truly the feeling of the average man towards the one across whose life so terrible a shadow has been cast.

Of the career of the criminal Jones, who was shot by a policeman, little is known. Rice, the one survivor of the three, who shot the county constable and will probably soon follow his two companions with the scaffold as a starting place, professes to be a socialist. He says the world owes him a living, and as he would have been compelled to work hard for it in any event he proposed to wrest this debt from the rich and well-to-do by violence. Whether he deliberately adopted his profession as the result of his reasoning or merely justified his choice now that he is in the toils of the law, there is no means of knowing. The living and the dead furnish two distinct examples of criminal types. In one case a life into a useful and honorable channel.—Victoria Times.

REDUCTION OF RATES

Made by R. W. Calderhead of the Klondike Corporation Ltd.

The Klondike Corporation is again to the front this year and has resumed its old practice of slashing passenger rates. This news will be received with satisfaction by travelers who purchase tickets for intermediate points between Dawson and Hootalinqua. The cut was decided upon today as Manager Calderhead concluded that the agreed rate was entirely too high, the principle ticket buyers to way points up river being loggers who can ill afford to pay the arbitrary rate fixed by the big steamboat company.

The present schedule calls for $45 to Selkirk and to Stewart river $20; the new rate will now be $15 and $30 respectively. At all points the same proportionate cut has been made it being a reduction of 25 per cent on present charges. It is expected that the big company will be compelled to also reduce its charges on local travel or lose all intermediate traffic.

An important meeting of the Yukon council was held last night, the account of which was crowded out of today's paper, but will appear tomorrow.
