Thoughts for a Young Man.

ere a young man to write down a list of his duties, Health should be among the first items in the catalogue. This is no exaggeration of its value; for health is indisaggeration of its value; for health is indispensable to almost every form of human enjoyment. It is the grand auxiliary of usefulness; and should a man love the Lord his God with all his heart and soul and mind and strength, he would have ten times more heart and soul and mind and strength to love him with, in the vigor of health, than under the palsy of disease. Not only the amount, but the quality of a labor that a man can perform, depends on his health. The work savors of the workmen. If the nost sickens, his verse sickens; if Appetite is Nicholas the First, and the noble faculties of the mind and heart are Hungarian captives. Were we to see a rich banker exchanging eagles for coppers by tale, or a rich merchant bartering silk for serge by the pound, we should deem them worthy of an epithet in the vocabulary of folly. Yet the same men buy pains whose prime cost is greater than the amplest fund of natural enjoyment. Their purveyor and market-man bring them home headaches and indigestion and neuralgia by hamperfuls. Their butler bottles up stone, and gout, and the liver complaint, falsely labelling them indigestion and neuralgia by hamperfuls.

The mass of society look with envy upon the epicure who, day by day, for four hours of luxurious eating, suffers twenty hours of sharp aching; who pays a full price for a hot supper, and is so pleased with the bargain that he throws in a sleepless and tempestuous night as a gratuity. English factory children have received the commiseration of the world, because they were scourged to work eighteen hours out of twenty-four; but there is many a theoretic republican who is a harsher Pharach to his stomach than this, who allows it no more resting-time than he does his watch, who gives it no Sunday, no holiday, no vacation in any sense.

Our picus ancestors enacted a law that suicides should be buried where four roads meet, and that a cart-load of stones should be thrown upon the bedy.

Yet when agratiance are leaded a suication showed that, while his hands and washed his hands since the murder, but inspection showed that, while his hands and wrists were clean, there was a water mark above which his forearms were deeply encrusted with blood which appeared to have spattered up his sleeves. Around his finger nails, too, was blood. Upon removing his trousers, his drawers were seen to be spattered up his sleeves. Around his finger nails, too, was blood. Upon removing his trousers, his drawers were seen to be spattered with blood, and his bare feet were covered with the same tell-tale marks. His feet fitted all the bloody footmarks to be found. The boy stoutly denied being the murderer, and maintained a bold front throughout.

The conclusion of the inquest was postponed until next day. The boy was smuggled into a buggy by Police Judge Cambern and Deputy Sheriff Locke and driven to be found. Yet, when gentlemen or ladies commit suicide, not by cord or steel, but by turtle soup cr lebster salad, they may be buried in consecrated ground, and under the auspices of the church, and the public are not ashamed to read an epitaph upon their tombstones false enough to make the marble Vastly less depends upon the table to which we sit down, than upon the appetite which we carry to it. One of the most horrible murders ever known was perpetrated the other morning near Osage Mission, Kansas. Mr Mendell, living thirteen miles northeast of that town, was awakened about 3 o'clock by a scream. He went to the door and was met by Willie Sells, the son of a neighbor, J. W. Sells. An Express Messenger Murdered in His Car. The express car of the Rock Island train Is it not humiliating and amazing that men, invited by exhalted pleasure of the intellect and the sacred affections of the heart to come to a banquet worthy of the gods, should stop by the wayside to feed on garbage, or to drink of the Circean cup that transforms them to swine?

With health, there is no end to the quantity or the variety from which the palate can extract its pleasures. Without health, no delicacy that nature or art produces can provoke a zest. Hence, when a man destroys his health, he destroys, so far as he is concerned, whatever of sweetness, of flavor, and of savor, the teeming earth can produce.

To him who has poisoned his appetite by excesses, the luscious pulp of grape or peach, the nectareous juice of orange or pine-apple, are but a loathing and a nausea. He is a turned gardens and groves of jecac and along. The same vicious indulgance that

A Brakeman's Life in Winter.

The freight brakemen wear very heavy clothing, although it is always short, as they have to get around in a hurry sometimes. I have known the time when I was brakeing on a freight train, when the train was running 15 or 20 miles an hour against sleet and snow, and a call had come for "down brakes." At such a time I have been sitting on the top of the car, so stiff and frozen as to be unable to work the brakes at all. We do not mind the cold weather se much on the freights as when there is snow on the ground freights as when there is snow on the ground and on the cars. Then it becomes very dangerous, as when the train is running 20 miles an hour the snow and sand will be hurled up between the cars enough to blind a man, and with the ice covered cars and running, as we do, from one car to another, more heart and soul and mind and strength to love him with, in the vigor of health, than under the palsy of disease. Not only the amount, but the quality of a labor that a man can perform, depends en his health. The work savors of the workmen. If the poet sickens, his verse sickens; it black, venue alload flows to an author's brain; it beolouds his pages; and the devetions of a consumptive man soent of his disease as Lord Byron's obscentities smell of gis.

Not only "lying llps," but a dysoppiis stomach, is an abountation to the Lord. At least in this life, so dependent is mind upon material organization,—the functions and manifestations of the soul upon the condition of the body it inhabits,—that the materialist hardly states practical results to estrongly when he affirms that thought and passion, wit, imaginati n, and love are only emanations from exquisitately organized mater, just as purfume is the effluence of flowers, or music the etherace of specific, and the extending and looking up saw a low, by something, and looking up of them go to the train or the front, but most of them go to the rear car and jump, so that if they fall they will not roll under the cars. The only regular train hand I ever heard of being injured by jumping was a man named Davis, who lives in Portchester, and who was bavis, who lives in Portchester, and who was struck on the head by the car step as he jumped and was badly hurt. The best man I ever saw, and the only man who could hold his feet and stop himself without running at all, was Charles Phillips, who is now a conductor on the Derby road. He could jump from a train running 35 miles an hour and stop without running a foot,

When she began to take them, in January last, she could not encould stay up only about thirty minutes at a time. Now she not only sits up almost the entire day, but can walk around, call on her neighbors, two and three blocks away, and not feel any injurious effects at all. When we consider that she had kept her bed the greater part of the time for four-teen months, and would lose repeatedly the advance she had made, her progess now seems marvelous. We had almost lost confidence in medical practitioners, and advertised remedies, but have found in your Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pellets' the complete and final recovery."

Having expletely discouraged, and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

Mrs. Henry Patterson, of New York City, writes: "I had been under an eminent physician's care for eight months for what he called 'spinal disease.' I became worse during all this time, when, chancing to see a copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser at the residence Diseases.' They were unable to help me in the least. At that time I weighed but ninety pounds, and had not been able to lie down, but had to sit up in order to breathe. I had been confined to my room for six months, expecting to die. I was so bad at times that I could not allow any one to come into my room, as I could not talk; nor was I able to walk. I picked up one of talk; nor was I able to walk. I picked up one of your memorandum books on the floor of the hotel where I was boarding, and after reading it I began where I was boarding, and after reading it I began taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and the first bottle brought me around so that I could walk into the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all day. I soon began to build around the room all that it astonished me. I have taken no other medicine since then, and have used perhaps twenty bottles in all of this medicine. I stopped taking it in August, one year ago. I feel that it has saved my life. I now weigh about 160 pounds, and I think, and my friends with me, that this medicine saved my life. It certainly is worth its weight in gold, and I consider it a wonderful remedy from its effect in curing all my ailments."
