Anecdotal.

When the English barrister, Richard Eve, desired to "take silk"—or, in other words, to become a Queen's Counsel-he sent the usual note to the senior members on the circuit to see whether anyone objected, according to custom Mr. Adam Walker, one of the senior members, replied as follows:—"My dear Eve,—You may take silk or a fig leaf. I don't care.—Adam."

Shortly after Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, R.A., was knighted, he and Lady Alma-Tadema gave an At Home at St. John's Wood. Everybody present was congratulating them, and one lady was very profuse. "Oh, dear Sir Lawrence," she said, "I am awfully glad to hear of the honor you have received. I suppose now that you are knighted you will give up painting and live like a gentleman.

In an Ohio town last fall, the African Methodist-Episcopal Church of that district held a conference, and for a week the town was filled with colored pulpit orators. A few days after the conference closed its sessions, one of the leading colored women of the town drove out to be prices to surphese droye out to Pea Ridge to purchase chickens of an old mammy who had supplied the family for years. Aunt Hanna, coming to the gate, said: "I'm sorry, Miss Allie. I ain't got a chicken left. Dey all done enter de ministry.

A story is going the rounds about a prominent Nova Scotia lawyer who is noted for his carelessness in dress, which fact annoys the members of the Bar exceedingly. Entering the courtroom one day minus a cravat, the judge reproved him, saying the law required him to wear one. "Oh, yes, required him to wear one. "Oh, yes, your honor. I know it," he answered; "but it does not say where he shall wear it," and as he spoke he pulled it out of his trousers pocket. The matter then dropped.

General William T. Sherman was fond of relating the following story: "When I was with the army in Georgia, a slave-owner about Christmas time missed a fire fat turkey. He suspected a good-looking mulatto, and ordered the man brought before him. You have stolen my turkey and eaten t.' said the irate planter. 'I'se not it, said the irate planter. 'I'se not gwine to say I didn't, when you says I did, massa.' 'I ought to have you flogged. What have you to say why I should not punish you?' 'Well, massa, you hain't lost anything particular. You see, you has a little less turkey and a good deal more nigger.' And the master was compelled to acknowledge the philosophy of the slave, and let him go unwhipped."

As a young man Paul Kruger was regarded as an authority on psalm sing-ing, and the farmers used to come to him to learn the keynote for starting the psalms at the next Sunday's service. Kruger, even in those days, was no believer in the policy of giving anything away-not even a note of musicso he had a uniform charge of a double handful of dried peaches for his instruction. Even the fact that the work was in the service of religion did not deter him from resorting to strategy, for he made a point of giving each applicant a different note. The result when the plous Dyppers attempted to raise their voices in sacred harmony next Sunday may be imagined. The result was that each man concluded he had lost the key, and had to return for a further lesson. "I nearly bankrupted them of their dried peaches," said the Ford Madox Brown, the artist, once had to be smuggled into his own exhi bition. The occasion was a private view in Bond street of the Manchester fres-The artist being unwell at the time was accompanied to his carriage to the gallery by his doc-tor and old friend, William Gill. The time passed pleasantly enough en route in conversation, when suddenly Madox Brown's talk came to an abrupt full stop; he started as though struck by some very disquieting thought, and wildly plunged round in his various pockets, blank dismay depicted on his countenance the while. "Good heavens, Gill!" he exclaimed, "I have forgotten my card of admission! What am I to Your card of admission!" replied his amazed friend, "surely you can get in without that?" "No, no," answered Madox Brown in despair "they will never let me in-they don't know me!" Fortunately, however, Mr. Gill was provided with the necessary passport, and he thus played the distinctly original role of getting an artist admission into his own show.

"Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms and looking over her audience with superb scorn, "that has ever got up in the morning, leaving his tired, worn-out wife to enjoy her slumbers, gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, darned the family stockings, scoured the pots and kettles, cleaned and filled the lamps, swept the kitchen, done all this, if necessary, day after day, uncomplainingly? If there is such a man in this audience, let him rise up! I should like to see him!" And in the rear of the hall a mildlooking man in spectacles, in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was

A local clergyman was engaged in conversation with a number of friends the other day, says the Duluth "News Tribune," when each started telling stories of weddings he had performed. One of the party had this to offer: Some time ago a great big feilow, roughly dressed, and a wee mite of a young woman came to him. They had no witnesses, and, in fact, did not care to have any. Nevertheless a bridesmaid and groomsman were selected from the household, and the seremony began. They had promised to love and obey and all the rest of the service, when the preacher announced: "Kiss the bride."

The groom, on bended knee, hesitated little, tried to say something and

"What you do, do it well," is the golden rule of business life. This rule and far reaching command can be profitably observed in many other conditions of the conditions of th tions of life. In sickness and suffer-ing it is all-important that "what you do" to banish disease and restore lost health, should be done well. While prudence and common sense will, in nearly every instance, direct you aright, the experience of your friends and neighbors and the thousands rescued from sickness and suffering, will point directly to Paine's Celery Com-pound as the infallible health-giver.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The pro-prietors have so much faith in its curtive powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimon-

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Large things are but an aggregation of small things. If we take care of the small things we are in effect taking care of the large things which the things combine to make.

Take care of what you eat, when you eat, and how you eat, and your stomach will take care of itself. But who takes care of such trivial things? That is why, some day, the majority of people have to take care of the sto-mach. When that day comes, there is no aid so effective in undoing the results of past carelessness as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, and restores the organs of digestion and nutrition to a condition of healthy activity. It cures biliousness, heartburn, flatulence, indigestion, palpitation, dizziness, cold extremities and a score of other ailments which are but symp-toms of disorder in the stomach and its allied organs.

A SERIOUS MATTER.

No country was ever blessed by Nature with a more productive soil. She made thebest possible use of the long ages prior to the settlement of this country by white men, in forcing the most luxuriant growth of vegetation, and by its decay and that of the annual crop of foliage, had filled the soil with an amount of fertility that seemed exhaustless. So thought our fathers, and so think now many of the occupiers of the great fertile West. But a continual taking out and putting nothing back. taking out and putting nothing back would exhaust even the ocean. It has exhausted the millions of acres of the older East, and it will exhaust the most fertile of the West. A study of the census must convirce any searcher that the production of all our crops is year by year growing less and less. It cannot be attributed to a change of seasons for a series of years, but can be only to one cause—the gradual ex-taustion of plant food by our unthink-ing and unwise course.

This subject of husbanding the resources of our acres, and of returning to our starving fields those elements of plant grownth quite or nearly ex-hausted, is yearly forcing itself more prominently upon the attention of the farmers of at least the eastern half of our country, and the line is very rapidly extending westward. Million acres that once produced magnificent crops of the various grains, even west of the great lakes, are now lying vacant, or barely paying for the most shiftless cultivation. This question cannot be seriously considered too soon even by the farmers on the now rich and productive prairies west of the great rivers. Every train that passes eastward is loaded with a portion of their fertility, much of it in the crude and barely remunerative state of bran, oil meal and the coarser grains and, the bones of their animals, while the returning trains carry back nothing in the nature of plant food. Though Western farmers may think they have no need of such knowledge, they should not fail to thoroughly post themselves, and those farmers who do so and who take advantage of this knowledge, will by and by be looked upon as the "lucky ones" who have the richest farms in the vicinity in which

Renewing Wornout Pasture Land.

One of the greenest pastures that I have seen is a farm once well tilled. Acting upon this idea, were I in Mr. Andrew's place, I would raise a hay crop next year on that 50-acre pasture land. It needs tondressing in either case, and it would be prudent to make the produce pay for the culture. Give your cattle the run of your mowing fields for a year or two, and plow and heavily fertilize the wornout land. As it appears rich, a part of it might be utilized for tuber or berry growing, and no more difficulty in the way of weeds would be met than when turning ap green sward for such purposes. Fol-lowing this treatment a marked improvement will be realized by the cows. sheep pasture. Sheep may be allowed the run of the pasture only after late in the fall. Fence them off by

If the farmer lives near canning factories, fish heads or lobster shells are obtainable and can be advantageously spread on grass land or turned under with the plowshare. No cheaper grass grower can be utilized by the seasoast armer than rock weed-seaweed, he may call it. If his own land does not porder on the shore he can buy from his neighbor the privilege of pulling it at 3 to 5 cents a load. The returns will more than pay the year following its spreading, for pulling, hauling and cash outlay. If any part of the ground be overgrown with bushes, the young men of the neighborhood will hall with glee the inauguration of an old-time bee" to clear up the land. Pull bushes. stumps, everything, and burn over before plowing and sowing to grass seeds. The ashes enrich without adding to the expense. The burnt land may even be sprinkled thickly with seed without plowing. Sometimes when no other fertflizer can be afforded on grass land a simple burning and seeding is profitable.-American Agriculturist

Despite the large introduction of various kinds of wire fence, the board fence still remains its inherent advantages peculiar to itself. The principal objection to a board fence nailed to stationary posts is the trouble and expense of construction and the lack of portability. Mr. Jacob Wolf, of Newmansyille, Pa., has recently patented a very simple form of board fence that is in the fullest sense portable, and when set up is entirely substantial. It cap be made with ease and economy.

The fence panels are made simply with certical cleats, nailed or bolted, and are simply set end to end and a key is slipped through the upper space to engage across the interval and unite the panels. A similar piece is put through the lower space. Holes are made at close intervals in the key pieces to receive transverse pegs that hold the panels in longitudinal direct-ion. A section of wire is centrally bent around the upper key piece and to its extremeities are connected stakes that side, making a strong brace. A stake is also driven in at the panel base, These panels can be made in shelter and any kind of lumber may be used,— The World's Progress

A Ton Acre Celery Plant Bed. Perhaps the largest celery plant bed in the United States, if not in the world, is that of Messrs. D. E. Smeltzer & Co., of Sonta Ana, Cal. The beds are under the personal supervision of Mr. Abner Wilson, of the firm of Wilson Bros., celery growers, of Tecumseh, Mich. They are laid out in sections eight feet wide, with ditches between them for irrigating, as it does not rain there at this time of the year. The beds have to be kept quite wet, while the plants are small, as the hot sun and alkali in the soil would otherwise kill the young plants. Forty pounds of seed were sowed. The firm expects this season to plant six million plants.
