A Creed.
Let me be brave,
And face the night,
And bear my portion
Of the fight.
With courage, not
That I may be
Accounted great
In victory,
But that another
Trading on
My skill keep heart,
When hope seems gone,
Grant to the wisdom,
Not that I
Who's clambered high,
And count myself
Superior clay
To those less learned,
God, I pray
For Wisdom and
A clearer mind,
To aid the ones
Who come behind.
Let me be strong
And true of heart,
And teach me
How to play my part
As one who tells
Not just for gold;
Thus I'd not have
My history told;
But let me serve
As best I can,
My God, my home,
My fellow-man.

The Worth of a Boy.

By NATHAN C. SCHAEFFER, LL. D.
State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Pennsylvania.

WHAT is a boy worth? What is an education worth? An Indiana jury awarded $599.99 for the killing of a boy. A friend of mine, who is a superintendent in West Virginia, called that award an outrage. I asked him why. He answered, "To say nothing of the boy's personality and all that a boy is to his father and mother and home, the commercial value of the boy's time at school is more than the award of that Indiana jury." I asked him how he made the calculation.

He said, "You find the value of a boy's time at school by subtracting the earnings of a life of educated labor." Then he gave me a calculation that I have used this year before every institute, for I am anxious to get it into the daily papers, to have it carried to every schoolroom and put upon every blackboard so that the pupils may carry it home and discuss it with their parents.

He said: "If an uneducated man earns $1.50 a day for three hundred days in a year he does very well. If he keeps it up for forty years, he will earn $1,500,000, or $15,000. An educated man is not generally paid by the day, but by the month and by the year. If you will strike an average of the earnings of educated men, beginning with the President of the United States, who earns $50,000 a year, the presidents of the insurance companies, and of the large railroad companies, and run down the scale until you come to the lower walks in point of earnings among educated men, you will admit that $1,000 a year is a low average for the earnings of educated labor. For forty years you have $40,000 as the earnings of an educated man. Subtract $18,000 from $40,000, and the difference, or $22,000, must represent the value of a boy's time spent at school in getting an education. You will all admit that the man who works with his hands at unskilled labor puts forth as much muscular effort as the man who earns his livelihood by his wits and education. Now if $22,000 represents the value of time that a boy spends at school in getting an education, what is the value of a day spent at school? The average school life of every boy and girl in Massachusetts is seven years of 200 days each; let us say that it takes four years more to get a good education. Reckoning eleven years of 200 days each, you will find that 2,200 days at school are equal to $22,000, and a simple division on the blackboard will bring it home to the comprehension of every boy that each day at school, properly spent, must be worth $10.

One director asks whether it is a violation of the compulsory law if a farmer keeps at home his eleven year old boy to plow, because it costs $1 a day to get some man to do the work. While he is putting $1 into his own pocket, he is robbing that boy of $10 in the shape of future earning capacity.—AMERICAN JOURNAL OF EDUCATION.

Peopling the West.
According to reports received by the Canadian Pacific, the migration of Americans to Western Canada continues in large volume. For instance, during the week ending Oct. 7, there entered Western Canada by various ports from the United States, 1,187 persons, with $27,044 cash and of assets valued at $1,103,458. Of these, 444 were farmers, 191 laborers, 220 men and children, 171 mechanics, and 56 clerical workers, eight hundred and ninety-three Americans and thirty-eight Canadians returning. During the same week Western Canada lost 116 persons of various nationalities, who left to reside in the United States, of whom 22 were farmers. During the same week 462 homesteads were entered upon in Western Canada, of which 139 were taken up by Americans.

PARSON'S PILLS
Little Willie's sister was being baptized. Everything went well until Willie happened to catch a glimpse of the water in the font, when he peered about anxiously, and finally exclaimed in a piping voice, audible to the whole congregation—"Where's the soap?"

Watching Yourself Go By.
Did you ever watch yourself go by in the human procession? You are always watching, no doubt, more or less closely, your neighbors and those you meet in your daily round. You see their shortcomings. You condemn their little meannesses. Occasionally you praise their good qualities. But generally it is with a critical and snarling eye that one surveys the currents of humanity which pass before his view. He is so impressed with the faults of almost everyone he sees that he thinks God about yourself? You are passing by others in this ceaseless drift called Life, just as others pass by you. Are you showing up any better than those whose failings you deplore or look upon with good humored tolerance? If you could detach yourself for a few minutes from your familiar stock of prejudice and bias, from all the special circumstances of heredity, environment and education which make each person's world distinct and different from every other person's, if you could get outside of yourself, as it were, and watch yourself with the same critical and impartial look as you bestow on others, you would certainly have your eyes opened. You might not be so supremely satisfied with yourself, your attainments and character. This would be no loss, but a distinct gain. For self-satisfaction is the foe to progress and the companion of petty souls. No truly great man is ever satisfied with himself. It takes a big soul to measure the possibilities of human nature, and the ideal moves forward faster than achievement can follow. Watching yourself as you pass by in the human drift, like the ceaseless crowds hurrying along the streets of a big city, can you not detect in your daily conduct, in your relations with those about you, some of those failings which appear so glaring in the lives of others? Are you always sincere with your fellows? Are you ready to help good causes at the cost of personal sacrifice? Is your ideal to serve your day and generation and leave the world better than you found it? Or is it to get as much as you can for self and give as little as decency will permit? Contentment of the rich comes easily enough. You have amassed immense fortunes, press on in the mad race for more money and more power, regard less of those who are crushed under the juggernaut of present economic evils. But can those who lit no flag against existing abuses, who do nothing to help forward a better day when justice shall reign, can they be held blameless? Unless one is doing his utmost within his own circle of influence for reform it is idle to denounce the heartlessness of plutocracy. If a man in moderate circumstances is not stirred to action with sympathy, the chances are that he would not do any better, even with the great wealth almost invariably fixed a gulf between its possessor and the common people. One's attitude toward the democratic movements of today, however, is only one respect in which you may check up yourself as you would another. As you view your daily round of activities from the standpoint of an outsider are you cheerful amid discouragement, helpful in the home, always mindful of the Golden Rule in your dealings with others? Or do petty annoyances, bitter you, do selfish aims engross all your powers, and is the rampant materialism of day allowed to tarnish your ideals? It is so easy to see that neighbor Jones has failed for one reason or another to make the best of life. But may not Jones say the same of you and yet perhaps far more truth? His faults are different from yours and much more glaring of course. One can always summon a host of reasons for his own particular failings, but as others see you, your shortcomings may be quite as serious blemishes as those you condemn so frankly in people about you. Another thing worth watching as you see yourself go by is, whether bound? Are you moving ahead or going in the opposite direction? Are you making any real progress, or have you got into a narrow rut, continually going over the same old centered round, with no outlook or advance? Every person might profitably take a few minutes now and then watching himself go by. If you go to it in the right frame of mind it would help you up to your best efforts and also make you more charitable in judging those around you.

Dreaded Epilepsy.
A CASE THAT SHOULD BRING HOPE TO OTHER SUFFERERS
There are many cases of epilepsy incurable so far as present medical knowledge extends and the sufferer is doomed to go through life a victim to a disease which has stricken him suddenly and without warning, and with each recurring affects his mental powers. Taken in time, however, many cases of epilepsy have been permanently cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in cases where the disease has not reached an acute form this remedy is worth giving a fair trial. Among the cures we give the following. Mrs. Robert Stringer, New Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have long felt that we should write you and let you know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for our grandson, who was attacked with epilepsy. The trouble seemed to come on following an attack of whooping cough. His parents seemed to notice that his eyes seemed to bulge out, and that he would be unconscious for a few seconds, and would go about his play as usual. The child was five years old at this time. The trouble seemed to be growing more severe and the attacks to come often, and as the local doctors were not helping him they sent him to the Children's Hospital in Toronto. He remained there a short time when the doctors said his trouble was epilepsy, and they could do nothing for him. Time went on and the attacks grew worse, and in the fall of 1908 my daughter wrote me that the little fellow was getting so bad that they wanted to send him back to the hospital. I asked her to send him to me for a time, and as one of his eyes had become crooked I took him to an oculist, who said this trouble could be cured, but it had nothing to do with bringing on his other trouble. As I knew that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were a splendid medicine I decided to give them to him, in the hope that they might benefit him. We were very careful as to diet, and as to keeping the child from excitement. In about a month we noticed that the trouble was lessening, and at this time the little fellow returned home and a mother kept up the treatment. In a few months he seemed fully cured, but during the holidays the trouble came back in a milder form, and the Pink Pills were again resorted to, and again the trouble disappeared, and although more than a year has passed there has not since been any sign of it. We feel so deeply indebted for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have

Just Six Feet.
The teacher was giving a lesson in mathematics and English combined. "A fathom," she said, "is a nautical word used in defining distances. It means six feet. Now, I want some little girl to give me a sentence using the word fathom."
Instantly a hand shot up in the rear of the room.
"Well, Mary, you may give your sentence."
"Mary stood up proudly."
"The reason fies can walk on the ceiling," said she, "is because they have a fathom."

Chronic Dyspepsia.
The following unsolicited testimonial should certainly be sufficient to give hope and courage to persons afflicted with chronic dyspepsia. "I have been a chronic dyspeptic for years, and of all the medicine I have taken, Chamberlain's Tablets have done me more good than anything else," says W. G. Mattison, No. 7 Sherman St., Hornellsville, N. Y. For sale by all dealers.

"My dear," said the young husband, "did you speak to the milkman about there being no cream on the milk."
"Yes, I told him about it this morning, and he has explained it satisfactorily. I think it is quite a credit to him, too."
"What did he say?"
"He said he always filled the jug so full there was no room on the top for the cream."
