Lord Derby's Recruits

London, Dec. 16.—In the House of Lords today the Earl of Derby, director of recruiting, when questioned regarding the results of his recruiting campaign, declined to give any figures in advance of Premier Asquith's statement, which will be made public next week. The earl declared, however, that "we were absolutely snowed under," with recruits last week, and that it would be impossible to call up the married men until the country was absolutely convinced that single men had come forward to enlist to such an extent as to leave only a negligible quantity unaccounted for.

"We must keep faith to the pledge that Premier Asquith gave the married men, said the earl. "Nobody can yet say whether or not the single men have come forward in sufficient numbers. That will be known Tuesday."

The preliminary report of the committee which is investigating the labor troubles among the munition workers in the Clyde district was made public today by David Lloyd George, the minister of munitions. The committee consisting of Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, and Lynden L. Macassey, finds that while the munition workers have certain substantial grounds for complaint, most of the differences really arose from minor local friction, exaggerated into importance by delay in dealing with it.

The committee recommends minor alterations in the law to provide for prompt settlement of disputes, and urges that no employer should have the right to dismiss an employe without cause. It demands the abolishment of a prison sentence for the nonpayment of fines imposed by munition tribunals. It asks the appointment of some persons experienced in industrial matters to act as a special mediator and conciliator in the Clyde district, where he would be accessible with a minimum delay.

The committee declines to deal with the cases of Canadian workmen who were induced to come to the Clyde district on exaggerated representations of the amount of wages it was possible to earn, it stated merely that such cases are unlikely to recur.

Senator Lodge Speaks

Washington, Dec. 10.—The long expected storm in Congress over the administration's conduct of the defence of American rights on the seas came today, when Senator Hoke Smith, Democrat, demanded an investigation of Great Britain's interference with neutral trade and Senator Lodge, Republican, replied with a demand that any investigation include the loss of American lives.

"The body of an innocent child, floating dead on the water, the victim of destruction of an unarmed vessel, is to me a more poignant and more tragic spectacle than an unsold bale of cotton," declared the Massachusetts Senator.

To Senator Smith's resolution for an investigation of trade interference Senator Lodge, who is the ranking minority member of the foreign relations committee, offered an amendment for investigation of the law and the facts in the submarine attacks on the Lusitania, Falaba, Hesperian, Arabic, Gullflight and Ancona, and of the plots and conspiracies against the neutrality of the United States to which President Wilson referred in unmeasured terms in his address to Congress Tuesday. Both resolutions were referred to the foreign relations committee on which further action will depend. Their introduction, however, had served to bring out the first debate of the session on a subject to which all minds had turned.

Senators on both sides of the Chamber were drawn into the discussion, which was precipitated by a vigorous speech by Senator Smith in support of his resolution.

"I wish to extend the scope of the resolution by my amendment," said Senator Lodge, as the Georgia Senator concluded, "because if we are to take up this question of the violation of our rights, I want to put in not on the lowest ground alone, but on the highest ground of all. I think it is of the greatest importance that we should vindicate our rights as a neutral in trade if those rights have been violated, but I think it is far more important that we should extend protection and assure security to American citizens, wherever they rightfully are, but I do not believe any government can long retain the respect of its own people if it does not give them the protection to which they are entitled.

"I think Americans should be protected in their lives and in their liberty everywhere. I don't think they ought to be murdered in detail obscurely in Mexico or openly in wholesale on the high seas. Although I am as anxious as anyone can be to care for our rights in trade, if they are violated, to me American lives are more important than dollars. If this investigation is to go on I want it to take in all the violations of our rights that may have occurred. The most important is the violation which has affected American lives, or the security of an American citizen—man, woman or child—and the next important matter are those pointed out by the President of the United States, in his message the other day when he referred to the destruction of property, accompanied by destruction of life in the United States and stated that conspiracies in alien interests are going out within our own borders.

"I think that if we are to investigate and inquire with a view to action such deeds as those should not be omitted. I am not willing to get into a passion over an infringement of our trade, and then allow American citizens to lose their lives and have it go by in frigid silence. I think the United States stands for something higher in the world than mere trade and mere dollars. I don't want to see our citizen wronged in their properties, but I think we should also stand above all, for morality and humanity in the dealings of nations with each other.

Senator Works, of California, asked Senator Lodge if his amendment was comprehensive enough to include investigation of part played by citizens of the United States in sending ammunition on ships which had been attacked or destroyed.

He was assured that it was also meant to include inquiry into all angles of the general subject of belligerent interference with ships.
