NEWFOUNDLAND.

Since the appointment of Sir

High Commissioner for Newfoundland in Great Britain, more has been done to make this dominion known to English capitalists than has been accomplished for some considerable time. Constantly, in season and out of season, making the English people better acquainted with our climate, our resources, our manner of living,

Sir Edgar has done yeoman service, and instead of being looked upon as a land of fog, ice and regarded as a promising and profitable development in the scheme of imperial expansion.
