

A CALIFORNIA SERENITY.—San Francisco has lately enjoyed a sensation a little out of the general run. It appears that recently a book-keeper of a large flour mill in that city was in the habit of giving a "good day" to an individual who often passed the mill. One day, after some conversation, the unknown man requested the pleasure of the book-keeper's company at dinner. The offer was not refused, and both enjoyed a sumptuous repast, during which sundry bottles of champagne were disposed of. This performance is the last the book-keeper remembers until the following morning, when he found himself on board an outward bound ship. He was of course confined, and when he had partly recovered his senses he demanded an explanation from the mate and afterwards from the captain. The latter officer produced papers of agreement signed by the book-keeper to make a voyage as a common sailor. The young man could not deny the signature, though he testified that he had been unconscious when it was obtained. As $75 had been paid by the ship's company for that signature, the unfortunate young man was compelled to produce an equal amount before he was permitted to depart. This we conceive to have been one of the boldest cases of "shanghaiing" from a civilized port that we have any record of. The case is being worked up by detectives, and if the rascal who abducted the young man is caught he will find that all is not lovely in villainy.
