TRIED MURDER, THEN SUKCIDED

Terrible Tragedy Enacted in Lambeth Village.

John Lewis Attempted to Kill His Wife.

Then Fatally Shot Himself in the Temple.

The Wife's Desperate Etruggle for Life in the Bedroom-Her Flight to a Neighbor's House-The Man's Mind Probably Deranged.

The attempted murder of a wife and the suicide of the husband is the bold outline of a tragedy that caused unwonted excitement in the quiet little village of Lambeth this morning.

Nearly a year and a half ago, John J. Lewis came there and purchased a 50-acre farm, just on the outskirts of Barrister C. H. Ivey is applying to the village. He was short, of heavy, the Provincial Government for a char- stocky build, and apparently about 48 ter for the Sanitary Dairy Company years old. At that time he was a pleaof London (Limited), with a capital sant-speaking, agreeable fellow, and stock of $100,000. The application is on his neighbors and he got along splenbehalf of some Detroit capitalists and didly together. Often he went to them a number of interested London citizens. to borrow little implements he needed, and on these occasions he would chat away, laugh and make merry with all. MRS. LEWIS.

His little wife, a rather short, dark, attractive woman, was an equally pleasant neighbor. All who knew her enjoyed her friendship. They were in comfortable circumstances, apparently, and were quite happy together.

A CHANGE. A change came some months ago. The man whose bright nature made him an agreeuble companion, became gloomy and taciturn, speaking to his neighbors only on rare occasions, and bidding his little wife to do similarly. She was to stay at home and not talk to other women. Unhappiness reigned in the house. Only the wife knew at first that her husband was not man he had been. Womanifke, she disclosed her knowledge to no one, but tried to shield him from the talk of the villagers. The monotony was hard to bear; the anxiety was wearing upon the little woman, but she bore up as bravely as she could. STRANGE ACTIONS.

However the facts leaked out. Her husband's actions were noticed. Rumors sprang into existence and talesexaggerated, some of them, others probably true—were told about him.
Then it was remembered by one that he had acted strangely when he had last been over, and other remember that he had spoken to no one when all were threshing together. In the night time he was seen walking up and down the lane that led to the The neighbors feared for Mrs. Lewis, but they feared, also, to speak heir thoughts to her.

HAD PRACTICED MEDICINE. Whenever her husband went away the day she would call upon the neighbors, and incidentally told them that her husband had practiced medifor some time in Cleveland and about two and a half years. some time after they had lived in London, and before coming to Lam-beth, he had been in the flour and feed business in London.

TWO LOADED REVOLVERS. Last Monday she went to Mrs. John King's, who lives nearer the road. The Lewis house is back about twenty She had two loaded revolvers, and was terribly excited about finding them in her husband's pockets. She left them there and returned home. On Wednesday she went to Mrs. King's again. Her husband had asked her for the revolvers. "If you don't give them to me," he said, "I'll get an-So Mr. King took the bullets out of the cartridges of one and she took it back, leaving the other there. Then followed a period of suspense, agenizing for her and troublous for the neighbors as well.

LEWIS ASKED FOR A PISTOL. Last night her husband again asked Mrs. Lewis where the revolver was. She had hidden it and the cartridges in the pantry, off the dining-room. He promised not to do anything with them, so she told him where they

THE TRAGEDY.

This morning early she was sleeping. Her husband arose, got the revolver and loaded it. Then he went back to the bedroom and shot her twice in the head. She sprang out of bed saying, "Oh, John, I am going to die. A blood vessel has broken in my head."

"I want you to die," he told her.
"Give me time to pray, John," she cried, beseechingly, but he sneered the

'Oh, the Lord will save you, all right.

MRS. LEWIS' STRUGGLE FOR

LIFE. A struggle ensued. The man's shirt sleeve was torn the whole length. At last the little woman freed herself. Crazed with fear, she ran along a hallway, through the dining-room and out of the house, with blood streaming from her wounds. She rushed along the lane. Shortly after daybreak Mrs. King heard some one screaming "Mrs. King! Mrs. King!" and looking out she saw Mrs. Lewis running and staggering towards the house, clad only in her nightdress. Rev. Mr. Cozens, who lives nearby, saw her as she ran, and

HEARD ANOTHER SHOT FIRED in the house. All that was possible was done for the almost dying woman by Mis. King. She sent for Dr. Rout-ledge, who sent word to Detective Robert Ward. THE WOMAN'S INJURIES

The doctor's examination of Mrs. Lewis' wounds led him to believe that she could be saved. One bullet had struck her on the upper part of the right temple, went downward a little and then glanced unward. The other struck the cheek, went straight in and imbedded itself in the superior maxiliary bone. The doctor removed them. The one that struck the cheek was

When the doctor's examination was concluded, Detective Ward had arriv-porch. They entered and found Lewis lying by the dining-room table.

HE WAS DEAD. A shastly how was in the light ple. Dark bleed had count from the please of the please of the please of the lay in it. His head and face as he left arm. His right arm was cluse to his side. His hand still stipped the revolver. Around the handle his thumb was firmly fixed, and his index finger rested upon the barrel, having alipped from the trigger. Near his head swayed the open door of the pantry into which he had gone seemingly for more cartridges. Two empty ingly for more cartridges. Two empty shells and two with bullets in them were upon the floor, and STAINS OF BLOOD were everywhere on the carpet. The room was just as it had been when they retired. The blood spots led towards the bedroom. The bed clothing was all disarranged. Dark red spots showed upon the pillow, where the wife's head had rested, and powder showed black upon the linen.

THE CORONER'S JURY. jury was empaneled, and after taking in the situation adjourned to meet at 10:30 o'clock on Monday. Mr. J. R. Wait was chosen foreman and the other jurors are: Messrs. William and David Lown, Wm. Schram, Ferguson Ireland, Henry Martin, L. M. Vandermade, George Kelly, Alex. Ban-natyne, Joseph Parker, James Kelly, Henry Martin, George Clark and David Mann.

At last accounts Mrs. Lewis was still conscious. The weapon with which the terrible deed was committed is a 32-calibre long Bulldog. The cartridges used 32 short.

Mrs. Lewis whose maiden name was Hurst, has a brother and sister living in St. Thomas. Two brothers of the dead man also live there.

WORKINGMEN

Commend the Government's Labor Legislation and Indorse Its Candidates.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.-At a large meeting of laboring men held here tonight, resolutions were passed commending the Laurier Government for their labor legislation, and indorsing the Government candidates in this city. The meeting was called by the laboring men themselves, and was addressed by their own members. It was in no sense a party meeting. The resolutions were the carefully considered judgment of the united labor men of Ottawa. Men formerly identified with both political parties attended and addressed the meeting, including Mr. Robert E. Hay, who was until a month ago secretary of the Conservative As- | No. 2 mixed, 24%c on track. sociation.

JOHN ROSS ROBERTSON ON LAUR-IER.

The Toronto Telegram, an Independent-Conservative paper, owned by John Ross Robertson, M. P., says: "When a Protestant and English-Canadian leader excites as much enthusiasm in Quebec as Wilfrid Laurier rouses in Ontario, the unification of Canada will be complete. The shadows of parliamentary cowardice do not darken the unclouded noon of his power on the platform. When all is said and done, Wilfrid Laurier is a great Canadian, who is stronger in Ontario than any other Liberal leader, and his popularity is the greatest asset of his government."

LORD ROBERTS' GOOD ADVICE

To Those Who Entertain the Returning Soldiers.

A Strong Plea Against Treating to Stimulants.

London, Nov. 3 .- Lord Roberts sends from Pretoria a striking appeal to his countrymen to refrain from turning the welcome on the home-coming of the troops into a drunken orgy. He expresses the sincere hope that the welcome will not take the form of treating to stimulants, and "thus lead to excesses that will tend to degrade those whom the nation delights to honor, and lower the soldiers of the Queen in the eyes of the world, which has watched with undisguised admiration the grand work they have performed for their sovereign and country." He

THE MEN'S GOOD CONDUCT.

"I am very proud to be able to record, with the most absolute truth, that the conduct of this army, from first to last, has been exemplary.
