ALASKA BOUNDARY SURVEY.

By the steamer Boscowitz, the last party of the Canadian engineers engaged on the Alaska boundary survey returned to Victoria yesterday morning. The party consisted of Mr. Arthur St. Cyr, C.E., his assistant, Mr. O. Wilkie, and five others. They have been engaged for seven months in surveying along the 56th parallel, from the head of Portland canal to the head of Behm canal, connecting the triangulation of last year's work. The party went up the Bear and Salmon river, running the Bear and Salmon river, running impressed with the importance of keeping impressed with the importance of keeping impressed with the investing Newfoundland. They left on her on the 10th for Viotoria. No thrilling escapes or adventures happened the party, though once four of the canoes upset and most of the provisions were lost. The weather was fairly good, though ten inohes of snow fell just before the survey was finished. Mr. St. Cyr leaves for Ottawa probably on Sunday. Mr. Wilkie, his assistant, lives in this province, his family residing at Langley.
