RAISED PRINCE RUPERT'S FLAG.

(Canadian Press.)

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 10.—The British flag has been raised under most unusual circumstances in the past, but probably the conditions were never stranger than those of a recent ceremony held at Swanson Bay, when two divers, nearly 100 feet below the surface of the sea, hoisted the ship's ensign on the flagstaff of the sunken Prince Rupert, which is now in process of being salvaged. One diver bent the colors to the halyards and slowly hoisted them, while his mate stood at the salute near by and sent to the surface through the telephone connected with his helmet the strains of the National Anthem.

Two divers of the Pacific Salvage Company had gone down into the stern of the wreck to a depth of nearly 100 feet. The diver's tender suddenly announced that he could hear "God Save the King" coming up through the telephone which connected him with the man below. Wonder was expressed at the occurrence, but the mystery was cleared up when the divers rose to the surface again.

While going around the stern one diver had found in a box at the foot of the flagstaff the ship's ensign. Signalling to his partner he took the emblem from the repository, bent it on to the halyards, and slowly hoisted it. Standing at attention, his hand raised to the salute, his mate sang the National Anthem, and it was this that the men at the surface had heard. Many a fine ship has gone down with colors flying, but to the Pacific Salvage Company will accrue the unique honor of raising a vessel with the British flag mastheaded.
