

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."

"—Mrs. FRANK EMBLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb. — "Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."

—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

many women with disfigured complexions never seem to think that they need an occasional cleansing inside as well as outside. Yet neglect of this internal bathing shows itself in spots, pimples, eruptions, as well as in dreadful headaches and biliousness. It is because the liver becomes sluggish, and waste matter accumulates which nature cannot remove without assistance. The best remedy is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which stimulate the liver to healthy activity, remove fermentation, gently cleanse the stomach and bowels and tone the whole digestive system. BUSINESS MEN MUST KEEP THEIR HEADS

Mr. A. P. Willis of Montreal Says Canada's Motto Should be, Business Harder Than Ever

Mr. A. P. Willis, president of Willis & Company, the well-known Montreal firm of piano manufacturers, struck a note of cheerful optimism when speaking to a representative of The Colonist at Vancouver lately.

This is the first time Mr. Willis has been so far West, and, naturally, he was enthusiastic in his appreciation of the natural beauties he found here, describing Victoria as a gem in a splendid setting.

Replying to a question as to the effects of the outbreak of war on business conditions in the East, Mr. Willis said that, naturally war deranges business, devastating some lines and sending others off at a tangent, but, in his opinion, there is no call for pessimism. Talking bad times will bring them, but he, for one, certainly did not talk bad times, as he does not expect to see them.

Before the war broke out, Montreal, in common with the rest of the country, was suffering from business depression, due to a large extent to overbuilding. He was of the opinion that a certain amount of depression may have been blamed on the war, for which it was not so much responsible as was overbuilding and land speculation in the preceding years. But even this depression he did not regard as an unmitigated evil, tending, as it would, to make people more careful now and in the future.

In August there was a tendency amongst business men in Montreal to lose their heads; factories were closed down, while their owners and managers read newspapers and talked war; but at the end of that month they realized that business must be attended to and the wheels of commerce must continue to go round. With some 10,000,000 men engaged at the front and countless millions left at home dependent on the continuance of business, it was no time for manufacturers to throw up their hands and call a halt; on the other hand, now was the time for them to recognize their duty in pushing trade harder than ever.

Mr. Willis agreed that England's motto, "Business as usual," was an equally good one for Canada. In fact, in his conversation he went better than this and made it clear that he thought it should be "Business harder than ever," and he advocated a four months' advertising campaign to that end.

Mr. Willis, while speaking of the splendid effect the war had had in the line of welding British sentiment throughout the Empire, was very emphatic in his praise of the loyalty of the French-Canadian population. Before the war some people were apt to think, perhaps, that they were not loyal, but it needed no alliance of Great Britain with France to make these Canadian-Frenchmen loyal to our Empire. The same sentiment was in the breast of every Frenchman when Nelson's monument was erected in Montreal in 1805—loyalty to the Empire. The essence of British law is that the people make their own law. The French had the vote; they made their own Provincial laws; they retained their own language, and their liberty was protected in religion and education. They blessed the Plains of Abraham; they admitted that they were happy, and the British Empire suited them as being very ideal political system. Nationalism is now as dead as Dickens' door nail.

True to the note of optimism which sounded through his whole conversation, Mr. Willis ended the interview with the expression of opinion that the war might not last so long as some people think, but might be terminated suddenly by some decisive blow.

According to a London evening paper, Mr. William James Valentine of Melton Mowbray, a civil engineer, who died on November 8, made his will in red ink on the back of a cigarette card. He left all his property to his fiancée.

EUROPE IS HARDENING AGAINST THE U. S.
Blamed for Ignoring Violations of Treaties, and Protesting at Bid of Copper Kings

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The Daily News prints the following special Marconi-gram from Millward Price, its London, Eng., correspondent:

"Conversations with persons of force, representing the sentiments of Great Britain, France, Russia, Italy, Germany and Austria, compel the conviction that the United States is making no real friends in this war. On the contrary, it is impossible not to see that the American name is suffering, and that conceivably the Republic is laying up grave trouble for itself in the future.

"The general charge against our country is that we are displaying a shameless lack of idealism, chivalry, magnanimity and courage. Britons, Frenchmen, Russians and Italians blame Americans for ignoring the invasion of Belgium and the violations of the conventions of The Hague, and then springing into the international arena with a protest relating exclusively to matters of trade. The argument in these complaints is that if President Wilson had protested against the violations of treaties and the principles of civilized warfare he could have protested with vastly greater effect against the arbitrary and possibly indefensible interference with American cargoes.

UNMOVED BY BELGIUM'S FATE
"It is asserted on every hand that the Americans witnessed, unmoved—that is, so far as official action was concerned—the crucifixion of Belgium, the killing and maiming of women and children and other noncombatants, the destruction of private property, and the strewing of the open seas with long-lived floating mines, all involving enormous sacrifices of life and wealth without commensurate military advantage.

"Again and again one hears men of repute say that Mr. Wilson has revealed his own cowardice, degraded the Presidency, and dishonored American political and moral traditions.

"These outbursts do not proceed from resentment at Mr. Wilson's protest with respect to British and French treatment of American trade with neutral countries. Everyone admits that Mr. Wilson is bound to protect the neutral commerce of America as far as he can. The indictment against us, so far as I can measure it, simply is this: We abdicaded ignominiously and ran away when great questions of morals and humanity were concerned, but promptly recovered our sense of duty and our courage when the state of war threatened to reduce the profits of the copper kings and otherwise penalize American materially.

"Now, if we have lost, at least for the time being, the respectful admiration of the allies, I think it cannot possibly be said that we have gained the high opinion or affection of the Teutonic empires. My experience is that influential Germans are inclined to speak of us with scorn. They accuse us of cringing to Britain, of enduring its 'arrogant monopoly of the sea,' of tolerating British control of cables largely owned by Americans, and otherwise showing ourselves small.

"If you Americans can put up with all this," they say, "and if you will not end the brutal and contemptuous British world-tyranny, we Germans will."

"Thus, it seems that the whole of Europe is hardening against America. Enthusiastic friends we have nowhere. One cannot doubt, as matters stand, that when peace comes the United States will have no hand in the making of terms. Its isolation, in all events, is this: We abdicaded ignominiously and ran away when great questions of morals and humanity were concerned, but promptly recovered our sense of
